Rehnquist Favors Wiretap

He Wouldn't Sit In Such A Case

. . . If Confirmed On High Court

Washington (AP) — William H. Rehnquist implied strongly Wednesday that he would disqualify himself from wiretap cases if he is confirmed to a seat on the Supreme Court.

Testifying before the Senate Judiciary Committee the nominee defended the Nixon administration's wiretap policies. But he said surveilance should be used only to solve or prevent crime — and not to stifle dissent. And he said the primary purpose of the Bill of Rights is to "put restraints on the government."

Rehnquist said that as an assistant attorney general he acted as an advisor on wiretapping and that "if the Justice Department position was indefensible or personally obnoxious to me I would have resigned."

Rehnquist was reluctant at times to give his views of wiretapping, citing an "attorney-client relationship" with Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and President Nixon.

But drawn out by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., he made some general observations including that he does not think government bugging, with and without judicial warrants, is "pervasive."

Up For Decision

The Nixon administration's policies are up for decision in the Supreme Court, particularly Mitchell's stand that a warrant is not required in order to wiretap groups or individuals he concludes may pose a security threat to the government.

Rehnquist did not say specifically that he would not sit in such cases. But he said he thinks a justice would be disqualified if he "personally participated in litigations" or played the role of "advising." He then described his job on wiretapping as "advisory."

Again with some reluctance Rehnquist gave the committee his general view that wiretapping "is not an appealing type of thing and it is justified only by exigent circumstances."

Rehnquist said he has changed his mind since 1964 when he wrote a letter to a Phoenix newspaper opposing a local ordinance to assure blacks equal public accommodations.

He told Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who raised the question, that he found the ordinance readily accepted by the people in Phoenix and, more important, he had become aware of "the strong concern minorities have for recognition of their rights."

His Son Profited

Asked about a 1967 letter and his views on school integration, Rehnquist said his own son had profited from playing basketball and football on integrated teams in a Virginia suburban school.

But the nominee stressed, the Negroes who attended the school live in the neighborhood. He said he believes in the "concept of neighborhood schools" and "has some reservations about transporting students great distances" to accomplish dessegregation.

The assistant attorney general in the Nixon administration criticized the firing on student demonstrators at Kent State in Ohio, calling it a "misguided and unwarranted misuse of force."

Rehnquist's views on these points were drawn out by Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., critics of many of the policies of the Nixon administration.

Rating Of ABA High

As Rehnquist appeared at the confirmation hearing, he and President Nixon's other nominee for the Supreme Court, Lewis F. Powell Jr. were rated highly qualified by the American Bar Association.

The ABA's Committee on the Federal Judiciary described Rehnquist, from the viewpoint of professional qualifications "one of the best persons available for appointment to the Supreme Court."

Three of the 12 panel members dissented to the extent they did not find Rehnquist meriting the highest rating and would have recorded the ABA as simply not opposed to his confirmation.

As for Powell, who will be called to testify later, the ABA committee reached the unanimous conclusion that the Richmond, Va., lawyer "meets high standards of professional competence, judicial temperament and integrity."

President Was Warned . . .

Blast May Cause Chain Of Quakes

Washington (AP) — A three-judge federal appeals court Wednesday refused for a second time to halt a massive nuclear explosion scheduled for Saturday on Amchitka Island off the Alaskan coast.

The court turned back environmentalist opponents of the test a few hours after it was disclosed that President Nixon's top environmental adviser had warned that the five-megaton blast could set off a chain of earthquakes and perhaps send a tidal wave across the Pacific Ocean.

The U.S. Court of Appeals decision virtually closed out any possibility that the underground blast will be stopped.

Opponents of the blast said they would appeal Thursday to the Supreme Court.

Environmentalists had claimed that even government experts believe the explosion could trigger earthquakes or tidal waves, kill wildlife or release radioactive waste into the air.

Documents Made Public

Meanwhile, the AEC made public four government documents previously made available only to attorneys for the seven environment groups headed by the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility.

Four other documents had been made public earlier, by court order.

One of the key documents released Wednesday is an environmental assessment by Russell E. Train, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality.

Train told an undersecretaries' committee of the National Security Council that the huge blast, code-named "cannikin," could trigger an earthquake by its direct impact on earth faults, or by forcing water into faults and lubricating them.

Train said earlier, smaller, atomic blasts had caused quakes whose force was always less than the blast itself. If that pattern were dependable, he said, "then there would be no apprehension with regard to the Cannikin event."

'Not The Case'

"Unfortunately, this is not the case," Train said.

He said recent scientific findings indicate a large earthquake may be made up of a series of smaller quakes, each one setting off the next.

In this theory, Train said, "Once one lock point is broken, sufficient energy may be released to break other lock points. If the stored strain energy is large then the triggered earthquake could be of much greater magnitude than the triggering event.

"The underground explosion could serve as the first domino of the row of dominoes leading to a major earthquake."

Train said a big quake is the sparsely populated Aleutians might not cause much direct damage.

"The real danger from the triggering of a large earthquake by the nuclear explosion is in a tidal wave or tsunami . . . It is not posible at this time to assess quantitatively the probability of a tsunami following the explosion," he said.

Old Aged Group Shows Big Rise

. . . 12.4% Of Population

Over the past century, persons aged 65 and over grew from one percent to almost 12.4% of the total Nebraska population, according to a new information series put out by the Nebraska Commission on Aging.

In more concrete terms, there were 1,213 persons over 65 in the state at the time of the 1870 census. There are presently 183,526 persons in the same age bracket, as revealed by the 1970 census.

The steady numerical and percentage growth of this older population group may be attributed to the evoluton of several phenomena.

Stable Element

As the young settlers in Nebraska grew older they formed a stable element in the state population. Decreased infant mortality, improved medical care and nutrition along with the suppression of several major diseases contributed to the increased life span.

Also affecting these statistics are the migration patterns of the old and young. In more recent years younger people tend to leave the state, while older persons are generally less mobile.

The ratio between men and women in the senior citizen age bracket favors the women. According to the 1970 census, women over the age of 65 outnumber their male peers by 34.5%. Between the ages of 65 and 74 there were 1.25 women for each man, while the figure increased to 1.5 in the 75 and over age bracket.

Fastest Increase

The number of women aged 74 and over showed a 43.1% increase fro mthe decade ending in 1960 to the 1970 census. This group is the fastest growing segment of the state population on a percentage of change basis.

Using the figures from the 1950 to 1970 censuses, the 75 and over age group had the largest percentage increase of any group in Nebraska with 32.7%. This parallels a national trend.

The 65 and over group gained an average of 5.3 persons each day over the past ten years. This compares with 14.5 persons per day in the under 65 group.

To Be More Stable

A study of the age cohort trends from 1940 to 1970 shows that the percentage of elderly persons in the state will tend to become more stable over the next ten to 20 years. On the other hand, the actual number of older persons in Nebraska will increase.

Figures from the 1970 census for Lincoln show that 10% of the city's population is over the age of 65. This group of senior citizens numbers 16,737.

Of this group females number 10,345, while there are 6,392 males. The ratio of females to males is 1.6 for the 65 and over age bracket in Lincoln.

A general population growth will tend to restrict future dramatic increases in the percentage of persons over age 65, even though their actual number will increase.

DAS To Send Swanson Checks

. . . BUT TREASURER SAYS HE WON'T SIGN THEM

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Department of Administrative Services Director Gus Lieske said late Wednesday that he will send welfare checks up to the State Treasurer's office Thursday for authorization despite Treasurer Wayne Swanson's announcement that he would not sign them.

"We'll continue sending payment warrants up to the treasurer's office; if he doesn't sign them, he will have to answer to the attorney general's office," Lieske said.

Swanson's decision, according to Deputy Treasurer Ruth Danekas, came about because the DAS had not provided his office with fund balance statements since June 30, 1971.

Hold Up Payments

The immediate effect of Swanson's action would be to hold up $2.5 million in welfare payments scheduled to be signed by Swanson Thursday.

In addition, Swanson's action could also effect other forms of state payments including payroll checks, since warrants (equivalent to bank checks) authorize payment of money from the state treasury.

Under the state's payment system, warrants are prepared by DAS, signed by the treasurer and returned to DAS for disbursement.

Lists Balance

The cash fund balance statement, according to Mrs. Danekas, lists the various state agencies' balance at the end of each month.

There appears to be some question of legality over whether the Nebraska Revised Statutes authorize Swanson to take such an action.

Although Mrs. Danekas did not specifically cite a statute, she said the statements are required to determine whether adequate funds exist to meet the warrant demands.

Lieske said he spoke to Attorney General Clarence A. H. Meyer whose preliminary indication was that Swanson does not have the legal grounds for such actions.

"Swanson's office is receiving the information they need to sign the warrants, although it is not the particular one to which he refers to," Lieske said.

"The legal statute which he talks of doesn't specify the nature or the frequency of such reports.

"Besides that law was repealed in 1969," Lieske added.

'Couple Of Days'

The DAS director indicated that his office would not know for a "couple of days" whether Swanson has, in fact, refused to sign due to the time factor.

"If we don't get them back, action will be initiated through the attorney general's office," he said.

Swanson, according to Mrs. Danekas, was not in his office and could not be reached.

Huang To Head For U.N. Nov. 9

Ottawa (UPI) — Huang Hua, the ambassador of the People's Republic of China to Canada, will leave Ottawa on Nov. 9 to take up his new post as second in command of China's delegation at the United Nations, officials in the Department of External Affairs said Wednesday.

Catholics Oppose Prayer Bill

Washington (AP) — Opponents of the school-prayer amendment received a boost Wednesday from a Catholic organization and appeared to be within striking distance of victory in next Monday's showdown House vote.

The United States Catholic Conference announced its opposition to the proposal. Several Protestant and Jewish religious groups have been opposing the amendment for some time but major Catholic organizations had remained silent until Wednesday.

Spokesmen for both sides said Wednesday opponents of the amendment are picking up strength from congressmen who previously supported it or were undecided.

And House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., announced his opposition and said he thinks it will fail.

"In the past week the mail to some offices has reversed itself and congressmen who once supported it are joining our side," said Stuart Johnson, a Washington attorney who is helping lead the anti-amendment forces.

"There is some vacillation," conceded an aide to Rep. John Buchanan, R-Ala., a supporter of the proposal.

A two-thirds majority of "yes" votes among those present and voting is necessary to approve the amendment and send it to the Senate, where its opponents say they are not sure it can be stopped.

"It would be a real mistake for a House member to vote for it, thinking the Senate will kill it," said an aide to Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., a leading opponent of the proposal.

If all present members of the House were present and voting 143 nays would be required to prevent the required two-thirds majority.

"We've got over a hundred we can count on now," Johnson said. "It will be decided by those who are now undecided and the no-shows."

Mrs. Ben Ruhlin of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, an ardent supporter of the amendment, said Wednesday she thinks passage is certain, declaring there are only about 88 sure opponents.

Nebraskans Told Reclamation Plan Standards Changing

Dallas, Tex. (AP) — New standards of evaluating project benefits and cost-sharing methods are being worked out and will apply to Reclamation Bureau projects in Nebraska as well as elsewhere, a Nebraska delegation to the National Water Resources Association in Dallas was told Wednesday.

Reclamation Commissioner Ellis Armstrong, in assuring the delegation of his support for water development in the state, pointed out that under present criteria, very few reclamation projects would be built.

He said "interest rates and rising construction costs must be offset by benefits which result in favorable benefit-cost ratios." Clarence Henkel and Harry Bryan, seeking construction of the Little Blue Unit in Nebraska, said they hope some of the review and restudying the project is undergoing can be terminated and work gotten under way.

Henkel, of Gladstone, Neb., secretary of the Little Blue Irrigation District and Little Blue Flood Control and Conservation Association, said his area suffers flood problems but it also needs water and "there should be a maturation point for reclamation projects studies."

Armstrong said, "This is fine, but we are in a continually changing basis for evaluating projects. We must work out all problems before submitting reports that are satisfactory for authorization purposes." Armstrong emphasized the changing criteria is designed for new emphasis on water development.

The Little Blue Unit is a development proposed for south central Nebraska. Approval of an original report completed in 1968 was delayed because rising interest rates and construction costs indicated marginal feasibility.

A report now in the final phases is scheduled for completion in May 1972. Bryan said they had been seeking this project for Nebraska since 1956.

He said "tremendous local support exists for the project and much of "the original dissension concerning development has already disappeared."

Armstrong said that the bureau is cooperating to the fullest in completing and expediting the report, but "it is conceivable when new criteria and project evaluation procedures are issued that further revision and study may become necessary."

Democrats, Republicans Dispute Voting

By WALTER R. MEARS

Washington (AP) — Democrats and Republicans lodged counterclaims of national success Wednesday in the outcome of odd-year city and state elections. But the real message of the scattered balloting may have been that, nationally, there isn't any.

The strategy that worked in Kentucky flopped in Pennsylvania. The hard-line, law-and-order approach that helped Frank L. Rizzo capture Philadelphia's city hall took a drubbing in Boston.

A Democrat captured Tuesday's biggest prize, as Wendell Ford was elected governor of Kentucky, boosting his party's statehouse dominance to 30 of the 50 states.

Ford campaigned against President Nixon on economic grounds, and said his victory was a portent of what is to come in 1972, the beginning of a "dump Nixon" movement.'

In general, local issues, personalities and preferences appeared to have been the forces at work in shaping the election verdicts.

Nixonomics 'Significant'

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said the Ford victory in Kentucky was particularly significant as "the first major referendum" on President Nixon's economic program.

Ford defeated Republican Tom Emberton, who had the active backing of outgoing GOP Gov. Louie B. Nunn.

Predictably, Sen. Robert J. Dole, the Republican national chairman, denied that: ". . . Kentucky issues were mostly local, and I can see little significance in the outcome of that race."

Republican spokesmen chose instead to emphasize the victory of catsup heir H. John Heinz III, 33, in the day's only congressional race, in

Maureen O'Connor, 25. . . teacher is on San Diego City Council.

Pennsylvania. Heinz swamped Democrat John E. Connelly by more than two-to-one, to win the Pittsburgh-area seat left vacant by death.

The economy, and the administration program, was an issue in the campaign there too.

Rep. Bob Wilson, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, said the voters had rejected an effort by Connelly to make political capital out of difficult economic adjustments. "It didn't work in Pennsylvania yesterday, and it won't work across the country in 1972," he said.

'Lack Of Confidence'

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said the results signaled to him "a lack of confidence in the national Republican administration and its failures to deal effectively with basic domestic problems, particularly the economy."

At the White House, President Nixon discussed the election results with aides, but made no public comment.

Republican Mayor Richard G. Lugar of Indianapolis, Nixon spokesman on urban affairs, easily won re-election in a race in which he was thought to have faced possible trouble. Furthermore, Republicans won 20 of 29 council seats under the newly merged city-county government that Lugar had championed.

In Philadelphia, Rizzo, the former police commissioner who styled himself "the toughest cop in America," won election as mayor by some 53,000 votes over Republican W. Thacher Longstreth.

Rizzo ran far behind Longstreth in black wards of the city, but fashioned lop-sided majorities in blue-collar wards, Italian neighborhoods and the predominantly white northeastern section.

Hicks Loses Badly

While Rizzo was winning in Philadelphia, Rep. Louise Day Hicks was losing badly in Boston. Mayor Kevin H. White swept to re-election there. Mrs. Hicks, the adamant foe of school desegregation busing, had stressed rising crime rates and city taxes in her campaign.

In elections elsewhere:

—Henry E. Howell Jr., running as an independent, was elected lieutenant governor of Virginia in an election that was a severe setback to the Republican organization of Gov. Linwood Holton. George P. Shafran, the GOP nominee who had Holton's all-out backing, ran a distant third, behind Howell and Democrat George J. Kostel.

—William Waller, a Mississippi Democrat, won that state's governorship by trouncing Charles Evers, a black, and a member of the Democratic National Committee. Evers, first of his race to run for governor of Mississippi, said one impact of his campaign had been to draw out white voters, who outnumber registered blacks, 7 to 3. "We had them scared," he said. "That's all right, white folks, we are going to keep coming. This is the beginning."

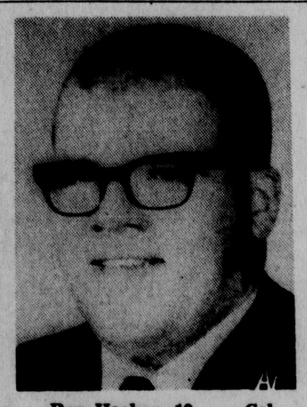
World News

—Another kind of black political effort foundered in Cleveland, and Ralph J. Perk, a Republican, won election as mayor in a major upset. He defeated Arnold R. Pinkney, a Negro who ran as an independent with the support of outgoing Mayor Carl B. Stokes. The Perk victory blocked Stokes' efforts to fashion a black political organization in Cleveland as a step toward creating a national coalition built around Negro voters.

—In San Francisco, Mayor Joseph Alioto, under a federal indictment he called "a political knifing," won re-election over a field of 10 challengers. "I'm happy the people of San Francisco have given me, in effect, a vote of confidence in this," said Alioto.

—Democrats gained ground in the New Jersey legislature, and control of the 80-member assembly was in doubt. Forty Democrats, 39 Republicans, and one independent — Newark vigilante Anthony Imperiale were elected. Republicans held control of the senate, but by a narrowed margin.

—Newly enfranchised 18 year-old voters made their presence felt in scattered local elections, particularly in campus towns. Francis X. McCloskey, 32, a recent law school graduate, defeated the mayor of Bloomington, Ind., site of Indiana University. College students won election to municipal offices in Ohio, Rhode Island and Minnesota, and Iowa.



Ron Hooker, 19 . . . College junior new mayor of Newcomerstown, Ohio.

Pay Board Proposes 5% Lid On Wage Hikes

©The New York Times

Washington — The public and business members of the Pay Board proposed Wednesday a 5% guideline for wage increases during Phase Two of the Nixon administration's new economic program.

Qualified sources said statements developed during separate caucuses by members of the two groups also agreed that workers should not be allowed to recover pay raises blocked during the wage-price freeze that expires Nov. 13.

No action was taken on the proposals Wednesday, but the public and business representatives make up a two-thirds majority of the 15-member board.

There was no immediate reaction from labor, which holds the remaining five seats. But the trade union members have insisted that existing contracts must be honored and retroactive and deferred increases paid.

The public members were said by the sources to have suggested that increases due after the freeze began Aug. 15 should not take effect until two months after the freeze expires.

Publishers Seek Price-Control Exemption

Washington (UPI) — Spokesmen for three associations of newspaper, book and magazine publishers — citing both economic and constitutional grounds — asked Congress Wednesday for an exemption from price controls.

They testified before the Senate Banking Committee, which is considering the administration's bill to extend until April 30, 1973, President Nixon's authority to control wage and prices. The law under which he imposed controls on Aug. 15 expires April 30.

Eugene Duffield, chairman of the Magazine Publishers Association, said press freedom would be threatened if publishers had to appeal to government officials for the right to raise prices enough to remain in business. He contended that officials' decisions would be colored by their opinion of the publication making the appeal.

Theodore Serrill, executive vice president of the National Newspaper Association, said, "Control of prices charged by the press for its product is the first step toward control of the press in this country."

His association represents 900 of the nation's 1,750 dailies and 6,000 of the nation's 7,600 weeklies.

Thomas B. Curtis, speaking for the 260 book publishing members of the Association of American Publishers, said publishers would have to abandon the practice of reissuing old books if the books had to be priced no higher than when they first appeared.

Capt. L. Sellmeyer Testifies Mrs. Sturm Remained Calm

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A Lincoln police captain testified Wednesday that Mrs. Judy L. Sturm freely admitted shooting her husband, Harvey, and "remained calm" when advised about a half hour later he was dead.

Capt. Lowell Sellmeyer told a Lancaster District Court jury in the second-degree murder trial of Mrs. Sturm that her first words were "I shot him" when asked what happened during the early morning hours of Sept. 18 at the Sturm home at 2740 Arlington.

Sellmeyer said that he then advised Mrs. Sturm of her constitutional rights to remain silent and have an attorney present, but that the defendant appeared willing to talk to him.

Hollering, Shouting

Mrs. Sturm related to Sellmeyer that her husband had come home about 2 a.m. and "was hollering and shouting and began slapping her around after she asked where he had been."

"She showed me her puffed lip and a small cut inside her mouth," the officer said. "She said he continued arguing and shouting and jerked the telephone off the wall."

Mrs. Sturm said her husband threatened to strangle her with the telephone cord if she called police, Sellmeyer said.

Got A Shotgun

After her husband had gone to bed, and she felt he was asleep, Sellmeyer said Mrs. Sturm told him she got a shotgun, took it downstairs and loaded it, and returned upstairs to the bedroom and shot him.

In opening statements to the jury, Public Defender T. Clement Gaughan contended that Judy Sturm feared her husband was going to kill her after coming home intoxicated and belligerent about 2 a.m. on Sept. 18.

He said Harvey Sturm had beaten her and threatened to strangle her with a telephone cord, and thrown two lamps and several kitchen items around the downstairs.

Opposes Punishment

As the first witness called in the trial, Mrs. Helen Sturm of Topeka, Kan., testified on cross-examination that she didn't feel her daughter-in-law should be punished for her son's death.

Mrs. Helen Sturm said she related this to Gaughan shortly after Harvey Sturm's death.

"I still feel that Judy shouldn't be punished for this," she told the jury of eight women and four men. "It won't bring my son back."

On direct examination by Deputy County Atty. Bernard McGinn, she testfiied to coming to Lincoln on New Year's Day after her son had been arrested in connection with an alleged beating of Judy Sturm.

Had Black Eye

"Judy had a black eye, scratches on her forehead, and said she hurt all over," the older Mrs. Sturm said.

She said she later asked her son to "promise not to do this again," but that Harvey had replied, "I can't promise it won't happen again but I promise to quit drinking."

Mrs. Sturm said her son and family visited in Topeka the weekend before his death, and that he seemed "tired and cross," but that Judy had made "no complaints" about their relationship during the visit.

'Judy Loved Harvey'

She described her daughter-in-law as a "wonderful housekeeper" and that she felt "Judy loved Harvey."

Other testimony Wednesday indicated that Harvey Sturm was hit in the chest with two shotgun shots and was bleeding heavily when police were summoned to the residence.

Judy Sturm and her two children had gone to the next-door neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond K. Anderson at 2750 Arlington.

Another prosecution witness, Clarence V. Kuenning, testified he didn't believe Harvey Sturm was drunk when he drove him home about 2 a.m. after the two had been together for some six hours after getting off work as bread route salesmen.

Drove Around

Kuenning said they had spent some time at a downtown tavern, then went to Walton's Cove, a night spot on North 48th, and later drove around town for an hour before going home.

Kuenning said Sturm had started with a "Black Russian" drink but then switched to beer during the remainder of evening, and "probably had seven or eight beers."

Kuenning said Sturm was "not overly under the influence (of alcohol)" when he got out of car to go into his house.

Kiburz Warns Against Water Diversion Talk

A legislative water study committee was warned Wednesday that talk of water diversion could destroy the citizen unity required to implement Nebraska's proposed state water plan.

"The water plan should not have considered diversion," Max Kiburz of Columbus, general manager of the Loup River Public Power District, told senators.

"That drives people apart."

Kiburz said the framework study for the water plan "infers that Loup River Basin water is available for export to other areas."

But, he suggested, that matter needs further study.

"There are unanswered questions about irrigation needs, the effect of pump irrigation on stream flow and how much water is needed downstream," Kiburz said.

If some diversion proves to be justified, he said, "I am sure people in the Loup Basin would help get the water to other areas rather than let it go to waste."

The water development plan will succeed only "if we have people working together," Kiburz insisted.

"Diversion talk at this time will only pull them apart."

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora, committee chairman, said the framework study only "suggests the possibility" of future diversion.

"That scares us," Kiburz said.

"The plan is a giant step forward that has been needed for a long time . . . but I would not recommend that the Legislature adopt it in full because of the diversion consideration."

State Game Commission Director Willard Barbee told the committee the water plan falls short of providing all the information needed for future development.

Additional investigations should include "comprehensive socio-economic plans for which clear and concise social objectives for water management and development can be established," Barbee said.

Studies should include complete data on existing basic water resources and the impact that "water manipulations" have on social values, he said.

Irrigation also needs more study, he suggested.

The committee will hear more suggestions from invited witnesses Thursday.

Friday has been reserved for testimony from the public, Kremer said. The hearings begin at the Statehouse at 9:30 a.m.

State's Take From Liquor Up $47,000

The Nebraska Liquor Control Commission reported Wednesday a $47,281 increase in revenue from all sources during October over the same month a year ago.

The commission said its total take for the month was $598,517, compared to the $551,236 reported the same month last year.

Total revenue collected so far this year, the commission also reported, amounted to $5,739,662. The total at the same time last year was $5,514,828.

The breakdown in the October revenue included spiritous liquors, $355,448; fortified wines, $15,057; light wines, $17,588; beer, $208,897; license fees, $900; registration fees, $66; shipper permits, $50; and miscellaneous revenue, $508.

TV GUIDES NEW MISSILE

Inspecting a newly-developed Maverick missle is Harold McKee, a Hughes Aircraft Co. technician. The missile has a television camera lens protruding from its nose cone to guide the missile to its target. The Maverick is locked on its target by the pilot before being released, then is guided to the precise spot on which the TV lens is focused. The white hose supplies cooling air to the guidance system. The missle is being produced for the Air Force at the Hughes plant in Tucson, Ariz.

Searcy May Join 3rd District Race

For the first time in a decade Third District Democratic primary voters may have a congressional choice to make in 1972.

Donald Searcy of Kearney, 1970 Democratic nominee for Republican Rep. Dave Martin's Third District seat in the House of Representatives, said Wednesday he is being urged to make the race again next year.

Already filed as a candidate for the Democratic nomination is Ted Reeves of Central City.

The Third District has not had a Democratic congressional primary contest since 1962.

Searcy, a geography professor at Kearney State College, mailed letters last month to 1970 campaign workers, Democratic county chairmen, farm leaders and other Third District residents seeking their advice on whether he should be a candidate once again in 1972.

Recipients of the letters were also asked whether they thought Searcy ought to make a bid for the U.S. Senate nomination next year.

"About one-third of the questionnaires have been returned, and a majority of the workers in the Third District want a Martin-Searcy scrap," Searcy reported Wednesday.

"We plan to have some sound reasoning and good support before we make any commitment," he said.

Searcy had earlier indicated that he and State Sen. Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox had agreed to avoid contesting one another for the same nomination. If both decided to seek national office, one would go for the Senate and the other for the House seat.

Ziebarth has announced his intention to seek the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Searcy told 1970 supporters by letter that campaign financing is a major concern since a new policy adopted by the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges would require him to take a leave of absence without pay on the day he files as a candidate.

If he were to win the nomination, he pointed out, "this means I will have nine months without any income."

Searcy said he would like to have a commitment of at least $5,000 by Feb. 15 if that is possible.

"Our original goal (in 1970) was to remove Dave Martin from Washington so he could come back and run his lumberyard," Searcy said. "I would still like to do that.

"I just happen to be old-fashioned enough not to start another job until we have finished the first one."

Searcy, 38, lost to Martin in 1970 by a 93,705 to 63,698 count. Martin, first elected in 1960, is serving his sixth term as congressman from the sprawling 61-county west-central Third District.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By KINGSBURY SMITH

(Note: William O. Dobler, The Star's editor, is out of town on business. Today's column is by Kingsbury Smith, chief foreign writer for King Features Syndicate.)

ROME — Vice President Sprio T. Agnew is still hoping that he will be President Nixon's re-election running mate in 1972, but he is aware there is a possibility he might be dropped from the ticket. If he is dropped, he will not accept a seat on the U.S. Supreme Court as a payoff, nor is he likely to accept a cabinet post. He will probably enter private business and seek to provide greater financial security and comfort for himself and his family.

However, the vice president believes those who are convinced he is going to be dumped by President Nixon may find themselves as surprised as they were when he was selected by Mr. Nixon as his running mate in 1968.

While President Nixon has not yet informed the vice president whether he will be retained or dropped on the re-election ticket, the uncertainty of what will happen appears to be very much on Mr. Agnew's mind. If he is dropped, his associates feel it will be a sacrificial offering to the liberal elements in the Republican party who consider him too reactionary, provocative, divisive and unmalleable. There are others who question his vote-getting power in both the 1968 presidential election and in the 1970 congressional and state elections.

In the former, the Republican ticket polled considerably less than a majority of the total popular votes cast for Nixon, Humphrey and George Wallace. Critics claimed that in the 1970 congressional elections, Agnew showed weak pulling power in the states he stumped. The Republicans gained two additional seats in the Senate, but nominal control of that body was left in the hands of the Dmocrats. In the House, the Democrats won nine additional seats, giving them 255 of the 435 total. The Democrats also won 11 governorships from the Republicans, changing what had been a Republican advantage of 32 to 18 to a Democratic lead of 29 to 21.

While the Democrats contended the '70 elections were a setback for the GOP, President Nixon and Agnew claimed it was a victory since it strengthened the President's position in the Senate and the off-year loss in the House was less than usual.

As recently as last month, the President praised Agnew for doing "a fine job," and urged members of the administration to defend him against his critics.

While this might be interpreted as an indication that Nixon intends to keep Agnew on the re-election ticket, the latter realizes the President is a political animal and that if he felt he needed someone else as running mate, he probably would not hesitate to drop him.

What does distress this self-made son of a one-time pushcart peddling Greek immigrant father is the continuous effort of the left-wing and liberal eastern press to portray him as an extreme right, racist, gaff-prone political nincompoop.

He admtis he has made some gaffs and says he felt like kicking himself every time he did, but he doesn't believe he deserves the virtual character assassination treatment to which he has been subjected by the liberal press and TV commentators because he dared to challenge their views.

As for his alleged racism, he points out that as a Maryland County executive in the early 60s, he sponsored and won passage of the first local accommodation law south of the Mason-Dixon line.

As for political ability, Agnew was considered an outstanding and progressive administrator as governor and county executive in Maryland. He put through the largest tax increase in the state's history to pay for long-needed reforms. He also sponsored one of the first and toughest anti-pollution laws that was enacted in any state in the nation. He raised educational spending to 57 per cent of his budget and carried out a thorough reform of the police force.

The tall, handsome, calmly cool vice president has been described by his critics as being icily aloof. He has impressed me as a rational, pragmatic man imbued with old-fashioned American ideals.

Mayor's Choices Excellent

Two weeks back the City Council voted 7-0 each time to deny three separate zoning change requests — in unusual and unanimous, of late, agreement with the recommendations of the City-County Planning Commission and Planning Director Douglas Brogden.

The rare quality of the concensus balanced against a number of prior council votes that were at odds with planning commission opinion, points out the divergence of zoning philosophies generally held by the planning commissioners on the one hand and at least a determined minority of the council on the other.

We don't believe that the council, the representative, elected body, should always agree with planning commission recommendations purely as a matter of practice. But the commission, we believe, has stood on sound planning principles and has acted on behalf of the best interests of the community, their recommendations in line with the thinking of the majority of Lincolnites. We think that any effort to weigh the commission toward a different viewpoint should be held suspect.

Councilman F. Bob Sikyta was the only member of the council to vote against the two reappointments and one new appointment to the planning commission offered by Mayor Schwartzkopf. Sikyta felt that a member of the Goals and Policies Committee, which has been charged with the preliminary work on revising the city's comprehensive plan, should be appointed to fill one of the three vacancies. He also argued that someone "in the field," for example a developer or an appraiser or perhaps a Chamber of Commerce representative, should be considered.

It should be pointed out that all present members of the planning commission were invited to assist in developing the thinking of the Goals and Policies Committee and several have taken a direct part in the committee's function.

We further doubt the wisdom of creating a developer's seat, or building trades' seat, or chamber seat, or what have you, on the planning commission. The commission membership should not be categorized.

Mayor Schwartzkopf in his appointments wisely recognized the valuable planning commission experience of Mrs. J. Edmunds Miller and State Sen. Jerry Warner and the potential for distinguished service of new member Louis Shackelford, a retailer, and the council majority is to be commended for confirming them.

Racism Dead In Politics?

At his inauguration, Georgia's Gov. Jimmy Carter served notice on his state that his administration would serve all the people — black and white — and that racism as an operative principle of government and politics was dead.

Carter was joined in the new breed of southern moderate politicians Tuesday by the election as governor in Mississippi of white attorney Bill Waller, who told supporters at a victory celebration that the state had "witnessed a historical transition . . . the campaign was void of any emotionalism or any negative political persuasion. Starting in the near future, racism will no longer be a part of our political spectrum."

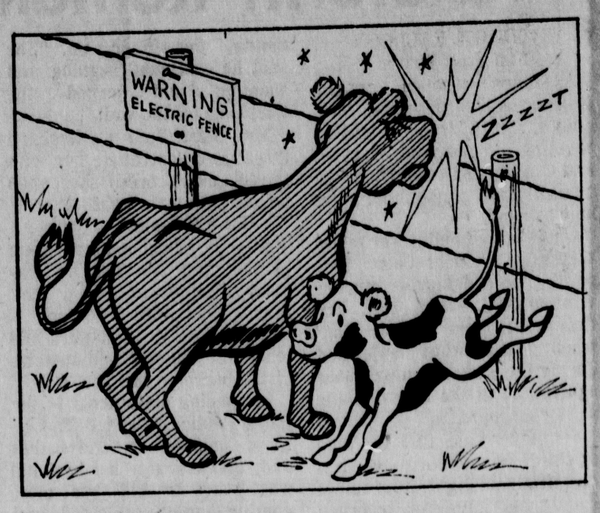
Waller's victory statement sounds all the more credible in light of the observations of Charles Evers, his black opponent. Swamped 3-1 by Waller, Evers nevertheless could say that "Bill ran one of the cleanest races of any white gubernatorial candidate I've ever seen. He kept down the tension. We both tried to change the attitudes of Mississippi."

The fact that he, as a black man, ran for office "without being shot, without being killed," has changed Mississippi and "it'll never be the same again," Evers said.

It takes more than rhetoric to effect change, but Carter is living proof that more than that lies within the southern moderate. With Waller's election and Evers' post-election attitude, there is similar hope for Mississippi. Southern blacks will argue, and with some justification, that the election of such as Waller will not mean that the old divisions and problems will immediately vanish. The change in attitude of the power structure, however, appears to be significant.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country



The fog and drizzle continue making the completion of the milo harvest rather difficult. After so many days of dreary wet days, the larks burst into song last evening just as the sun broke through the clouds. No doubt they were fooled into thinking the past weeks of clouds and gray days were winter. They were jubilant last night, singing every bit as joyously as they do in the spring, until the last rays of the sunlight disappeared. They no doubt thought it was a short winter.

I thought as they sang last night that very soon they would have to revise their thinking because the first blast of frigid air from the north can come any day now. It always seems to be the worst . . . the first cold seems so cold and the first snowflake almost drift-size. Perhaps that is a sign that comes with the first half century of living subtly telling one that he is growing old.

What to do during the long evenings of winter now becomes a question. I was so surprised to see pictures of crocheted articles making a comeback. Years ago crocheted headrests for chairs along with armrest covers were used in most homes to protect the pieces of furniture. These same pieces were illustrated in a modern room arrangement pictured in a leading magazine.

At the time they disappeared, they were labeled as old-fashioned. Now they are laebeled high fashion. I don't crochet but a long, cold winter could drive me to pursuing almost any new hobby.

I decided to get the peony bed cleaned up before the cold season gets a grip on the Midwest. I snipped the dried-branches and stems at ground level and burned all the stalks to prevent any diseases getting started in the bushes.

Each spring when the shoots are a couple of inches above ground, I spray them with a Bordeaux water mixture. This and burning the dead stalks in the fall seem to keep the peony bushes in good health. I have never had buds that blacken and refuse to open or leaves that become diseased and discolored during the long growing season.

Roses, I have decided, are too much work. I still have the ones I set out a number of years ago and they reward me with lovely blossoms every year but mounding them up every fall, pruning and spraying during the growing season are such a chore. This autumn I am going to let them go through the winter without a protective mound of dirt around them. Those that don't survive will make one fewer to care for next year as some were getting rather anemic and scrawny looking this year, anyway.

The Farmer is stringing an electric fence around the wheat so the cattle can be turned into another field of milo stalks. If he doesn't get the fence up, the cattle will go on the green wheat and the milo field will not get cleaned up before the snow falls and covers it.

It doesn't take long to put up an electric fence and it doesn't take the cattle long to find out what this kind of fence is. The very small calves that brush up against it give a quick jump and snort then run in the opposite direction. They learn at a very young age that the delicate silver wire that surrounds the field has some terrible power that sends some uncomfortable surge of needles through the entire body. Likewise, they learn when there is no electricity going through the wires because of trouble along the fencing and soon begin getting under the wires.

Fortunately man can outwit the beast but there are times when the critters almost have the last laugh in the game of wits.

Animal World

Lincoln, Neb.

"Pets"—what a nice word. It means that children and some grown-ups are interested in carying for the birds and animals which God created when He made His beautiful new world.

My Dad gave me my first pet, a tiny yellow duck. It soon followed me everywhere, much to a very small boy's grief. In one thoughtless moment, I ran into the kitchen. The baby duck could run only so fast and just as it hopped into the doorway, the closing screen door slammen shut.

There have been dogs and cats and their offspring all through the lives of myself, my children and my grandchildren. Last week I made one of my cross-country trips to the big white house on the hill, where four pet-owners also arrived.

There was Mike the brown shepherd. He came to me often, lifting gentle eyes, then licking my fingers, offering his friendship. There were two gray poodles and one white one. "Blue" needs no invitation to jump up and snuggle against a person. On the other side, "Felicia." Then "Hyacinth"—she doesn't mix. If she can't be with a person alone, she goes to another empty chair. Pets have definite personalities—friendly, jealous, reserved.

The center of attention was the fluff of snow-white, blue-eyed kitten. He and Blue wrestled, clawed, leaped and chased in complete joy, until exhausted then sprawled cozily together in sleep.

Anyone who thinks pets don't have personalities has never had the exciting opportunity of watching the human characteristics of their pets.

Enough Christians?

Lincoln, Neb.

I feel I must respond to J.W.C.'s letter of Oct. 29 concerning Christians and government. I agree that perhaps we need another Abe Lincoln or George Washington in government. They were men who worked hard and turned to prayer. But we need to go a step further.

Good government can legislate action, but only to a degree; they cannot legislate feelings. This is where the Christians and the church need to enter in. To accomplish this and still maintain separation of church and state, the church must teach moral values, ethics and justice. People then, as Christians, Protestants and Catholics together, need to be the Salt and the Light, getting a nickel's worth of justice whenever they can. This also happens but not to a high enough degree.

J.W.C. closed his letter by asking if we have enough Christians in America today. I have wondered about that, too, and what will happen if there aren't.

Three Groups

Lincoln, Neb.

During the course of our history, there have been three rather small societies, whether good or evil, as far as this writer knows, that have changed the course of the government, and not one of the three numbered over 300 souls.

First, the Sons of Liberty during the period of the Revolution planned numerous confrontations with British authority.

Second, the Ku Klux Klan after the Civil War rode roughshod over the newly freed slaves, creating the necessity for the 14th Amendment and the first Civil Rights Act of 1871.

Third, the Weathermen of the Students for a Democratic Society. By their activism in terrorist tactics, knowing their number was too small to politically change things, they have swung the government in five years from a liberalism to a strict conservatism which they hope will be intolerable to the governed.

Armistice Day

Lincoln, Neb.

I am one person who certainly agrees with Ethel F. Heidelk about how people seem to ignore November 11, Armistice Day.

My mother was 18 years old in 1918 and told us children all about World War I. She had a brother who enlisted and was fortunate enough to come back alive. She knew all the wonderful songs that were written during those years. Our favorite was "Over There."

I was not born until 1924, but I shall still hang the flag out every November 11, and I hope many others will do the same.

Decision Questioned

Lincoln, Neb.

The recent decision on Oct. 26 by the State Liquor Commission to permit the transfer of a liquor license owned by Victor Groh of 146 South Ninth Street to Jack Mettlen of Hideaway at 27th and Nebraska Highway is beyond our comprehension.

The decision is especially appalling when the following facts are considered:

(1) Twice the Police Department has recommended denial.

(2) Twice have petitions of over 500 signatures been submitted supporting denial of the permit.

(3) Twice has the City Council unanimously vetoed the request.

We would like to know if the State Liquor Commission, appointed by the governor's' office, feels they are beholden only to themselves. Are they not held responsible to the governor who has been elected to represent all the people?

Why should Ed Robinson of Omaha or Ivan Armstrong of Ogallala or Ray Osborn of Lincoln decide our due process of government is not valid? Do we need to remind them the meaning of democracy—"a government that is run by the people who live under it."

The people of south Lincoln have been denied their citizens' rights. We strongly recommend that Governor Exon review this decision immediately.

Gun-Control Law Has Rough Going

WASHINGTON — Gun Controls—The Nixon administration is working in the wings of Congress to weaken the 1968 gun control law, which was passed following the assassinations of the Kennedy brothers. The backstage operators are White House aide Clark MacGregor and Treasury aide Gordon Liddy. The latter lobbied against the bill before he moved into the Treasury Department. And MacGregor as a Minnesota congressman tried to gut the bill on behalf of a cartridge company that employed many of his constituents. Meanfhile, the gun lobbyists have been granted two private White House meetings.

☆ ☆ ☆

Cambodian Controversy—A controversy has erupted in the backrooms of the Pentagon over military shipments to Cambodia. President Nixon and Congress alike are sensitive over the presence of U.S. military men in Cambodia. But the generals warn that millions worth of military equipment may be wasted or pilfered unless there are Americans on the spot to supervise the distribution and to advise the Cambodians how to use it. The generals wanted a large delivery team sent to Cambodia but offered to settle for a 100-man team. Defense Secretary Mel Laird, however, turned them down and cut the team in half.

Aid to Chiang—The U.S. has been trying quietly to cut back military aid to Chiang Kai-shek. U.S. officials have suggested in their secret discussions that old Chiang has enough cash stashed away to pay more of his own military bills. He's holding the money to finance his dream of re-conquering the Chinese mainland. We have examined some of the Pentagon's secret working papers, which contain this fascinating statement: "We do know privately that the GRC (Chiang's government) has considerable sums of money in special funds, mostly marked for contingenvy use in mainland recovery. The possibility that these funds would be used for routine military expenditures is remote, and they would be disbursed only as a last resort."

Ladies' Man? —Despite his high voice and balding pate, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is emerging as the female favorite in the 1972 presidential race. Reason: He's gaining a reputation for being totally without bias against women. At a recent strategy session, for example, McGovern was working out the details of a speech on women's ights. "Why not say, "My first appointment to the Supreme Court will be a woman°" some one suggested. Someone else objected that the first appointment might have to be a Chief Justice. "Why shouldn't the Chief Justice be a woman?" was McGovern's instant response.

Big Clyde—White House aides, with staunch conservative leanings, are positively seething over the idea that John Connally might replace Spiro Agnew as vice president. They forecast an uproar from the right if Agnew should be dropped from the ticket. Connally, as a protege of ex-President Lyndon Johnson, is particularly repugnant to them.

Johnson Memoirs Defend Vietnam Policy; Insists Kennedy Would Have Done Same

LONDON—On March 30, 1967, President Joxhnson had all the Democratic state chairmen to the White House for a reception. As each shook the President's hand, a photograph was taken — to be sent to the chairman as a useful political memento.

At a dinner that night in the Washington Hilton, Johnson spoke with great effect of what he had done for the poor and the disadvantaged of America. Suddenly he said he had come to the point in his speech where Mrs. Johnson had told him to stop, but he was going on. He spoke about Vietnam, calling the war a vital defense of freedom and denouncing the critics as traitors.

When he finished, all but two of the people in the room rose and applauded. Those two never received the picture taken of them with the President.

That characteristic vignette makes a useful corrective to the statesmanlike portrait Lyndon Johnson paints of himself in the Vietnam passages of his memoirs. He was not calm and detached on the war; he was fiercely committed to military victory, and he could be petty or vindictive toward anyone who disagreed.

As excerpted in the newspapers, the memoirs are a sad exercise in Johnsonian self-justification, showing no signs of new insight or regret on Vietnam. Among other things, the former President quotes from such men as Robert McNamara and Sen. J. W. Fulbright to show that they once favored his war policy. But of course all that really shows is that they eventually recognized the destructive cost of the war, while it is doubtful that he ever did.

But his principal effort, by way of enlisting retroactive supporters, is to suggest that President Kennedy would have sent American combat forces to Vietnam had he lived. He quotes a second-hand newspaper account of a 1961 Fulbright-Kennedy meeting and says it pointed up what everyone in the administration knew: "That keeping our word might mean spilling our blood."

Then Johnson tries to associate President Kennedy with a 1961 report by Gen. Maxwell Taylor that urged a U.S. ground combat commitment. Kennedy never rejected that proposal, the memoirs say; he just deferred action on it. But when a president does not approve a plan, not even after two years, he has rejected it.

John Kennedy, when he came to consider Vietnam, was profoundly skeptical of military advisers who urged the commitment of American combat forces. As Arthur Schlesinger has persuasively argued in the New York Review of Books, Kennedy had had the same advice in regard to the Bay of Pigs and Laos — and rejected it. And he also knew very well the history of the French war in Indo-China.

No one can prove what President Kennedy would or would not have done in Vietnam. But those who contend that he would have followed the Johnson course of massive American intervention have a good deal of Kennedy history to overcome, and they can hardly make the case with evidence as feeble and self-serving as appears in the newspaper extracts of the Johnson memoirs.

The whole Johnson account of Vietnam can be measured against the mass of historical material already available. For example, Don Oberdorfer's superlative new book on the 1968 Tet offensive, "Tet!" leaves threadbare Johnson's assertion that he knew all about it ahead of time.

☆ ☆ ☆

But it is in a wider sense that the reality of the Vietnam war—and of its reflection in the Johnson White House — is missing from these memoirs.

Reality was a president who took the United States into a major land war without ever telling his people that he was doing so.

Reality was the decision to drop more bombs on small peasant country than fell on Europe in World War II—and then to be surprised and regretful when it turned out that there had been fearful civilian casualties.

Reality was the widespread use of deadly herbicides for the first time in any war, despite scientific warnings that there could be lasting damage to the vegetation and the people of Vietnam.

Reality was the arrogance of Washington's assumption of the right to decide the mode of life—and death—in a wholly different society thousands of miles away.

Reality was a president who long resisted arguments for bombing halts and real peace when he saw public opinion turning against him changed his line and told Clark Clifford: "I've got to get me a peace proposal."

Self-justification is an inevitable human trait, and a man as big and proud as Lyndon Johnson could hardly be expected to suppress it. But by returning to the defense of his Vietnam policies, he only reminds us of the years that so deeply wounded the presidency and the country.

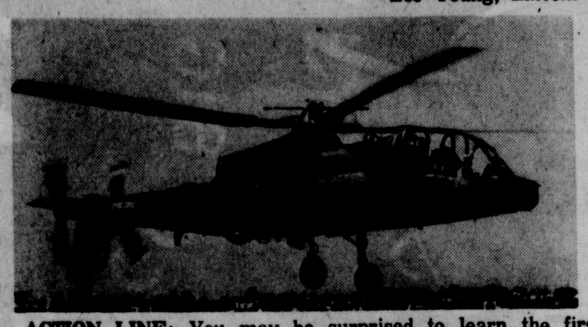
When was the first helicopter used by the military? —Leo Young, Lincoln



ACTION LINE: You may be surprised to learn the first helicopter was used by American forces in World War II. The Sikorski R4 was used in 1943 in Europe by the Air Commandos. Regular training courses began in 1944.

In 1950, use of the Bell OH13 helicopter began and this was the first small chopper bought by the military in large quantities. It was widely used in Korea.

Please explain a letter that appeared in the Star's letters to the editor column. Did Mr. Paul Stewart mean that each envelope should have first class postage and then several envelopes mailed in a box postage free when he wrote the following: Place all Christmas cards in a box or package and mail with first-class postage to . . . (address). It is not necessary to place stamps on the box or package. —Ann Bassett, Ord

ACTION LINE: E. Paul Stewart, projct coordinator for Vietnam Mail Call which is now conducting its seventh Christmas card program for U.S. servicemen in Vietnam, explains that cards and letters sent to Mail Call for distribution may be sent without separate postage for each card. The cards are placed in a box that carries first class postage.

The organization then opens your package, removes the cards you sent and encloses them—again individually postage free—in packages that will be mailed to various parts of Vietnam for distribution there.

Postage is paid on the bulk packages, not on individual cards, explains Stewart. For example, if you sent the organization a package containing 50 Christmas cards, those 50 cards will be sent to 50 different United Service Organizations, hospitals and military units in packages that will also contain letters and cards from other persons.

Since the program was started in 1965, the organization has sent more than a million letters, Christmas and Easter cards to Vietnam servicemen. If you would like to send a gift package, write Vietnam Mail Call, Inc., P.O. Box 3104, Columbus, Ga. 31903. Be sure you send the cards and letters prior to Dec. 1 after you receive an address from the Georgia organization.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Librarian's Hate Of Motorcycles Turns Into Love

By ROBERT PETERSON

As we grow older, most of us come to dislike motorcycles. We associate them with wild, uncontrolled youths and tend to dislike not only the leather-jacketed riders but the vehicle itself with its loud, raucous roar and its arrogant manner of maneuvering in and out of automobile traffic.

Probably many of us have said we actually hate motorcycles. That's exactly what Mrs. Mayra Scarborough, 55, used to say. "I really hated them," said this woman who works as a librarian for a pharmaceutical company in Nutley, N.J. and is the wife of a retired businessman.

But her daughter owned a small Japanese motorcycle and occasionally urged her mother to try it. One day Mrs. Scarborough succumbed—took the cycle on a trial spin and couldn't believe what an exhilarating adventure it was to whiz effortlessly along the highway, with the wind caressing her face and experiencing a sense of speed and adventure. In short, she was hooked.

What happened next is incredible. I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't checked with her family and find the story is entirely true. Mrs. Scarborough went out and bought a motorcycle for herself. Shortly thereafter she was invited to present a paper on library science at a conference in San Francisco. So she packed some camping gear, hopped on her new motorcycle, and proceeded to spend the next few weeks cycling to the Golden Gate city. She avoided hotels and motels, spending her nights snug in a sleeping bag or small tent along the highways, in forests, or at campgrounds.

She not only made it unscathed to San Francisco, but she presented her paper right on schedule at the conference. Then after a few days of rest she hopped on her motorcycle and rode all the way back to New Jersey—logging 11,000 miles on this remarkable roundtrip journey.

This must certainly go down in the annals of geriatrics as the greatest middle-aged adventure on record. Can anyone top this?

As we grow older we may grow paunchy and flabby. Yet we like to kid ourselves into thinking this is only a temporary condition and that our colleagues are in far worse shape.

Author Edward Streeter once summed it up by saying, "There are times when I catch a side view of myself in the bathroom mirror that would be depressing is I didn't know I was going to get myself back in shape shortly. Of course a lot of it is just the way one happens to be standing. By taking a deep breath and sucking in hard, my figure isn't bad . . . A lot of my contemporaries are in much worse shape . . . I used to go to a gym every afternoon, but the sight of others my age depressed me so that I gave it up . . . I must arrange to start in again—if I can ever find the time." How true.

This Week's Health Tip

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska State Medical Association:

Emphysema is a disease of the lungs. Symptoms include shortness of breath or difficult breathing. It is estimated that about one million persons in the United States have emphysema.

The disease makes the lungs lose their elasticity. Some carbon dioxide remains in the lungs after each exhalation taking up space usually occupied by inhaled air. The patient breathes much harder to get a normal amount of oxygen into his lungs.

It is not known exactly what causes emphysema. It is commonly found among person's who either have difficulty with their breathing, as in asthma, or have one of the lung diseases which used to go with dusty occupations like mining, milling or grinding. There is also considerable evidence that emphysema can be caused by tobacco smoking and air pollution, and these can aggravate existing emphysema.

"Without Marx Or Jesus"

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

With the possible exception of some of the more paranoid adherents of the radical right and left, most Americans will probably greet with amazement, Jean-Francois Revel's pronouncement that revolution is alive and well, and living (only) in the United States. Is it tenable that a country that prides itself on its stability, consensus politics and centerism (and is subsequently accused of mediocrity and counter-revolutionary tendencies) is playing host to the spectre of revolution? Quite so, states Revel, who believes that the time for writing of the "possibility" of revolution is past.

In his highly-publicized book, "Without Marx Or Jesus" (Doubleday), the French journalist and political observer presents the thesis that the reality of revolution — and, in this case, world revolution — is upon us; and the U.S. is the testing ground upon which the movement will succeed or fail. The second world revolution (the first occurred during the latter years of the 18th century in England, France and the U.S.), if effective, will result in the subordination of national interests, and the establishment of a world government. The sought-after goals of social and economic equality will then follow in due time, and a world that is presently headed towards disaster due to imperialism and authoritarianism, will be salvaged.

But what does Revel mean by revolution? His concern is not with violent coup d'etats, political assassination, incendiary rhetoric, nor any of the devices commonly employed by radicals in an effort to change the existing order of things. Revel's revolution hinges on a clear-eyed and cool-headed perception of reality as it exists in the political, social and economic spheres. For Revel, a revolutionary action is any deed (not necessarily violent) which effectively brings about change. This change need not be immediate; and its achievement must be sought through practical means and goals. Thus, since every situation is different, practicality dictates flexibility in revolutionary planning. Revel would eliminate all revolutionary models, all reliance on theoretical abstractions (whether those of Marx, Mao or Marcuse). In effect, each revolution would become an invention, taking its cues from pragmatic leaders who are not afraid to redirect its course.

It appears to Revel that the U.S. is the only country in which such a revolution is plausible. Neither Western Europe (where radicals stick to impossible alternatives and sabotage reform in the name of orthodoxy), nor the Communist nations (where authoritarianism undermines change) nor the countries of the Third World (nations too wedded to the past and nationalistic feelings) can long sustain a truly revolutionary impulse. Only in America where the youth are more concerned with "real" issues than empty theories, and where an atmosphere of dissent has created the required state of tension — can a revolution which implies the rejection of old values in every aspect of culture, occur.

The author is to be applauded for dealing a death-blow to the illusion of an all-encompassing American mediocrity advanced by many Europeans. However, in abolishing one myth, he has created another. America just can't be as good as Revel envisions it to be. Oversimplifications abound — one questions the extent to which American youth are committed to "real issues," and the degree to which the free flow of information exists in this country. And when, a la Marx Revel divides the country into "two antagonistic camps of approximately equal size" with "the odds in favor of the dissenters rather than . . . the conservatives," one wishes to send him back to the archives.

On the whole, however, Revel's book is highly commendable and provocative reading. The author rejuvenates theories of revolution that have frequently gotten lost in the shuffle — theories which are crucial to the comprehension of a most abstruse phenomenon. And, if Revel can frequently be found guilty of merely relating the obvious, he may be forgiven; for at a time when fulminations from every quarter obscure the obvious, its statement may in and of itself, be quite an accomplishment.

Nary A Dull Moment In Suburbia

The hunting season — for pheasants, quail and deer, that is—will soon be upon us, and that means the fields will become battlegrounds, with the fowl and game attempting to outsmart the human beings, and vice versa.

Saturday will mark the first day of another season which always is eagerly anticipated by the sportsmen—and on that day they will be forced to choose between enjoying the opening day of the pheasant season or the last home game this season for the Cornhuskers.

We know many suburban residents are expecting out-of-town and out-of-state guests on both counts, but first let's reflect on some suburban happenings that already have taken place.

The Trendwood home of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Rack has been active with many festivities and comings and goings recently.

It all started last Friday evening when Dr. and Mrs. Rack helped their son, William Grauer, celebrate his birthday. The special event called for an evening out on the town—at the Elks Club, to be exact. Also included at the family dinner were Mrs. Grauer and the birthday celebrant brother, Mike Rack.

Then came Saturday evening, when Dr. and Mrs. Rack invited 10 couples to their home for a Nebraska victory celebration. The evening began with cocktails and a buffet—and then the group gathered 'round the player piano for an old-fashioned sing-in and dance-in.

The guest list included Mr. and Mrs. Van Ashmun, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Worick, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Thornton-Trump, Dr. and Mrs. William Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Jack White of Beatrice, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Cromwell, Mr. and Mrs. Ely Myerson, Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Epp, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Creager, and Mr. and Mrs. James Austin.

The partying did not stop on Saturday evening, by any means. You see, on Sunday evening, Dr. and Mrs. Rack served as host and hostess to their couples' birthday group. The festivity took the form of a fondue party for 14, and the birthday guests of honor were Mrs. Nadine Crownse and Art Jones.

Earlier this week the Dr. and Mrs. Rack entertained a very special guest—Dr. Joe Merrigan of Rochester, N.Y. Dr. Merrigan was Dr. Rack's first PhD student at the University of Nebraska and was in the area to conduct interviews on the NU campus for Eastman-Kodak.

Travel abroad is always exciting, especially when it is for a special reason. Mrs. Hadsell R. Stoner left her Maple Village home about a month ago for a month-long stay in Bitburge, Germany.

The piece de resistance of the trip was a visit with Mrs. Stoner's son-in-law and daughter, Staff Sgt. and Mrs. Nelson Sabin, as well as her four grandchildren. S-Sgt. Sabin is a career man with the U.S. Air Force and he and his family have been stationed in Bitburge for the past two years and five months. The Sabins will continue to reside in Germany for another year or so.

Mrs. Stoner who had not seen her family since they moved to Germany, discovered that her grandchildren, including Tim who is 10, Mandy Lynn who is 6, Mike who is 5 and Billy who is just three, had grown considerably. Mrs. Stoner returned on Monday.

November Bride-Elect Is Honored

We doubt if Miss Vicki Hulbert, whose marriage to Lewis Holmea is planned for Nov. 20, plans to spend all of her spare moments in the kitchen, but a kitchen shower delights every bride-elect who may or may not know all about appliances, utensils, cookbooks, and such and things.

Miss Hulbert now has quite a supply of kitchen accessories. She received them at a party and a kitchen shower given in her honor when Mrs. John Bills entertained at her home on Tuesday evening.

Study Group Is Formed

A new study group has been formed by the members of the American Association of University Women. The group, called A Dollar's Worth, will have its first meeting on Thursday evening, Nov. 4, when Mrs. Arthur Welty will serve as hostess for the 7:30 o'clock session.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am married to the kind of man who can never be faithful to just one woman. I have left him several times because of this, but I always took him back because of the children. Tell me, Abby, is a woman a fool to stay married to a man for the sake of her children?

MEADOWDALE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: A man's faithfulness (or the absence of it) is only a part of his total behavior. What kind of man is he otherwise? What kind of husband is he? What kind of father has he been? Has he been discreet? Do the children love and respect him? How much have his extra curricular affairs affected your family life? Many a woman has stayed married to a man for the sake of her children when she should have left him for the same reason.

DEAR ABBY: I love to cook, and my specialty is Hawaiian chicken. Last night we had company for dinner and everyone raved about my chicken, whereupon my husband launched into an assault on my mother's cooking. He stressed the point that, altho my mother was a "farm girl," she never learned how to cook a chicken. Then he described with much exaggeration and ridicule the way my mother's chicken came out.

I was terribly hurt and embarrassed. I'll admit my mother was not a very good cook, but she tried. Besides, HIS mother was no better, but I wouldn't dream of ridiculing her cooking.

Later I let my husband know how I felt, and he said he thought it was "funny." Is there something wrong with my sense of humor? I don't like people laughing at my mother. I'd like your opinion.

PUZZLED IN VERMONT

DEAR PUZZLED: Some people don't care whom they ridicule as long as they get a laugh. Your husband sounds like that kind of person. You let him know you didn't like it. Good for you! In the future I think he'll be more careful.

DEAR ABBY: How are you? Nobody ever asks you how YOU are, they just start right in by telling you their troubles.

I was taught that when one writes a letter of a personal nature, it is only common courtesy to inquire about the health of the person to whom he is writing, and to omit this small formality is extremely rude.

So I would like to make up for all who have failed you in this regard and ask, how are you Abby?

RESPECTFUL IN MENDOCINO

DEAR RESPECTFUL: I'm just great. And grateful, thank you.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

The cautious declarer is unceasingly busy trying to protect himself against any distribution of the adverse cards that might undo him.

Here is a typical case. A club is led and declarer sees that there are no possible losers except in trumps. He can lose a trump trick and make the slam, but he cannot afford to lose two trump tricks.

So South gives thought to the trump combinations the opponents may have that might defeat him. Obviously, if the trumps are divided 2-2 or 3-1, there is no chance of losing the slam.

The only distribution that can endanger the hand is a 4-0 division. This can occur in only two ways — either opponent may have all four trumps.

If West has them, there is no problem. Whenever South plays the ace East shows out and sooner or later declarer leads a low heart to the jack to restrict himself to one trump loser.

But if East has the four trumps and the ace is led. South is in trouble. East's Q-10-9 sitting over the J-7-6 are good for two tricks and South must go down.

Since the 4-0 distribution is the only one that can put the slam in jeopardy, declarer tries to find a method of play — a safety play — to guard against this possibility.

He wins the club lead in dummy and plays the five of hearts. If East produces the nine, ten, or queen, South wins with the ace and cannot lose more than one trump trick if he plays properly.

If East, on the five, plays the deuce, South plays the three as a safety measure. If West wins the trick, that closes the door to further trump losers, while if West shows out, South again cannot lose more than one trick.

State Claims No Liability In Dispute Over North Platte Wild West Show

By United Press International

The State Justice Department decided Wednesday Nebraska is not authorized to pay out any money on a $15,000 claim filed by the producer of the wild west show at North Platte.

Montie Montana, the show's producer, has contended the state owes him the money as its share of legal fees resulting from a suit filed against him by the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Assistant Attorney General Mel Kammerlohr said the decision the state could not honor such a claim came after a meeting with State Game Commission Director Willard Barbee, and representatives from North Platte and the State Department of Economic Development.

"We take a position we aren't authorized to pay legal fees for any suit brought outside the state of Nebraska," Kammerlohr said.

The next step in the matter, he added, would hopefully be a meeting with Montana to discuss the situation and see if something could be worked out.

Montana claims the state should have come to his aid in the suit. The circus had contended it has exclusive rights to use the name "Buffalo Bill Wild West Show and Congress of Rough Riders."

Montana was given permission to use the name for his show under the terms of a contract between him and the state of Nebraska to produce the North Platte event.

Game Commission Director Willard Barbee said the rights to the name were investigated through the copyright office prior to its inclusion in the contract. No prior claims to the title were turned up in investigations, he said.

Still left in question after the Wednesday meeting was the status of a $5,000 check written by Montana to the state, which was returned for insufficient funds.

The check was sent through on two different occasions, but was returned each time.

Kammerlohr said the matter of the check would probably come up if Montana agrees to meet with him and other state officials.

NOTICE
OFFER FOR FEDERAL-AID SECONDARY HIGHWAY HEARING

Pursuant to Federal laws and regulations the County Board of Commissioners of Lancaster County and the Nebraska Department of Roads offers an opportunity for a combined corridor and design public hearing on highway Project No. S-551(7) described as beginning at a point approximately 1½ miles west of Davey, Nebraska, near the southeast corner of Section 23, T12N-R6E, thence northerly along the existing county road a distance of approximately 2 miles to a point near the northeast corner of Section 14-T12N-R6E.

The County Board and the Nebraska Department of Roads are required to solicit and consider fully a wide range of factors in determining highway locations and highway designs. Proposals of public and private interests will be extensively coordinated. A report detailing the effect of this project on the local environment is submitted to Federal and State Agencies that may have an interest in the proposed improvement. This report is available upon request.

Therefore, the County Board of Commissioners of Lancaster County before giving its advise thereon extends an opportunity for a public hearing regarding this matter. If a public hearing is desired, a written request should be made to the County Clerk of Lancaster County, at Lincoln, Nebraska, on or before the 25th day of November, 1971. In the event of a request for a public hearing is made, further notice of the time and place of such hearing will be given.

If a request for a hearing is not received, as herein stated, the County Board will complete its study of the matter and will give its advice thereon. You are requested to post this NOTICE in a conspicuous public place for the purpose of giving all political or governmental subdivisions or public corporations in your county an opportunity to know of this matter and to request a hearing, if desired.

JOURNAL-STAR WANT ADS BRING RESULTS—473-7451

POSTCARD by Stan Lindsay

In the warm afternoon, tea and sherry are served in the great, ornate rotunda of the Palace Hotel in Madrid.

A stringed orchestra plays, slow and dippy—one of those gloomy groups you find in grand hotels of Europe. The violin player saws, tossing his hair out of his eyes; the piano player looks as though he'd lost everything at the races.

It fills the room with melancholy. It's enough to drive you to drink. (Maybe that's the idea.)

I was listening to them murder Agustin Lara's "Madrid" when who should come over but Bill Harrah of Reno.

☆ ☆ ☆

Bill Harrah is the biggest casino operator in Nevada. (His press agents are ordered to see that he is never referred to as the biggest gambler in the State. A job like trying to keep the papers from calling Nixon the President.)

He collects antique cars. Dozens of them. Rare items like 30-year-old Rolls Royces. The company made only 10. He has two of them.

I said: "Bill, this town used to have the oldest taxi fleet in the whole world. Maybe you could find out what happened to them."

☆ ☆ ☆

When all the rest of Europe was recovering, Spain had not got over the civil war.

The Madrid taxi fleet had been patched and repatched. The average model dated about 1923. There were English cars I never heard of. They puffed and panted. Replacement parts were hand-machined.

What happened to them when the new Spanish SEATS (a Fiat) took their place?

There were few consumer goods. Cigarettes were sold one at a time from an open package. Stores sold one needle and one length of thread.

Everything was rationed, including electricity.

A joke of the day was of an American prison director visiting a Spanish prison.

The Spanish director said: "We are very modern. We have even installed an electric chair for executions."

At this point, they heard a man yelling, "Ouch!"

The Spanish director said "Our only problem is we sometimes run out of our electricity quota. And we have to finish them off with candles."

☆ ☆ ☆

It's warm November now in Madrid. Green Mediterranean melons are in season from here to Athens. Angulas, the baby eels that look like short strands of spaghetti, are in season. They come in brown clay pots, so hot the olive oil is bubbling.

There are little clams now. Done in olive oil, wired with garlic enough to blow a bank safe.

I said: "Bill, why don't we go in the dining room and have a coffee and brandy?"

But the maitre d'hotel looked shocked. Even after meals you don't take coffee in the dining room. You have it served in the rotunda.

Back to face the music. (The musicians were now destroying Lara's "Granada."

☆ ☆ ☆

A couple of strikes are going on. There are unions in Spain — run by the government. Strikes are illegal.

A Madrid friend said: "But they let them go on. If they don't get out of hand. Because nothing ever happens in a strike anyway."

What will happen when Franco goes? That's what worries the Spanish businessman. "No matter what your politics are or were, Spain is a better place to live. Compared to those old days, it is like being lifted from poverty to riches. Can somebody else keep this prosperity going? We don't know."

Inmates Offered Psychiatric Service

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Regional Center is moving to expand its psychiatric services to the State Penal Complex by providing direct services within the penal institutions, the director of medical services for the State Public Institutions Department said Wednesday.

"We have the expertise," said Dr. Robert G. Osborne. "I think we can greatly assist their programming."

Although Osborne said the Regional Center does not intend to "force" its services onto the penal institutions, he told newsmen that "if asked, we will come running."

Will Have 'Impact'

Osborne also said he believes the help that Regional Center personnel can provide "will have an impact" on conditions that could lead to prison uprisings.

Osborne's comments came during a question-and-answer session following a tour of the regional center (formerly called the Lincoln State Hospital) by area newsmen.

Answering questions about new programs established with the cooperation of both the mental treatment and penal institutions, Osborne also said he hopes prison officials "will ask us to provide training for guards."

'Appropriate Intervention'

Osborne noted that professionals in psychiatric fields have developed "rather sophisticated methodology in better perceiving the lot of the patient or inmate" and then acting with "appropriate intervention."

Stressing that medical officials do not intend to force services at the penal institutions, Osborne said, "We want an opportunity to demonstrate our competence."

A recent example of that, he believes, was help provided to the dairy at the prison when high bacteria counts began showing up in milk.

Problem Solved

Finding that the problem related to cleaning schedules, he said, Regional Center personnel used behavior modification techniques to solve it.

Osborne noted that "for many years" penal and mental health officials operated on a "demand basis" involving negotiations about treatment of individuals when prison officials believed they detected inmates with pschiatric problems.

The inmates were then transferred to the Regional Center's security center for treatment, he said.

Beginning this fall, however, the Regional Center has assigned psychiatrists to work full-time at both the penitentiary and the reformatory.

Along with other medical professionals, psychologists and social workers, they are seeking to "establish programs that evaluate inmates," he said.

Osborne outlined four aims of the new approach:

—to provide better evaluation of inmates as they come into the institutions and "siphon off" those who need psychiatric care.

—to provide services to inmates in the institutions.

—to "work more intensively with the personnel in corrections to transmit more programmatic support . . . hopefully evolving some real significant change."

—to plan now for possible use of the new medical service unit, when it is completed, for medical and surgical treatment of inmates who are currently treated in Lincoln area hospitals under heavy guard.

On another matter, Osborne said he has "reason to believe" his department's legislative appropriations will about equal those for the present fiscal year.

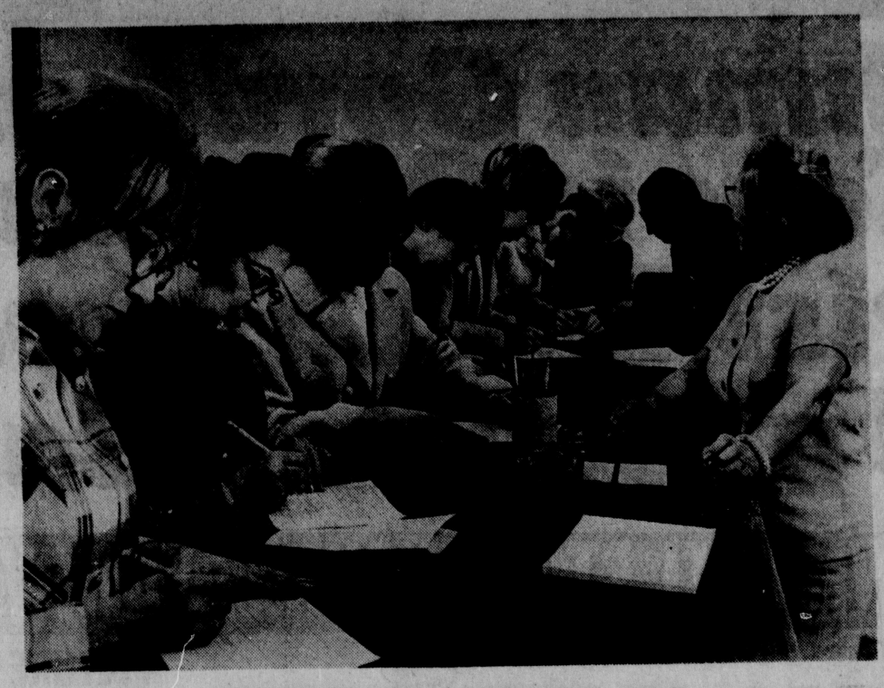
He also said turnover among nonprofessionals at the Regional Center is about half what it was last year at this time, and he attributed the change partly to economic conditions and partly to more emphasis on "social reward" among workers.

But he said Regional Center technicians are still "grossly undercompensated" and he predicted the state institution will "get clobbered" when budgets begin to increase in states that suffered from limited funding earlier than did Nebraska.

As economic conditions improve, he said, employes will begin to leave to accept similar jobs at higher pay in other states.

Osborne also said the patient population at the center, which has decreased dramatically as the officials began more community-based programs, will level off at about 250 within a year.

It now stands at about 360.



DEMOCRATIC WOMEN FILE

Members of the Lancaster County Democratic Women's Club participated in a mass filing for delegate to the County Democratic convention at the election commission office Wednesday evening. Purpose of the mass filing, according to June Kromberg, club president, was to encourage more people to file and to support the candidacy of fellow member, Yvonne Hardesty for the county chairmanship. More than 40 women were assisted in filing by Mrs. David Rosenburg, right, and Election Commissioner Bill Davidson. (Star Photo.)

Wesleyan Begins Participation In State Voter Drive

Nebraska Wesleyan University joined in a statewide campaign to register eligible voters on 13 college and university campuses in the state Wednesday.

Amy Bertelson, organizer of the drive on the Wesleyan campus, reported 86 persons registered to vote in Lancaster County, while 45 persons received absentee voter forms. A breakdown of partly affiliation was not available Wednesday night.

During the first two days of the five-day drive, 473 persons registered in Lancaster County on the University of Nebraska and Union College campuses. In addition, 558 absentee forms have been distributed.

Bruce Beecher, spokesman for the League of Young Voters, said "if things keep up the way they are, we can break 5,000" before the week is out.

Dynamite Fuse At Elkhorn Had Been Lighted

Elkhorn (AP)—Omaha Police Lt. James Perry, head of the police bomb squad, Wednesday dissected a homemade dynamite bomb found in a cornfield near Elkhorn High School Tuesday night.

"It wasn't a phony," Perry said. "Someone lit the fuse and it burnt all the way down until it got to putty and fizzed out."

Perry said the seven sticks of dynamite were wrapped with adhesive tape and would have blown a three-foot hole in the ground had they gone off.

Elkhorn Police Chief Millay Hollister said Robbie Pojar, an eighth-grade student at Elkhorn Junior High, found the dynamite and gave it to Elkhorn coach Gene Krueger during halftime of the Elkhorn-Gretna football game.

Hollister hid the dynamite until Perry arrived Wednesday.

Weekly Bus Line Receipts More Than Double

The Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) deposited nearly $14,000 in the bank Wednesday morning, compared to weekly deposits of about $6,000 after Lincoln City Lines was taken over in July, Jerald Rae said Wednesday.

The LTS general manager told a semi-monthly meeting of the Lincoln Board of Realtors that average weekly receipts from the Mini-Line also have increased, from $360 to $500.

The reason for the rise is a passenger increase of about 80,000 a month, Rae said. LTS is taking in about 55 cents a mile — about 10 cents a mile less than is needed to break even, Rae said.

Rae said he has set up a Sunday charter service for elderly patients of nursing homes in Lincoln. The service, set up after he received complaints that the elderly persons had nothing to do on Sundays, will provide tours of the city and transportation to activities.

Everyone in Lincoln will be less than 3½ blocks from a bus stop and will be able to get anywhere in the city in less than 40 minutes when the system is in full operation next spring, he said. LTS is also considering service to Lincoln Air Park and to rapid growth areas such as on West A Street, he said.

Improvements "in the character and class of people working with us" will include requiring each driver to have a physical examination, a police check, a year's driver education and courtesy training, good credit, and several tests of driving skill.

The safety programs are designed to cut insurance costs as well as prevent accidents, he said, because $10 of every $100 of income now goes for insurance.

Each bus will have its own file, the same as a personnel file, Rae said, so a particular vehicle's history may be checked if the need arises. Explaining the numbers recently added to the buses, he said the first three numbers refer to the month and year the bus was acquired and the last number is the serial number. (Example: Bus 7712 is the second bus acquired in July, 1971.

By next spring, he said, Lincoln will have the "finest bus routes possible" after completion of a study of routes and patterns by the NU Engineering College. Rae said rates will not change until further studies are completed.

Rae said he expects many complaints this winter as the inevitable breakdowns occur, but said he will answer every complaint.

Tax Rate Delay Called 'Politically Motivated'

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon Wednesday called the three Republican members of the State Board of Equalization "highly politically motivated" in their decision to postpone setting Nebraska's tax rates until the Nov. 15 statutory deadline.

Earlier Wednesday, State Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson, Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann and Treasurer Wayne Swanson for the second time denied Tax Commissioner Bill Peters and Exon's motion to set the income tax rate at 13% and the sales tax at 2½%.

The debate over when to set the tax rates dates back to the board's Oct. 8 meeitng when the Republican majority voted to delay the tax question because of the pending federal income tax cut. If Nebraska's tax rates were to remain at the present 13-2½ level in the wake of a federal income tax cut, state revenue would decline correspondingly.

Better Picture Sought

The Republicans feel the tax rate decision should be put off until there is a better picture of what the federal legislation's effect will be.

The Democrats maintain that picture will not be clear enough by Nov. 15 to determine how to counterbalance the tax break.

The constitution provides that the board may reconvene to adjust rates after they are set if the federal situation changes. However, if federal legislation comes before the state's rates are set then the board cannot adjust the rates later.

Beermann said the federal tax cut could "come up for final passage next week. Then rates could be set at the Nov. 15 meeting."

However, Exon said, "Nothing proves my point more. If the bill were passed next week, there would not be enough time to get accurate estimates on the effect."

Result Unknown

This would result, Exon said, in a rate which could either return a surplus in revenue or cause a deficit.

"For the life of me, gentlemen," Exon said, "I can see no reason why the Republican majority refuses to set the rates."

The governor urged the stubborn bloc to be "rational and reasonable" and not to "rush" into a decision.

Exon, who during his gubernatorial campaign promised to hold the tax rate at its current level, said later the Republicans acted "for sheer partisan reasons."

"At first," he said, "I was not sure, but now there is no question in my mind that their reason is political.

Forcing Us To The Wall

"Whether I keep my campaign promise is not important, the important thing is they're forcing us to the wall. Because of their action today, the Board may have to set the rates higher than necessary," the chief executive said.

Regarding earlier remarks made by Swanson stating the governor is asking too early, Exon supplied the dates on which the tax rates were set in previous years.

"The Treasurer must have forgotten when the rates were set during previous years. In 1967, it was Oct. 11; 1968, the date was Nov. 13; 1969, Oct. 1; and 1970, Sept. 20."

Under the bill before Congress, personal exemptions would be raised from $650 to $675. Beermann said this would mean at least $1 million difference to the state. This would make the difference between a 13% and 14% rate for income tax, he said.

Poodle Bank Gets Clipped For $4,000

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — An Omaha woman who entrusted her savings to the care of a two-foot-tall plastic poodle dog bank has found herself $4,000 poorer.

Mrs. Betty, a beauty salon operator, who said she doesn't believe in putting all her money in the bank because she "spends it too easily that way," reported to police that the bank was taken sometime during the past month from a closet in her home.

Mrs. Taylor said she decided about seven years ago to begin saving the loose change from her business. "That way I knew the money would be there when I needed it," she said.

She said she saved small change in a smaller bank and about once a month she would transfer the funds to the larger bank. She said she had managed to save about $50 a month this way and planned to use the money to open another shop.

"I'm still going ahead with plans for the shop, but I'm going to have to take out a loan," she said.

Procedures Used In Disturbance Hit

... Report On 1970 Incident Released

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

A committee making an investigation of a disturbance and arrests at 19th and O in August, 1970, concluded that improper procedures took place that created injustice under emergency conditions.

According to a four-page report which was submitted to Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf June 30 and released Wednesday, the committee felt that many persons contributed to the disorder that took place and that outside informers made false reports to the police department of the trouble at 22nd and Vine and that "this has been done several times before and since."

The 12-member committee concluded that a lack of communication exists between the police and the people.

Main Conclusions

The committee listed the following four main conclusions of their investigation.

—Improper procedure of arrest at 19th and O.

—Lack of human relations training for officers.

—Police procedure declaring "unlawful assembly" because of the violence preceding the declaration was in order.

—Sensitivity testing is needed.

According to the findings in the report, the disturbance began shortly after midnight on Aug. 8 when a carload of young black men were driving through Kings Drive Inn at 19th and O when their car stalled and a car with young white men parked in the drive-in "began making obscene remarks."

Scuffle

According to the report, the young black men "hearing the obscene remarks began to express themselves toward the young white men in the parked car" and one of the black men and one of the white men became engaged in a heated argument and scuffle."

This led to the gathering of many people and more groups of white people at the drive-in became involved in the argument, according to the report, and two "concerned white men" reported the incident to the part-time officer.

As the officer approached the scene, the report states, he walked by the car of the white men involved in the argument and approached the car of the black men and asked the driver to stop when he attempted to leave.

Took The Keys

The officer then reached inside the car and took the keys from the ignition and the driver and his companions proceeded to get out of the car and attempt to regain the keys, the report continues.

"The officer claims he was assaulted by the young black men as they attempted to regain the car keys," the report states and then a large crowd of people were watching as name calling took place.

When other officers arrived, the police captain "realized the nature of the trouble and ordered the off-duty officer to return the keys to the driver so they could leave the area because of the tension built up between the black and white in the area, the report states.

Went To Party

According to the report, the young black men then left the area of 19th and O to go to a party that was being held at 25th and Potter.

They told the others at the party what had happened at Kings, the reports states, relating that the white men involved were not questioned since the officers only approached them.

At this time, according to the report, a number of older blacks stated they were going to Kings to find out what had happened and when they arrived four officers were standing on the sidewalk so they began questioning them about how the trouble started.

Under Arrest

"At this time, the car of young white men that was involved in the incident drove around the corner. A young black man took after it in order to stop the car so the officers could talk with them, but the car kept going. The officers then stopped the young black man and placed him under arrest," the report states.

Later, according to the report, after everyone left the 19th and O area, a small group of black people gathered at 22nd and Vine and name-calling and rock and bottle throwing erupted between blacks and whites and some "innocent people" driving through the area were "rocked and bottled" by the young men.

After police officers moved in and began rerouting traffic, the group "became more tense and began throwing rocks and bottles at police cars striking one of the officers," according to the report.

'Unlawful Assembly'

At this time, the report states, the officers declared an "unlawful assembly" and began to clear the area and some left while others stayed.

"By this time the officers were moving in making arrests on everyone even those who had begun to clear out," and the report adds that many black persons stated that they were stopped even though they had no knowledge that there had been trouble.

According to the report, the disturbances continued into the early morning calming down after several arrests and tension grew as parents heard of the trouble, and that many blacks "viewed the arrests as police harassment . . ."

Stop 'Pipeline'

"Community blacks believe that if the chief of police would start working with the community and stop relying on his 'pipeline' as a source of information more could be accomplished.

"Many times the 'pipeline' represents only a hand-out, causing trouble with a few paid out dollars to one or two individuals," the report states.

Congress Given Grain Alcohol Bills

A pair of bills designed to end lead pollution of the atmosphere and improve farm income have been introduced into the Congress by Sen. Carl Curtis of Nebraska and Rep. Keith Sebelius of Kansas.

Both bills provide tax incentives to petroleum companies designed to encourage the use of alcohol made from farm-grown grains as a replacement for lead used in motor fuels.

Sen. Curtis's bill S2698 would amend the internal revenue law of 1954 to provide for a reduced rate of tax for gasoline containing alcohol made from farm-grown grains to provide for a 3c difference in the tax between the leaded gas and the gas with grain alcohol.

The Sebelius bill would provide a 2c difference between gas with grain alcohol and the leaded product. Sebelius indicated in his speech introducing the bill that the grain he had in mind was wheat. However, the bill refers to alcohol made from cereal grains. Presumably this would include grains other than wheat.

The house bill includes a provision that requires that the lower tax be passed along to the ultimate consumer of the fuel, a provision that Sen. Curtis has indicated he will attempt to have included in his bill as an amendment.

Sebelius estimated that "if all the gasoline used in the nation was to use grain alcohol in place of lead, there would be a market for 3.2 billion bushel of grain." In his presentation to the House he said. "This bill, if passed, could provide three basic social needs for the nation, it would mean a cleaner lead free environment with a lead free gasoline, it would provide a greatly improved farm income and the protein by-products that would stem from the grain alcohol prrduction would give us additional products to fight malnutrition and hunger around the world."

Senate sources indicate that ecology minded senators may attempt to amend the bill to include a provision requiring the petroleum companies to furnish the grain alcohol additive in all gasolines sold during periods when a specific air pollution factor from lead had been reached.

Such a provision would be applied in high population density areas of major cities.

The Senate bill has been referred to the Senate Finance Committee and the House bill is in the House Ways and Means Committee. Both are the tax writing committees of their respective legislative bodies.

Highway Safety Committee Is Announced By Governor

By United Press International

The formation of the governor's highway safety coordinating committee was announced by the state's chief executive Wednesday.

Gov. J. J. Exon said the formation resulted from the efforts and results of the committee established to carry out a highway safety campaign over the Labor Day weekend this year.

The committee's purpose, the governor said, will be to "focus government action on specific problem areas pinpointed by the Accident Records Bureau."

The shortcoming of many previous efforts, he said, appars to have been the lack of coordination among them. The newly formed committee would serve as the focal point for future efforts, he said.

He also said it is hoped the program would improve Nebraska's year-round highway safety record.

Organizations already designating representatives are: the Nebraska Women for Highway Safety; Nebraska League of Municipalities; Association of County Government Officials; Nebraska New Car Dealers; Nebraska Safety Council Inc.; Omaha Safety Council; Nebraska Petroleum Council; Nebraska Petroleum Marketers Assn., and the Nebraska Motor Carriers Assn.

State senators who have agreed to work with the committee so far include Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox, Wallace Barnett of Lincoln, John De Camp of Neligh and William Skarda of Omaha.

Representatives of local government so far announced are Ralph Nelson, legal counsel for the city of Lincoln and John Carpenter, Grand Island city manager.

UMTA Reiterates Position Favoring Flxible's Bus Bid

The Urban Mass Transit Administration (UMTA) has informed the city that it has not changed its opinion and feels that the Flxible Manufacturing bid was responsive to the specifications and was the low bidder for Lincoln's 36 new 45-passenger coaches.

According to City Attorney Richard Wood, the matter has been referred to the Transportation Board which is scheduled to meet Thursday.

Wood said his opinion had not changed and he still feels that General Motors Corp. (GMC) is the low bidder due to the type of tires it includes on its coaches and that awarding the contract to Flxible could result in an illegal contract.

He said that after word is received from the Transportation Board, and if the Flxible bid is still upheld, there are three possible routes the city could take:

—Go with the Flxible bid.

—Appeal to the Department of Transportation.

—Request approval of rejection of all bids and readvertise for bids on the buses.

Order Obtained

Washington (UPI) — Centron Co. of Mineral Wells, Tex., has obtained a $5.7 million Army order for 105mm howitzer shells.

Three Appointed As State Labor NegotiatingTea

State Personnel Director George Heiden and three longtime Democratic associates of Gov. J. J. Exon have been named by the governor to be his state labor negotiating team.

On the unit with Heiden will be Norman Krivosha, the governor's unpaid legal counsel; Lincoln-Lancaster Election Commissioner W. H. Davidson, and Richard H. Shugrue, Creighton University faculty member. Shugrue was an administrator in the State Agriculture Dept. during the Morrison administration.

Exon said his intention in creating the team is to have men with "experience and knowledge in the matter of labor negotiations to represent all of the executive agencies of state government."

Krivosha recently won a major case before the Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations, representing the Lincoln Electric System.

Stripe In Road Changed To Yellow

The familiar white center stripe on two lane roads is becoming a thing of the past, according to the Department of Roads.

In compliance with new Federal Highway Administration regulations, the department has begun replacing the dashed white center stripe with a dashed yellow center stripe on two lane roads.

The yellow stripe is intended to help motorists make the transition from one-way roads to two-way traffic roads. Dashed white lines will still be used to distinguish traffic flow lanes for traffic traveling in the same direction, such as on the Interstate.

Motorists should not confuse the dashed yellow center stripe with the solid yellow "no passing" stripe. The solid yellow stripe still means it is illegal to pass the vehicle in front of you.

The decision to change resulted from studies that found many accidents occur when drivers become confused after entering a two-way road from a one-way road and wind up in the wrong lane.

The Department of Roads says the new markings will not mean increased operating costs, since the total amount of paint used will remain the same. No new equipment is needed to facilitate the change. However, a new striper is being purchased as a replacement.

Three Charges Against Gaylord Dismissed

Omaha (AP) — Three of four charges against former Omaha used car dealer Robert Gaylord were dismissed in court Tuesday, police records show.

Municipal Court Judge Francis McClain, on a motion by Deputy County Atty. Thomas Brown, dismissed two charges of obtaining money by false pretenses and one charge of issuing an insufficient fund check, police records show.

Gaylor, former owner of Town and Country Motors in Omaha, was arrested recently in Council Bluffs, Iowa, and returned to Omaha on complaints that he sold automobiles when the titles were actually held by other car dealers, police said.

Gaylor still faces a fourth charge of obtaining money by false pretenses, police records show.

Recreation Projects Approved

The State Game Commission announced Wednesday federal grants have been approved for outdoor recreation projects at Norfolk, Central City and Waverly.

The projects have been approved for 50% funding from the Federal Land and Water Conservation Fund and 25% state funding. The municipality pays the remainder plus any overage from original estimates.

The Norfolk project, estimated at $170,000 includes construction of a swimming pool, wading pool and bathhouse to be located adjacent to Memorial Park.

Central City's project, estimated at $5,750, includes the purchase of five acres for an addition to the existing City Park.

At Waverly, 30 acres of land are to be purchased at an estimated cost of $42,000. The commission said eventually a swimming pool and ball field would be located on the land.

A GREAT NEW HEARING AID

It is the most unusual hearing aid the writer has ever seen in the many years in this hearing aid field. It's remarkable! This aid is truly a revolutionary advancement for the average hard-of-hearing person — an Audiologist in Norway has written "The most significant advancement in Hearing Aid design since the transistor . . ." I truly believe that the new MAICO MARK 100 will offer most hard-of-hearing persons the most dramatic hearing improvement they have ever known.

I would be glad to compare it with any other hearing aid now in use that is in a similar power range, or even those that may have a greater gain — HEARING IS BELIEVING!

Call or write me for an appointment in our office or in your home for a MAICO MARK 100 demonstration. 415 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln, Nebr. — Phone 432-8597.

Looking At Future

Omaha — Larry Popein isn't worried about the past — it's the future that concerns him.

"We've got good material this year, but we've got to get the rough edges off and execute better," the Omaha Knight coach says of his crew which is trying to keep the regular season and playoff crowns for the third straight season.

The Knights, with eight performers who spent time with Omaha last season, are loaded with untested rookies which partly accounts for the shaky start. The team going into Wednesday' night's clash with league-leading Tulsa was in the Central Hockey League's cellar.

"We know we'll improve with time," he points out, "The boys have the desire and the determination — all it leaves is for the coach to do the coaching."

Popein knows right winger Mike Murphy and blueliner Bob Ash are veterans who are being counted on this year. Both played major roles in the Knights' success last season.

"I think working with players like Murphy (last year's CHL rookie-of-the-year with 24 goals and 47 assists) with his experience should help the offense," Popein says. "I'm counting on him, Vickers (Steve, who hit 43 goals for the Toronto Marlboros) and West (Terry, who scored 22 goals in junior hockey) to get 85 goals this year."

'Stabilize Defense'

"Ash is the defenseman who we hope can stabilize that aspect of our game — we have a lot of rookies back there and we've done pretty well so far," he explains.

While the offense may not produce as many goals (312) as last year's squad, Andre Dupont's Omaha high of 314 penalty minutes may be snapped. Steve Durbano, who was tagged with 324 minutes with the Marlboros last season, is already the CHL's 'bad-boy' with 45 minutes.

"Sure, he (Durbano) gets a lot of penalties — but we're hoping he gets them for being aggressive and not for stupid mistakes," Popein says.

Durbano made an auspicious debut at Ak-Sar-Ben Friday night — receiving a game misconduct for his part in a second-period fight.

Taking a cue from Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney with his two quarterbacks, Popein said both goalies Wayne Bell (who played sparingly with starter Peter McDuffe last season at Omaha) and Wayne Wood will see action.

"I don't know if we'll rotate them or not — Bell only played 15 games last year while Wood played in 48 (with Montreal's junior team)," Popein says, "If one is hot we'll let him play — it's too early now to say this one is the best or that one is."

Although he terms Dallas and Tulsa as the teams to catch this season, Popein feels the Knights will be definite contenders.

"Not very many people are counting on us to win again this season, but we're ready to fool them," he predicts. "Sure Dallas with all their returnees (from a team that took the Omahans to six games before bowing in the CHL finals last season) and Tulsa with their size and older players are going to be tough, but we'll give them a battle."

After coaching Omaha when its CHL domination started two years ago, Popein moved to Seattle of the Western Hockey League last season and the Totems finished a disappointing fifth.

"I've had both a winner and loser and let me tell you — I'll take the winner anytime," he grins.

New York — Nebraska's Black Shirts have taken over the national lead in total defense, replacing Michigan at the top of that department.

The Huskers, who were second a week ago to the Wolverines, are yielding only 172 yards per game compared to 178.8 being allowed by Michigan.

Nebraska is second to Michigan in rushing defense with the Wolverines giving up 60.6 per game on the ground and the Huskers allowing 72.9 yards per contest. Neither is among the leaders in pass defense.

Nebraska dropped from second to third in defense against scoring, being replaced by Georgia after giving up seven points to Colorado.

Michigan is the leader in defense against scoring, allowing only 4.9 points per game, followed by Georgia at 5.8 and Nebraska at 5.9.

The Huskers' offensive balance between rushing and passing is plainly evident in the national offensive statistics where NU is not in the top 10 in either rushing or passing, but ranks sixth in total offense with 439.9 yards per game.

The best the Huskers can do in either rushing or passing alone is a 14th place in passing with 182.1 yards per game through the air.

Oklahoma, the leader in rushing offense with 489.1 yards per game, also leads the nation in total offense with a per game average of 578.9 yards.

The Sooners and Huskers rank 1-4, respectively, in scoring with OU averaging 47 points per game and NU 38.5, only one point behind Michigan and 2.9 behind Penn State.

SI Writer Impressed By NU Gridders

Sports Illustrated's No. 1 college football writer Dan Jenkins was impressed with the nation's No. 1-ranked football team—even if his own magazine continues to rank Oklahoma No. 1 in the Midwest—after watching Nebraska defeat Colorado, 31-7, last week.

Referring to a remark from NU coach Bob Devaney two days before the Colorado game that he didn't know how good his Huskers really were, Jenkins writes in this week's issue, "If he really didn't know it already, Devaney found out two days later that his 1971 team was probably the best he has had among a lot of good ones.

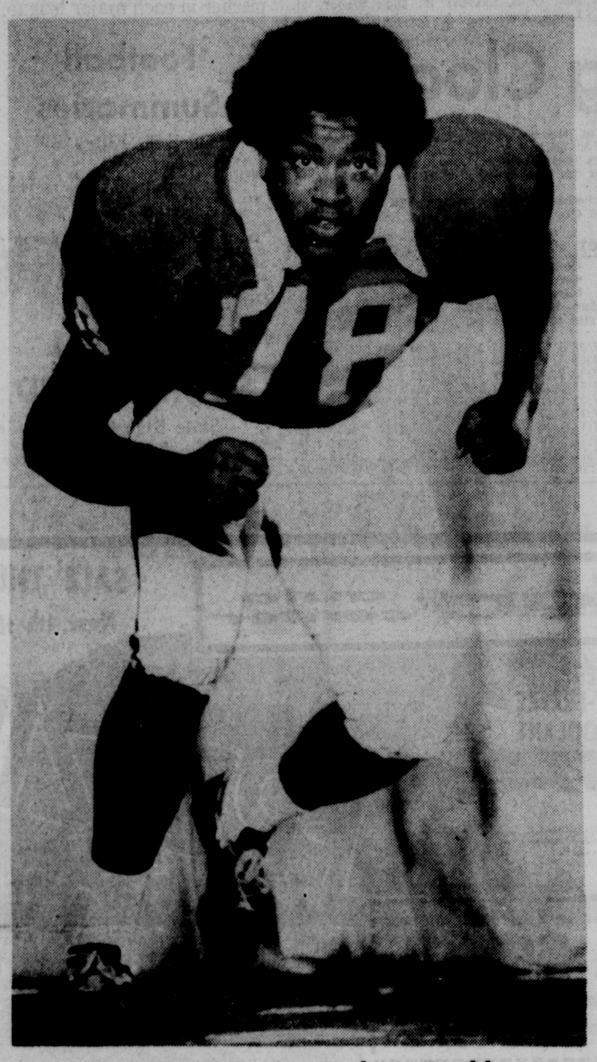
"Nebraska simply manhandled Colorado in its usual physical way with perhaps a little more spirit and enthusiasm than the big sod busters normally display."

After several paragraphs of quotes from Husker players, Jenkins adds, "The Colorado game was never actually close because Nebraska did what it does best—make the enemy look bad."

Of the Thanksgiving Day battle between Nebraska and Oklahoma, Jenkins writes, ". . . Nebraska and Oklahoma on Nov. 25 may collide in that most classic of football duels, speed versus power, big plays versus ball control.

"Football brains say speed usually wins. But they say defense usually wins as well. Oh, well. Ho hum. Another game of the decade, folks."

Of the Nebraska defense, Jenkins quotes Colorado sports information director Fred Casotti as remarking, ". . . I hope the Nebraska defense doesn't line up on the runway at the airport in front of our DC-9. We'll never get home."



BIG DADDY . . . Cyclone Tackle.

Wesleyan To Host Midget Champions

The co-champions of the Lincoln Midget Varsity Football League will be guests of Nebraska Wesleyan at the Hastings game.

There will be 35 players and six coaches from the Executive Club team with head coach Pat Mulligan and 32 players and six coaches from the Security Mutual team including head coach Willis Weisbrook.

These two teams will meet two Omaha teams on Sunday in championship competition.

—TAILBACK AMUNDSON EXTRA AERIAL THREAT—

Huskers Will Face Tough Iowa State Pass Defense

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

With 20 interceptions in the first eight games, Nebraska's pass defense has been responsible for setting up a number of Husker touchdowns this season.

In Iowa State they'll be facing a team that ranks second only to Nebraska in passing offense and the Cyclones have an extra passing threat in tailback George Amundson, a former quarterback.

"They might not even try it against us, but they have used a throwback pass to the quarterback," Husker head coach Bob Devaney pointed out Wednesday, "And we've been working against that."

That particular play puts pressure on the off-side end or linebacker.

"We got fooled on a broken pass play last week against Colorado," Devaney explained, "But the experience we've got on defense should help us in stopping that play—that and the fact that we've worked against it so our players know what it is."

The Husker coach, suffering from a bad cold, pointed out that the Cyclones "throw a lot of passes similar to ours. They use delays and action passes like we do."

He called split end Ike Harris, who has caught 24 passes for 370 yards and three touchdowns, their most dangerous receiver.

"He's a little like Otto Stowe was for them," he offered. "He's big and he takes the ball away from people. Once he catches it, he's a good runner."

Devaney also figures the Cyclones have better pass protection than they've had in recent years.

"I think their lines, both on offense and defense, are better than what they've had in the past," he says. "I think last year, they thought their line wasn't real good."

Devaney credits the Husker zone defense on pass coverage as a factor in the high number of interceptions.

"By using the zone defense, it frees a player to go after the ball more if he doesn't have to worry about man-on-man coverage on a receiver."

Back With Huskers

After getting off the Nebraska bandwagon last week, The Associated Press' Will Grimsley agrees with fellow college football forecasters Herschell Nissenson of AP and Charlie Smith of United Press International in picking the Huskers this week.

Seeing a 48-13 NU win over Iowa State, Grimsley says, "Red is the Cornhuskers' color—and now it's the color of the prognosticator who picked Colorado."

Tabbing the Huskers to win by 34-0, Smith adds, "No one can find a weak spot in the Cornhuskers' defense."

And picking Nebraska, Nissenson comments, Bob "Broken Record" Devaney says this could be the toughest game so far for the Cornhuskers. 'I know I said that last week,' he admitted, 'and Colorado was the toughest. But this team is every bit as good as Colorado was last weekend.'

"Answers Iowa State's Johnny Majors: 'Nebraska has a complete football team. I don't see any weaknesses out there. I don't see any cracks in their defense. Nebraska chews you up and spits you out.' Iowa State over Nebraska? Ptui!"

Huskers To Help Fund

Members of the Cornhusker football team and coaches have been invited to a special public pancake feed Sunday evening to raise funds for Love Library at the University of Nebraska.

Members of Farmhouse fraternity and Kappa Alpha Theta sorority are planning the event from 4:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday in the Centennial Room at the Union.

NU, OU Both By 32

Nebraska and Oklahoma have both been made 32-point favorites by the nation's oddsmakers for their Saturday games against Iowa State and Missouri, respectively.

In other Big Eight games, Colorado is rated 13 points better than Kansas and Oklahoma State is liked by six over Kansas State.

Standard Cleaning was crowned champion of the Workingman's Flag Football League with a 15-12 victory over the Salem Oilers in the Husker Bowl Wednesday.

Big Daddy Doesn't 'Look Like A Lawrence'

. . . 6-2, 236-POUND SOPH TACKLE GAINED TAG IN GRADE SCHOOL

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Lawrence Hunt won't be the biggest Cyclone on the Memorial Stadium AstroTurf Saturday when Iowa State takes on the nation's No. 1-ranked Cornhuskers, but he will be the one answering to the name "Big Daddy."

Call him "Lawrence" and the 6-2, 236-pound sophomore defensive tackle from Delray Beach, Fla., may not answer.

He's been answering to the name Big Daddy ever since the seventh grade "when I was the biggest cat in the P.E. class.

"The coaches picked it up and it's traveled with me wherever I've gone. I think most guys figure Lawrence is to hard to remember and besides I don't look like a Lawrence."

Hunt's image of a Lawrence is "a small guy, wearing glasses and carrying a briefcase. A Lawrence doesn't look like the all-American type."

He says the only people who have called him Larry since he acquired the Big Daddy label were some sports writers "back home."

Hunt was 5-11 by 180 when he got the nickname, went 6-2 by 220 when he finished high school and has added only about 15 pounds since then.

Big Daddy is among the Cyclone leaders in the defensive statistics with a total of 77 tackles, 40 of them unassisted and four coming behind the line of scrimmage for losses of 22 yards.

And Big Daddy has a brother, Donald, who weighs only 190 pounds. "They call him Little Daddy. He's going to Morris Brown College."

In fact, Big Daddy has five brothers and sisters. "With six kids in the family, I learned to get along with kids," he explains.

"When I'm through with college and football, I want to work with kids in some type of program where I can help the underprivileged ones."

Big Daddy played side-by-side in high school with Little Daddy—for awhile.

"We used to argue with each other all the time," he recalls, "so, the coach switched him to the other side of the line to keep us from fighting."

But despite the name Big Daddy, former professional great Big Daddy Lipscomb was not his boyhood idol.

"I thought he was a great football player," Hunt says. "But my idol was Bubba Smith of Michigan State (now with the Baltimore Colts)."

Spartans' Passing Worrying Aldrich

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

High school football action at Seacrest Field winds up with a flurry of activity this weekend.

Lincoln rivals East and Pius X kick off a tripleheader Thursday night. One of the state's oldest prep rivalries, Lincoln High and Grand Island, resumes Friday evening, while a Southeast-Beatrice clash Saturday night will be the final game of the season for the Capital City facility.

Coach Bob Els takes Lincoln's other prep eleven on the road this weekend. His Northeast Rockets travel to North Platte, winner of the West Big Ten Conference title, for a Trans-Nebraska league game.

It's a case of out of the frying pan and into the fire for Pius coach Vince Aldrich. Last week his Thunderbolts faced Southeast, the No. 1 rated Class A club in the state. Prior to the Knights taking over the top spot, East had been No. 1 since the beginning of the season.

"We have a little different problem this time," Aldrich reasons. "East passes a lot more. If we hope to succeed we'll have to be able to stop that phase of their game."

Aldrich is afraid that may be easier said than done. "While we face the need to play excellent pass defense," he explains, "that has probably been our biggest weakness all year. We've given up the long bomb to our opponents far too often this season."

East High coach Lee Zentic, who saw his Spartans bounce back from the loss to Southeast in resounding fashion with a 41-0 win over McCook, isn't taking the 'Bolts lightly.

"Their win-loss record may not be as good as it's been in recent years," he admits, "but Pius always fields a very sound ball club. We always have a lot of trouble with them, because they don't make mistakes and are well drilled in the fundamentals."

Hernandez Set

Des Moines (UPI) — Boxing promoter Harvey Feilen said Wednesday that No. 3 ranked heavyweight Jerry Quarry will be featured in Iowa's first professional boxing match here Dec. 2.

Feilen said Quarry will be the main attraction on a card that will also feature middleweight Art Hernandez of Omaha.

—CROSS COUNTRY IN LINCOLN—

Husker Runner Unger Knows The Territory

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

If familiarity breeds success, then Bob Unger may become Nebraska's second straight Big Eight cross country champion.

"I'm getting pretty familiar with the course and that may give me a little edge," says the NU sophomore from Lincoln Southeast who leads coach Frank Sevigne's Huskers into the Big Eight cross country championships beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday at Pioneers Park.

Running an average of 100 miles per week at the Lincoln Park, Unger hopes to duplicate Greg Carlberg's 1970 first-place effort. But he knows his biggest obstacle is Kansas State's Jerome Howe who nipped him by nine seconds in NU's opening 21-38 loss to the Wildcats.

"He (Howe) won it when he was a sophomore so he'll probably be the one to beat—him and Hitchcock (KSU's Rich) they both will be tough," Unger adds, "We have an outside chance to win it, but if Kansas State wins, we'll probably be battling Kansas for second."

Although Unger's 19:35 clocking at Kansas State ranks as his top time this season over the grinding four-mile course, he turned in a 19:47 reading at Pioneers last season. He ran just two seconds slower to capture 24th at last year's Big Eight meet at Oklahoma State.

He predicted that a winning performance Saturday would be under 19:50, but added that variables such as the weather and mental attitude would be instrumental factors.

"If the course is dry and the wind is down, the times will be faster," he adds, "But I think mental toughness will be as important as anything — a lot of us have gotten the same amount of training so how much we want to suffer to win will determine the winner."

"That's true with me—I've been thinking about this meet for a long time—I want to do well in it," he points out.

He termed the hills on Pioneers as the looming obstacle.

"You've really got to work to beat the hills—they can make or break your race. Some courses are fairly flat, but when you have hills that makes a big difference."

After placing second to Howe at Manhattan on Oct. 2, Unger has ripped off four straight victories as NU has defeated in succession—Missouri, Iowa State, Drake and Colorado for a 4-1 dual meet slate.

But Unger almost decided to attempt a collegiate football career at Nebraska Wesleyan University. A split end for three years on Southeast's football team who never ran cross country until last season, he briefly flirted with the football notions.

"I don't miss it (football) now," he relates, "I kind of wanted to try football, but I thought that I should concentrate to excel in one sport and I enjoy running."

"You can bet that running is all I'll be thinking of Saturday morning," he adds.

Most Prep Gridders End Regular Season

. . . SOME GAMES SET FOR NEXT WEEK

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

It's the final week of the regular high school football season.

Several games, postponed by last weekend's heavy rains, will be played a week hence along with a number of league and conference championship playoff clashes.

But it's the last chance for most teams, on the verge of cracking the statewide top ten ratings to make an impressive splash.

One Class A game which could affect the final ratings is between Omaha Burke and crosstown rival South.

In Class B the Minden-Holdrege meeting and Albion's game with Aurora are both crucial.

Palmyra and Wilcox, a pair of teams which are threatening the Class C top ten, each meet clubs from the Class D list. The Palmyra-Falls City Sacred Heart and Wilcox-Sumner games are important to all four clubs.

And the Grant-Medicine Valley matchup is also a big one in Class C.

How about games this weekend involving Capital City teams?

Pius X vs. East, Seacrest Field, Thursday—The Spartans have too much offense for a sticky, but under-manned 'Bolt defense.

Grand Island at Lincoln High, Seacrest Field, Friday—The Links can cap a good season with victories in their last two starts . . . this one and the postponed Omaha Westside game now set for Nov. 9 in the Metro City. This will be Lincoln High's 33rd win in 53 games with Grand Island.

Northeast at North Platte, Friday—North Platte may have won the western half of the Big Ten Conference, but they haven't won a single Trans-Nebraska contest. Northeast can keep the Bulldogs in the cellar of one league while winning the other.

Beatrice at Southeast, Seacrest Field, Saturday—Another top ten rated team—the fourth the Knights have met this season. But it's the only block in the path of a state title for Southeast, which should be plenty of incentive.

Florom Nabs First Place

After chasing Jim Dill for four weeks, Rodger Florom finally found himself in sole possession of first place in the Hamm's Classic League. Ever since Oct. 7, Florom has played second best to Dill but a series of 639 helped change all that.

Dill drops to second place after a three game total of 593 in which he won two of three contests from Max Jensen, subbing for Ron Melichar. Florom won all three of his games besting Larry Tuckerman.

Rodgers Makes Excellent NU Club Even Better

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — Without Johnny Rodgers, Nebraska would be an excellent football team. But with him, the Cornhuskers are in another category.

Rodgers is the man who keeps defensive coaches up nights. A sound defensive plan can be made against Nebraska—if only that guy wasn't playing slotback.

As any defensive coach will tell you, there's no defense for speed.

But Johnny Rodgers is more than a speed merchant. He's a superior football player who would be an exceptional defensive back if he weren't scoring touchdowns.

Virtually every team feels disposed to double-team Rodgers. And that leaves foes vulnerable elsewhere. Nebraska's performers at the other skilled positions — quarterback Jerry Tagge, tailback Jeff Kinney, fullback Bill Olds, split receiver Woody Cox and tight end Jerry List—know how to take advantage.

Rodgers' value shows up in the Big Eight Conference statistics. He leads the league in pass receiving, punt returns and kickoff returns. He's the extra dimension that has made coach Bob Devaney's team the No. 1-ranked club in the land.

Rodgers has caught 31 passes for 567 yards and eight touchdowns. He's returned 24 punts for a 16.1-yard average and seven kickoffs for 32.6 yards.

Last week Rodgers became the top pass receiver in Nebraska history. Only a junior, Rodgers has 1,277 yards in pass catches, breaking the record of 1,234 set by Guy Ingles a year ago.

He's also well within range of Nebraska records for career pass receptions and touchdown catches and one-season touchdown catches. He set the single-season record for yards gained receiving a year ago when he had 710.

Tagge continues to lead the Big Eight in passing and total offense with 165.5 and 187.9 yards per game, respectively.

—NWU APPROACHES GRIDIRON MILESTONES—

Wesleyan Records May Fall Friday

The Nebraska Wesleyan University football team of 1971 can engrave its name in the school's record books in several departments this final week.

Despite a 16-3 setback at Doane last Saturday, the current edition of the Plainsmen can still re-write the history book in many ways.

A win over Hastings in the homecoming battle Friday night would give the 1971 club the third best record in the school's history at 8-1. The win No. 8 would also be a record.

Wesleyan's only undefeated teams in history were 1911 at 7-0 and 1946 at 7-0-3. With 175 points scored thus far it takes only four more tallies to get in the top ten teams in the point parade department.

Senior end candidate John McLaughlin already owns all the NWU pass receiving records. He will also finish high in the points scored department.

Also at stake against Hastings will be some long standing supremacy marks between the two ancient rivals.

The two first met on the gridiron in 1908. Since that early start Wesleyan has claimed 25 wins to 24 for the Broncos and seven ended in ties.

The last six games in the series have been won by the home team. The Broncos thus triumphed, 32-14 on a cold and windy night in Hastings last fall.

Friday's 7:30 p.m. game will be highlighted at halftime with the crowning of this year's Homecoming Queen. Candidates include Barbara Ann Boling, Lincoln junior; Cynthia Ann Wilson, Hastings senior and Starr Womack, Aurora, Ill., junior.

Blue Chips Soar In Stock Market

New York (AP) — The stock market shot ahead Wednesday, with blue chips posting their largest gain in over two months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 14.60 points to 842.58 This was the sharpest single-day rise since Aug. 16, when the Dow soared a record-breaking 32.93 points in response to President Nixon's initial wage-price announcement.

Analysts said Wednesday's upturn was largely the result of technical factors. The market had been heavily oversold in recent sessions, they explained, and many issues had been pushed down to bargain levels.

Also, many seemed to feel that the market might have been overreacting to uncertainties surrounding Phase 2 of the Nixon economic package.

In the news background was a Federal Reserve Board report that consumer installment credit in September showed its largest monthly increase in history

But brokers added it was too early to tell whether Wednesday's upswing marked the beginning of a major bull market rally or merely a short-term technical rebound.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 14.59 million shares, compared with 13.33 million shares Tuesday. The Big Board tape was running one minute late at the closing bell.

Of the 1,703 stocks traded on the Big Board, 1,119 advanced and 343 declined. There were 3 new highs and 55 new lows for the year.

The Big Board index of some 1,300 common stocks rose 0.89 to 52.35.

The Associated Press 60-stock average gained 5.2 to 309.8, with industrials up 7.6, rails up 3.7, and utilities up 1.3.

Stocks were higher in virtually all categories, except mail order-retail, which were mixed.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock andex closed at 94.91, up 1.73.

There were 115 blocks of 10,000 shares or over traded on the Big Board, compared with a revised total of 80 Tuesday.

International Nickel was most active on the Big Board, gaining ⅞ to 26⅞. A block of 100,000 shares traded at 26½, up ½.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index gained 0.20 to 24.60. Of the 1,147 stocks traded, 625 advanced, and 237 declined. Volume totaled 3.67 million shares, compared with 3.9 million shares Tuesday.

Corporate bonds were mixed and governments were higher.

Rehnquist Favors Wiretap

He Wouldn't Sit In Such A Case

. . . If Confirmed On High Court

Washington (AP) — William H. Rehnquist implied strongly Wednesday that he would disqualify himself from wiretap cases if he is confirmed to a seat on the Supreme Court.

Testifying before the Senate Judiciary Committee the nominee defended the Nixon administration's wiretap policies. But he said surveilance should be used only to solve or prevent crime — and not to stifle dissent. And he said the primary purpose of the Bill of Rights is to "put restraints on the government."

Rehnquist said that as an assistant attorney general he acted as an advisor on wiretapping and that "if the Justice Department position was indefensible or personally obnoxious to me I would have resigned."

Rehnquist was reluctant at times to give his views of wiretapping, citing an "attorney-client relationship" with Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and President Nixon.

But drawn out by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., he made some general observations including that he does not think government bugging, with and without judicial warrants, is "pervasive."

Up For Decision

The Nixon administration's policies are up for decision in the Supreme Court, particularly Mitchell's stand that a warrant is not required in order to wiretap groups or individuals he concludes may pose a security threat to the government.

Rehnquist did not say specifically that he would not sit in such cases. But he said he thinks a justice would be disqualified if he "personally participated in litigations" or played the role of "advising." He then described his job on wiretapping as "advisory."

Again with some reluctance Rehnquist gave the committee his general view that wiretapping "is not an appealing type of thing and it is justified only by exigent circumstances."

Rehnquist said he has changed his mind since 1964 when he wrote a letter to a Phoenix newspaper opposing a local ordinance to assure blacks equal public accommodations.

He told Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who raised the question, that he found the ordinance readily accepted by the people in Phoenix and, more important, he had become aware of "the strong concern minorities have for recognition of their rights."

His Son Profited

Asked about a 1967 letter and his views on school integration, Rehnquist said his own son had profited from playing basketball and football on integrated teams in a Virginia suburban school

But the nominee stressed, the Negroes who attended the school live in the neighborhood. He said he believes in the "concept of neighborhood schools" and "has some reservations about transporting students great distances" to accomplish dessegregation.

The assistant attorney general in the Nixon administration criticized the firing on student demonstrators at Kent State in Ohio, calling it a "misguided and unwarranted misuse of force."

Rehnquist's views on these points were drawn out by Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and Edward M Kennedy, D-Mass., critics of many of the policies of the Nixon administration.

Rating Of ABA High

As Rehnquist appeared at the confirmation hearing, he and President Nixon's other nominee for the Supreme Court, Lewis F. Powell Jr. were rated highly qualified by the American Bar Association.

The ABA's Committee on the Federal Judiciary described Rehnquist, from the viewpoint of professional qualifications "one of the best persons available for appointment to the Supreme Court."

Three of the 12 panel members dissented to the extent they did not find Rehnquist meriting the highest rating and would have recorded the ABA as simply not opposed to his confirmation.

As for Powell, who will be called to testify later, the ABA committee reached the unanimous conclusion that the Richmond, Va., lawyer "meets high standards of professional competence, judicial temperament and integrity."

President Was Warned . . .

Blast May Cause Chain Of Quakes

Washington (AP) — A three-judge federal appeals court Wednesday refused for a second time to halt a massive nuclear explosion scheduled for Saturday on Amchitka Island off the Alaskan coast.

The court turned back environmentalist opponents of the test a few hours after it was disclosed that President Nixon's top environmental adviser had warned that the five-megaton blast could set off a chain of earthquakes and perhaps send a tidal wave across the Pacific Ocean.

The U.S. Court of Appeals decision virtually closed out any possibility that the underground blast will be stopped.

Opponents of the blast said they would appeal Thursday to the Supreme Court.

Environmentalists had claimed that even government experts believe the explosion could trigger earthquakes or tidal waves, kill wildlife or release radioactive waste into the air.

Documents Made Public

Meanwhile, the AEC made public four government documents previously made available only to attorneys for the seven environment groups headed by the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility.

Four other documents had been made public earlier, by court order.

One of the key documents released Wednesday is an environmental assessment by Russell E. Train, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality.

Train told an undersecretaries' committee of the National Security Council that the huge blast, code-named "cannikin," could trigger an earthquake by its direct impact on earth faults, or by forcing water into faults and lubricating them.

Train said earlier, smaller, atomic blasts had caused quakes whose force was always less than the blast itself. If that pattern were dependable, he said, "then there would be no apprehension with regard to the Cannikin event."

'Not The Case'

"Unfortunately, this is not the case," Train said.

He said recent scientific findings indicate a large earthquake may be made up of a series of smaller quakes, each one setting off the next.

In this theory, Train said, "Once one lock point is broken, sufficient energy may be released to break other lock points If the stored strain energy is large then the triggered earthquake could be of much greater magnitude than the triggering event.

"The underground explosion could serve as the first domino of the row of dominoes leading to a major earthquake."

Train said a big quake is the sparsely populated Aleutians might not cause much direct damage.

"The real danger from the triggering of a large earthquake by the nuclear explosion is in a tidal wave or tsunami . It is not posible at this time to assess quantitatively the probability of a tsunami following the explosion," he said.

Old Aged Group Shows Big Rise

. . . 12.4% Of Population

Over the past century, persons aged 65 and over grew from one percent to almost 12.4% of the total Nebraska population, according to a new information series put out by the Nebraska Commission on Aging.

In more concrete terms, there were 1,213 persons over 65 in the state at the time of the 1870 census. There are presently 183,526 persons in the same age bracket, as revealed by the 1970 census.

The steady numerical and percentage growth of this older population group may be attributed to the evoluton of several phenomena.

Stable Element

As the young settlers in Nebraska grew older they formed a stable element in the state population. Decreased infant mortality, improved medical care and nutrition along with the suppression of several major diseases contributed to the increased life span.

Also affecting these statistics are the migration patterns of the old and young. In more recent years younger people tend to leave the state, while older persons are generally less mobile.

The ratio between men and women in the senior citizen age bracket favors the women. According to the 1970 census, women over the age of 65 outnumber their male peers by 34.5%. Between the ages of 65 and 74 there were 1 25 women for each man, while the figure increased to 1.5 in the 75 and over age bracket

Fastest Increase

The number of women aged 74 and over showed a 43.1% increase fro mthe decade ending in 1960 to the 1970 census. This group is the fastest growing segment of the state population on a percentage of change basis.

Using the figures from the 1950 to 1970 censuses, the 75 and over age group had the largest percentage increase of any group in Nebraska with 32.7%. This parallels a national trend.

The 65 and over group gained an average of 5 3 persons each day over the past ten years. This compares with 14.5 persons per day in the under 65 group.

To Be More Stable

A study of the age cohort trends from 1940 to 1970 shows that the percentage of elderly persons in the state will tend to become more stable over the next ten to 20 years. On the other hand, the actual number of older persons in Nebraska will increase.

Figures from the 1970 census for Lincoln show that 10% of the city's population is over the age of 65. This group of senior citizens numbers 16,737.

Of this group females number 10,345, while there are 6,392 males. The ratio of females to males is 1.6 for the 65 and over age bracket in Lincoln

DAS To Send Swanson Checks

. . . BUT TREASURER SAYS HE WON'T SIGN THEM

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Department of Administrative Services Director Gus Lieske said late Wednesday that he will send welfare checks up to the State Treasurer's office Thursday for authorization despite Treasurer Wayne Swanson's announcement that he would not sign them.

"We'll continue sending payment warrants up to the treasurer's office; if he doesn't sign them, he will have to answer to the attorney general's office," Lieske said.

Swanson's decision, according to Deputy Treasurer Ruth Danekas, came about because the DAS had not provided his office with fund balance statements since June 30, 1971.

Hold Up Payments

The immediate effect of Swanson's action would be to hold up $2.5 million in welfare payments scheduled to be signed by Swanson Thursday.

In addition, Swanson's action could also effect other forms of state payments including payroll checks, since warrants (equivalent to bank checks) authorize payment of money from the state treasury.

Under the state's payment system, warrants are prepared by DAS, signed by the treasurer and returned to DAS for disbursement.

Lists Balance

The cash fund balance statement, according to Mrs. Danekas, lists the various state agencies' balance at the end of each month.

There appears to be some question of legality over whether the Nebraska Revised Statutes authorize Swanson to take such an action.

Although Mrs. Danekas did not specifically cite a statute, she said the statements are required to determine whether adequate funds exist to meet the warrant demands.

Lieske said he spoke to Attorney General Clarence A. H. Meyer whose preliminary indication was that Swanson does not have the legal grounds for such actions.

"Swanson's office is receiving the information they need to sign the warrants, although it is not the particular one to which he refers to," Lieske said.

"The legal statute which he talks of doesn't specify the nature or the frequency of such reports.

"Besides that law was repealed in 1969," Lieske added.

'Couple Of Days'

The DAS director indicated that his office would not know for a "couple of days" whether Swanson has, in fact, refused to sign due to the time factor.

"If we don't get them back, action will be initiated through the attorney general's office," he said.

Swanson, according to Mrs. Danekas, was not in his office and could not be reached.

Catholics Oppose Prayer Bill

Washington (AP) — Opponents of the school-prayer amendment received a boost Wednesday from a Catholic organization and appeared to be within striking distance of victory in next Monday's showdown House vote.

The United States Catholic Conference announced its opposition to the proposal. Several Protestant and Jewish religious groups have been opposing the amendment for some time but major Catholic organizations had remained silent until Wednesday.

Spokesmen for both sides said Wednesday opponents of the amendment are picking up strength from congressmen who previously supported it or were undecided.

And House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., announced his opposition and said he thinks it will fail.

"In the past week the mail to some offices has reversed itself and congressmen who once supported it are joining our side," said Stuart Johnson, a Washington attorney who is helping lead the anti-amendment forces

"There is some vacillation," conceded an aide to Rep. John Buchanan, R-Ala., a supporter of the proposal.

A two-thirds majority of "yes" votes among those present and voting is necessary to approve the amendment and send it to the Senate, where its opponents say they are not sure it can be stopped.

"It would be a real mistake for a House member to vote for it, thinking the Senate will kill it," said an aide to Sen. Sam J Ervin Jr., D-N.C., a leading opponent of the proposal.

If all present members of the House were present and voting 143 nays would be required to prevent the required two-thirds majority.

"We've got over a hundred we can count on now," Johnson said. "It will be decided by those who are now undecided and the no-shows."

Mrs. Ben Ruhlin of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, an ardent supporter of the amendment, said Wednesday she thinks passage is certain, declaring there are only about 88 sure opponents.

Nebraskans Told Reclamation Plan Standards Changing

Dallas, Tex. (AP) — New standards of evaluating project benefits and cost-sharing methods are being worked out and will apply to Reclamation Bureau projects in Nebraska as well as elsewhere, a Nebraska delegation to the National Water Resources Association in Dallas was told Wednesday.

Reclamation Commissioner Ellis Armstrong, in assuring the delegation of his support for water development in the state, pointed out that under present criteria, very few reclamation projects would be built.

He said "interest rates and rising construction costs must be offset by benefits which result in favorable benefit-cost ratios." Clarence Henkel and Harry Bryan, seeking construction of the Little Blue Unit in Nebraska, said they hope some of the review and restudying the project is undergoing can be terminated and work gotten under way.

Henkel, of Gladstone, Neb., secretary of the Little Blue Irrigation District and Little Blue Flood Control and Conservation Association, said his area suffers flood problems but it also needs water and "there should be a maturation point for reclamation projects studies."

Armstrong said, "This is fine, but we are in a continually changing basis for evaluating projects. We must work out all problems before submitting reports that are satisfactory for authorization purposes." Armstrong emphasized the changing criteria is designed for new emphasis on water development.

The Little Blue Unit is a development proposed for south central Nebraska. Approval of an original report completed in 1968 was delayed because rising interest rates and construction costs indicated marginal feasibility.

A report now in the final phases is scheduled for completion in May 1972. Bryan said they had been seeking this project for Nebraska since 1956.

He said "tremendous local support exists for the project and much of "the original dissension concerning development has already disappeared."

Armstrong said that the bureau is cooperating to the fullest in completing and expediting the report, but "it is conceivable when new criteria and project evaluation procedures are issued that further revision and study may become necessary."

Democrats, Republicans Dispute Voting

By WALTER R. MEARS

Washington (AP) — Democrats and Republicans lodged counterclaims of national success Wednesday in the outcome of odd-year city and state elections. But the real message of the scattered balloting may have been that, nationally, there isn't any.

The strategy that worked in Kentucky flopped in Pennsylvania. The hard-line, law-and-order approach that helped Frank L. Rizzo capture Philadelphia's city hall took a drubbing in Boston.

A Democrat captured Tuesday's biggest prize, as Wendell Ford was elected governor of Kentucky, boosting his party's statehouse dominance to 30 of the 50 states.

Ford campaigned against President Nixon on economic grounds, and said his victory was a portent of what is to come in 1972, the beginning of a "dump Nixon" movement.'

In general, local issues, personalities and preferences appeared to have been the forces at work in shaping the election verdicts.

Nixonomics 'Significant'

Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said the Ford victory in Kentucky was particularly significant as "the first major referendum" on President Nixon's economic program.

Ford defeated Republican Tom Emberton, who had the active backing of outgoing GOP Gov. Louie B. Nunn.

Predictably, Sen. Robert J. Dole, the Republican national chairman, denied that: ". . . Kentucky issues were mostly local, and I can see little significance in the outcome of that race."

Republican spokesmen chose instead to emphasize the victory of catsup heir H. John Heinz III, 33, in the day's only congressional race, in Pennsylvania. Heinz swamped Democrat John E. Connelly by more than two-to-one, to win the Pittsburgh-area seat left vacant by death.

Maureen O'Connor, 25. . . teacher is on San Diego City Council.

The economy, and the administration program, was an issue in the campaign there too.

Rep. Bob Wilson, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, said the voters had rejected an effort by Connelly to make political capital out of difficult economic adjustments. "It didn't work in Pennsylvania yesterday, and it won't work across the country in 1972," he said.

'Lack Of Confidence'

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said the results signaled to him "a lack of confidence in the national Republican administration and its failures to deal effectively with basic domestic problems, particularly the economy."

At the White House, President Nixon discussed the election results with aides, but made no public comment.

Republican Mayor Richard G. Lugar of Indianapolis, Nixon spokesman on urban affairs, easily won re-election in a race in which he was thought to have faced possible trouble. Furthermore, Republicans won 20 of 29 council seats under the newly merged city-county government that Lugar had championed.

In Philadelphia, Rizzo, the former police commissioner who styled himself "the toughest cop in America," won election as mayor by some 53,000 votes over Republican W. Thacher Longstreth.

Rizzo ran far behind Longstreth in black wards of the city, but fashioned lop-sided majorities in blue-collar wards, Italian neighborhoods and the predominantly white northeastern section.

Hicks Loses Badly

While Rizzo was winning in Philadelphia, Rep. Louise Day Hicks was losing badly in Boston. Mayor Kevin H. White swept to re-election there. Mrs. Hicks, the adamant foe of school desegregation busing, had stressed rising crime rates and city taxes in her campaign.

In elections elsewhere:

—Henry E. Howell Jr., running as an independent, was elected lieutenant governor of Virginia in an election that was a severe setback to the Republican organization of Gov. Linwood Holton. George P. Shafran, the GOP nominee who had Holton's all-out backing, ran a distant third, behind Howell and Democrat George J. Kostel.

—William Waller, a-Mississippi Democrat, won that state's governorship by trouncing Charles Evers, a black, and a member of the Democratic National Committee. Evers, first of his race to run for governor of Mississippi, said one impact of his campaign had been to draw out white voters, who outnumber registered blacks, 7 to 3. "We had them scared," he said. "That's all right, white folks, we are going to keep coming. This is the beginning."

—Another kind of black political effort foundered in-Cleveland, and Ralph J. Perk, a Republican, won election as mayor in a major upset. He defeated Arnold R. Pinkney, a Negro who ran as an independent with the support of outgoing Mayor Carl B. Stokes. The Perk victory blocked Stokes' efforts to fashion a black political organization in Cleveland as a step toward creating a national coalition built around Negro voters.

—In San Francisco, Mayor Joseph Alioto, under a federal indictment he called "a political knifing," won re-election over a field of 10 challengers. "I'm happy the people of San Francisco have given me, in effect, a vote of confidence in this," said Alioto.

—Democrats gained ground in the New Jersey legislature, and control of the 80-member assembly was in doubt. Forty Democrats. 39 Republicans, and one independent — Newark vigilante Anthony Imperiale were elected. Republicans held control of the senate, but by a narrowed margin.

—Newly enfranchised 18 year-old voters made their presence felt in scattered local elections, particularly in campus towns. Francis X. McCloskey, 32, a recent law school graduate, defeated the mayor of Bloomington, Ind., site of Indiana University. College students won election to municipal offices in Ohio, Rhode Island and Minnesota, and Iowa.

Pay Board Proposes 5% Lid On Wage Hik

The New York Times

Washington — The public and business members of the Pay Board proposed Wednesday a 5% guideline for wage increases during Phase Two of the Nixon administration's new economic program.

Qualified sources said statements developed during separate caucuses by members of the two groups also agreed that workers should not be allowed to recover pay raises blocked during the wage-price freeze that expires Nov. 13.

No action was taken on the proposals Wednesday, but the public and business representatives make up a two-thirds majority of the 15-member board.

There was no immediate reaction from labor, which holds the remaining five seats. But the trade union me have insisted that ex contracts must be honore retroactive and deferre creases paid.

The public members said by the sources to suggested that increase after the freeze began A should not take effect unt months after the freez pires.

Publishers Seek Price-Control Exemption

Washington (UPI) — Spokesmen for three associations of newspaper, book and magazine publishers — citing both economic and constitutional grounds — asked Congress Wednesday for an exemption from price controls.

They testified before the Senate Banking Committee, which is considering the administration's bill to extend until April 30, 1973, President Nixon's authority to control wage and prices. The law under which he imposed controls on Aug. 15 expires April 30.

Eugene Duffield, chairman of the Magazine Publishers Association, said press freedom would be threatened if publishers had to appeal to government officials for the right to raise prices enough to remain in business. He contended that officials' decisions would be colored by their opinion of the publication making the appeal.

Theodore Serrill, executive vice president of the National Newspaper Association, said, "Control of prices charged by the press for its product is the first step toward control of the press in this country."

His association represents 900 of the nation's 1,750 dailies and 6,000 of the nation's 7,600 weeklies.

Thomas B. Curtis, speaking for the 260 book publishing members of the Association of American Publishers, said publishers would have to abandon the practice of reissuing old books if the books had to be priced no higher than when they first appeared.

Capt. L. Sellmeyer Testifies Mrs. Sturm Remained Calm

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A Lincoln police captain testified Wednesday that Mrs. Judy L. Sturm freely admitted shooting her husband, Harvey, and "remained calm" when advised about a half hour later he was dead.

Capt. Lowell Sellmeyer told a Lancaster District Court jury in the second-degree murder trial of Mrs. Sturm that her first words were "I shot him" when asked what happened during the early morning hours of Sept. 18 at the Sturm home at 2740 Arlington.

Sellmeyer said that he then advised Mrs. Sturm of her constitutional rights to remain silent and have an attorney present, but that the defendant appeared willing to talk to him.

Hollering, Shouting

Mrs. Sturm related to Sellmeyer that her husband had come home about 2 a.m. and "was hollering and shouting and began slapping her around after she asked where he had been."

"She showed me her puffed lip and a small cut inside her mouth," the officer said. "She said he continued arguing and shouting and jerked the telephone off the wall."

Mrs. Sturm said her husband threatened to strangle her with the telephone cord if she called police, Sellmeyer said.

Got A Shotgun

After her husband had gone to bed, and she felt he was asleep, Sellmeyer said Mrs. Sturm told him she got a shotgun, took it downstairs and loaded it, and returned upstairs to the bedroom and shot him.

In opening statements to the jury, Public Defender T. Clement Gaughan contended that Judy Sturm feared her husband was going to kill her after coming home intoxicated and belligerent about 2 a.m. on Sept. 18.

He said Harvey Sturm had beaten her and threatened to strangle her with a telephone cord, and thrown two lamps and several kitchen items around the downstairs.

Opposes Punishment

As the first witness called in the trial, Mrs. Helen Sturm of Topeka, Kan., testified on cross-examination that she didn't feel her daughter-in-law should be punished for her son's death.

Mrs. Helen Sturm said she related this to Gaughan shortly after Harvey Sturm's death.

"I still feel that Judy shouldn't be punished for this," she told the jury of eight women and four men. "It won't bring my son back."

On direct examination by Deputy County Atty. Bernard McGinn, she testfiied to coming to Lincoln on New Year's Day after her son had been arrested in connection with an alleged beating of Judy Sturm.

Had Black Eye

"Judy had a black eye, scratches on her forehead, and said she hurt all over," the older Mrs. Sturm said.

She said she later asked her son to "promise not to do this again," but that Harvey had replied, "I can't promise it won't happen again but I promise to quit drinking."

Mrs. Sturm said her son and family visited in Topeka the weekend before his death, and that he seemed "tired and cross," but that Judy had made "no complaints" about their relationship during the visit.

'Judy Loved Harvey'

She described her daughter-in-law as a "wonderful housekeeper" and that she felt "Judy loved Harvey."

Other testimony Wednesday indicated that Harvey Sturm was hit in the chest with two shotgun shots and was bleeding heavily when police were summoned to the residence.

Judy Sturm and her two children had gone to the next-door neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond K. Anderson at 2750 Arlington.

Another prosecution witness, Clarence V. Kuenning, testified he didn't believe Harvey Sturm was drunk when he drove him home about 2 a.m. after the two had been together for some six hours after getting off work as bread route salesmen.

Drove Around

Kuenning said they had spent some time at a downtown tavern, then went to Walton's Cove, a night spot on North 48th, and later drove around town for an hour before going home.

Kuenning said Sturm had started with a "Black Russian" drink but then switched to beer during the remainder of evening, and "probably had seven or eight beers."

Kuenning said Sturm was "not overly under the influence (of alcohol)" when he got out of car to go into his house.

Kiburz Warns Against Water Diversion Talk

A legislative water study committee was warned Wednesday that talk of water diversion could destroy the citizen unity required to implement Nebraska's proposed state water plan.

"The water plan should not have considered diversion," Max Kiburz of Columbus, general manager of the Loup River Public Power District, told senators.

"That drives people apart."

Kiburz said the framework study for the water plan "infers that Loup River Basin water is available for export to other areas."

But, he suggested, that matter needs further study.

"There are unanswered questions about irrigation needs, the effect of pump irrigation on stream flow and how much water is needed downstream," Kiburz said.

If some diversion proves to be justified, he said, "I am sure people in the Loup Basin would help get the water to other areas rather than let it go to waste."

The water development plan will succeed only "if we have people working together," Kiburz insisted.

"Diversion talk at this time will only pull them apart."

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora, committee chairman, said the framework study only "suggests the possibility" of future diversion.

"That scares us," Kiburz said.

"The plan is a giant step forward that has been needed for a long time . . . but I would not recommend that the Legislature adopt it in full because of the diversion consideration."

State Game Commission Director Willard Barbee told the committee the water plan falls short of providing all the information needed for future development.

Additional investigations should include "comprehensive socio-economic plans for which clear and concise social objectives for water management and development can be established," Barbee said.

Studies should include complete data on existing basic water resources and the impact that "water manipulations" have on social values, he said.

Irrigation also needs more study, he suggested.

The committee will hear more suggestions from invited witnesses Thursday.

Friday has been reserved for testimony from the public. Kremer said. The hearings begin at the Statehouse at 9:30 a.m.

State's Take From Liquor Up $47,000

The Nebraska Liquor Control Commission reported Wednesday a $47,281 increase in revenue from all sources during October over the same month a year ago.

The commission said its total take for the month was $598.517, compared to the $551,236 reported the same month last year.

Total revenue collected so far this year, the commission also reported, amounted to $5,739,662. The total at the same time last year was $5,514,828.

The breakdown in the October revenue included spiritous liquors, $355,448; fortified wines, $15,057; light wines, $17,588; beer, $208,897; license fees, $900; registration fees, $66; shipper permits, $50; and miscellaneous revenue, $508.

TV GUIDES NEW MISSILE

Inspecting a newly-developed Maverick missle is Harold McKee, a Hughes Aircraft Co. technician. The missile has a television camera lens protruding from its nose cone to guide the missile to its target. The Maverick is locked on its target by the pilot before being released, then is guided to the precise spot on which the TV lens is focused. The white hose supplies cooling air to the guidance system. The missle is being produced for the Air Force at the Hughes plant in Tucson, Ariz.

Searcy May Join 3rd District Race

For the first time in a decade Third District Democratic primary voters may have a congressional choice to make in 1972.

Donald Searcy of Kearney, 1970 Democratic nominee for Republican Rep. Dave Martin's Third District seat in the House of Representatives, said Wednesday he is being urged to make the race again next year.

Already filed as a candidate for the Democratic nomination is Ted Reeves of Central City.

The Third District has not had a Democratic congressional primary contest since 1962.

Searcy, a geography professor at Kearney State College, mailed letters last month to 1970 campaign workers, Democratic county chairmen, farm leaders and other Third District residents seeking their advice on whether he should be a candidate once again in 1972.

Recipients of the letters were also asked whether they thought Searcy ought to make a bid for the U.S. Senate nomination next year.

"About one-third of the questionnaires have been returned, and a majority of the workers in the Third District want a Martin-Searcy scrap," Searcy reported Wednesday.

"We plan to have some sound reasoning and good support before we make any commitment," he said.

Searcy had earlier indicated that he and State Sen. Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox had agreed to avoid contesting one another for the same nomination. If both decided to seek national office, one would go for the Senate and the other for the House seat.

Ziebarth has announced his intention to seek the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Searcy told 1970 supporters by letter that campaign financing is a major concern since a new policy adopted by the Board of Trustees of the State Colleges would require him to take a leave of absence without pay on the day he files as a candidate.

If he were to win the nomination, he pointed out, "this means I will have nine months without any income."

Searcy said he would like to have a commitment of at least $5.000 by Feb. 15 if that is possible.

"Our original goal (in 1970) was to remove Dave Martin from Washington so he could come back and run his lumberyard," Searcy said. "I would still like to do that.

"I just happen to be old-fashioned enough not to start another job until we have finished the first one."

Searcy, 38, lost to Martin in 1970 by a 93,705 to 63,698 count. Martin, first elected in 1960, is serving his sixth term as congressman from the sprawling 61-county west-central Third District.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By KINGSBURY SMITH

(Note: William O. Dobler, The Star's editor, is out of town on business. Today's column is by Kingsbury Smith, chief foreign writer for King Features Syndicate.)

ROME — Vice President Sprio T. Agnew is still hoping that he will be President Nixon's re-election running mate in 1972, but he is aware there is a possibility he might be dropped from the ticket. If he is dropped, he will not accept a seat on the U.S. Supreme Court as a payoff, nor is he likely to accept a cabinet post. He will probably enter private business and seek to provide greater financial security and comfort for himself and his family.

However, the vice president believes those who are convinced he is going to be dumped by President Nixon may find themselves as surprised as they were when he was selected by Mr. Nixon as his running mate in 1968.

While President Nixon has not yet informed the vice president whether he will be retained or dropped on the re-election ticket, the uncertainty of what will happen appears to be very much on Mr. Agnew's mind. If he is dropped, his associates feel it will be a sacrificial offering to the liberal elements in the Republican party who consider him too reactionary, provocative, divisive and unmalleable. There are others who question his vote-getting power in both the 1968 presidential election and in the 1970 congressional and state elections.

In the former, the Republican ticket polled considerably less than a majority of the total popular votes cast for Nixon, Humphrey and George Wallace. Critics claimed that in the 1970 congressional elections, Agnew showed weak pulling power in the states he stumped. The Republicans gained two additional seats in the Senate, but nominal control of that body was left in the hands of the Dmocrats. In the House, the Democrats won nine additional seats, giving them 255 of the 435 total. The Democrats also won 11 governorships from the Republicans, changing what had been a Republican advantage of 32 to 18 to a Democratic lead of 29 to 21.

★

While the Democrats contended the '70 elections were a setback for the GOP, President Nixon and Agnew claimed it was a victory since it strengthened the President's position in the Senate and the off-year loss in the House was less than usual.

As recently as last month, the President praised Agnew for doing "a fine job," and urged members of the administration to defend him against his critics.

While this might be interpreted as an indication that Nixon intends to keep Agnew on the re-election ticket, the latter realizes the President is a political animal and that if he felt he needed someone else as running mate, he probably would not hesitate to drop him.

What does distress this self-made son of a one-time pushcart peddling Greek immigrant father is the continuous effort of the left-wing and liberal eastern press to portray him as an extreme right, racist, gaff-prone political nincompoop.

He admtis he has made some gaffs and says he felt like kicking himself every time he did, but he doesn't believe he deserves the virtual character assassination treatment to which he has been subjected by the liberal press and TV commentators because he dared to challenge their views.

As for his alleged racism, he points out that as a Maryland County executive in the early 60s, he sponsored and won passage of the first local accommodation law south of the Mason-Dixon line.

As for political ability, Agnew was considered an outstanding and progressive administrator as governor and county executive in Maryland. He put through the largest tax increase in the state's history to pay for long-needed reforms. He also sponsored one of the first and toughest anti-pollution laws that was enacted in any state in the nation. He raised educational spending to 57 per cent of his budget and carried out a thorough reform of the police force.

The tall, handsome, calmly cool vice president has been described by his critics as being icily aloof. He has impressed me as a rational, pragmatic man imbued with old-fashioned American ideals.

'Spiro, I've Almost Decided On A New Running Mate In '72 . . .'

Mayor's Choices Excellent

Two weeks back the City Council voted 7-0 each time to deny three separate zoning change requests — in unusual and unanimous, of late, agreement with the recommendations of the City-County Planning Commission and Planning Director Douglas Brogden.

The rare quality of the concensus balanced against a number of prior council votes that were at odds with planning commission opinion, points out the divergence of zoning philosophies generally held by the planning commissioners on the one hand and at least a determined minority of the council on the other.

We don't believe that the council, the representative, elected body, should always agree with planning commission recommendations purely as a matter of practice. But the commission, we believe, has stood on sound planning principles and has acted on behalf of the best interests of the community, their recommendations in line with the thinking of the majority of Lincolnites. We think that any effort to weigh the commission toward a different viewpoint should be held suspect.

Councilman F. Bob Sikyta was the only member of the council to vote against the two reappointments and one new appointment to the planning commission offered by Mayor Schwartzkopf. Sikyta felt that a member of the Goals and Policies Committee, which has been charged with the preliminary work on revising the city's comprehensive plan, should be appointed to fill one of the three vacancies. He also argued that someone "in the field," for example a developer or an appraiser or perhaps a Chamber of Commerce representative, should be considered.

It should be pointed out that all present members of the planning commission were invited to assist in developing the thinking of the Goals and Policies Committee and several have taken a direct part in the committee's function.

We further doubt the wisdom of creating a developer's seat, or building trades' seat, or chamber seat, or what have you, on the planning commission. The commission membership should not be categorized.

Mayor Schwartzkopf in his appointments wisely recognized the valuable planning commission experience of Mrs. J. Edmunds Miller and State Sen. Jerry Warner and the potential for distinguished service of new member Louis Shackelford, a retailer, and the council majority is to be commended for confirming them.

Racism Dead In Politics?

At his inauguration, Georgia's Gov. Jimmy Carter served notice on his state that his administration would serve all the people — black and white — and that racism as an operative principle of government and politics was dead.

Carter was joined in the new breed of southern moderate politicians Tuesday by the election as governor in Mississippi of white attorney Bill Waller, who told supporters at a victory celebration that the state had "witnessed a historical transition . . . the campaign was void of any emotionalism or any negative political persuasion. Starting in the near future, racism will no longer be a part of our political spectrum."

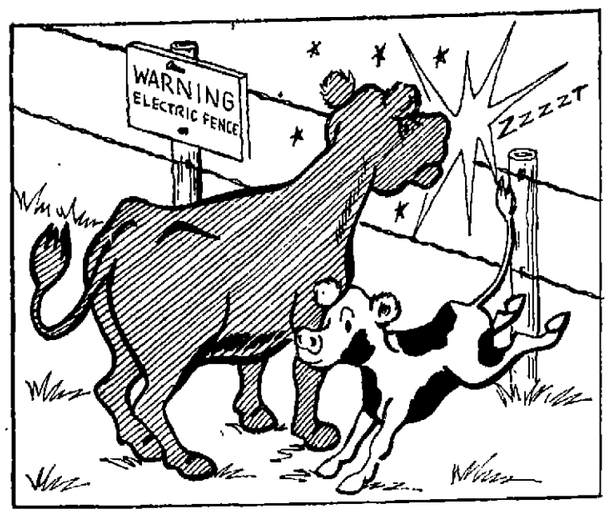
Waller's victory statement sounds all the more credible in light of the observations of Charles Evers, his black opponent. Stomped 3-1 by Waller, Evers nevertheless could say that "Bill ran one of the cleanest races of any white gubernatorial candidate I've ever seen. He kept down the tension. We both tried to change the attitudes of Mississippi."

The fact that he, as a black man, ran for office "without being shot, without being killed," has changed Mississippi and "it'll never be the same again," Evers said.

It takes more than rhetoric to effect change, but Carter is living proof that more than that lies within the southern moderate. With Waller's election and Evers' post-election attitude, there is similar hope for Mississippi. Southern blacks will argue, and with some justification, that the election of such as Waller will not mean that the old divisions and problems will immediately vanish. The change in attitude of the power structure, however, appears to be significant.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country



The fog and drizzle continue making the completion of the milo harvest rather difficult. After so many days of dreary wet days, the larks burst into song last evening just as the sun broke through the clouds. No doubt they were fooled into thinking the past weeks of clouds and gray days were winter. They were jubilant last night, singing every bit as joyously as they do in the spring, until the last rays of the sunlight disappeared. They no doubt thought it was a short winter.

I thought as they sang last night that very soon they would have to revise their thinking because the first blast of frigid air from the north can come any day now. It always seems to be the worst . . . the first cold seems so cold and the first snowflake almost drift-size. Perhaps that is a sign that comes with the first half century of living subtly telling one that he is growing old.

What to do during the long evenings of winter now becomes a question. I was so surprised to see pictures of crocheted articles making a comeback. Years ago crocheted headrests for chairs along with armrest covers were used in most homes to protect the pieces of furniture. These same pieces were illustrated in a modern room arrangement pictured in a leading magazine.

At the time they disappeared, they were labeled as old-fashioned. Now they are laebeled high fashion. I don't crochet but a long, cold winter could drive me to pursuing almost any new hobby.

I decided to get the peony bed cleaned up before the cold season gets a grip on the Midwest. I snipped the dried-branches and stems at ground level and burned all the stalks to prevent any diseases getting started in the bushes.

Each spring when the shoots are a couple of inches above ground, I spray them with a Bordeaux water mixture. This and burning the dead stalks in the fall seem to keep the peony bushes in good health. I have never had buds that blacken and refuse to open or leaves that become diseased and discolored during the long growing season.

Roses, I have decided, are too much work. I still have the ones I set out a number of years ago and they reward me with lovely blossoms every year but mounding them up every fall, pruning and spraying during the growing season are such a chore. This autumn I am going to let them go through the winter without a protective mound of dirt around them. Those that don't survive will make one fewer to care for next year as some were getting rather anemic and scrawny looking this year, anyway.

The Farmer is stringing an electric fence around the wheat so the cattle can be turned into another field of milo stalks. If he doesn't get the fence up, the cattle will go on the green wheat and the milo field will not get cleaned up before the snow falls and covers it.

It doesn't take long to put up an electric fence and it doesn't take the cattle long to find out what this kind of fence is. The very small calves that brush up against it give a quick jump and snort then run in the opposite direction. They learn at a very young age that the delicate silver wire that surrounds the field has some terrible power that sends some uncomfortable surge of needles through the entire body. Likewise, they learn when there is no electricity going through the wires because of trouble along the fencing and soon begin getting under the wires.

Fortunately man can outwit the beast but there are times when the critters almost have the last laugh in the game of wits.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Animal World

Lincoln, Neb.

"Pets"—what a nice word. It means that children and some grown-ups are interested in carying for the birds and animals which God created when He made His beautiful new world.

My Dad gave me my first pet, a tiny yellow duck. It soon followed me everywhere, much to a very small boy's grief. In one thoughtless moment, I ran into the kitchen. The baby duck could run only so fast and just as it hopped into the doorway, the closing screen door slammen shut.

There have been dogs and cats and their offspring all through the lives of myself, my children and my grandchildren. Last week I made one of my cross-country trips to the big white house on the hill, where four pet-owners also arrived.

There was Mike the brown shepherd. He came to me often, lifting gentle eyes, then licking my fingers, offering his friendship. There were two gray poodles and one white one. "Blue" needs no invitation to jump up and snuggle against a person. On the other side, "Felicia" Then "Hyacinth"—she doesn't mix. If she can't be with a person alone, she goes to another empty chair. Pets have definite personalities—friendly, jealous, reserved.

The center of attention was the fluff of snow-white, blue-eyed kitten. He and Blue wrestled, clawed, leaped and chased in complete joy, until exhausted then sprawled cozily together in sleep.

Anyone who thinks pets don't have personalities has never had the exciting opportunity of watching the human characteristics of their pets.

Enough Christians?

Lincoln, Neb.

I feel I must respond to J.W.C.'s letter of Oct. 29 concerning Christians and government. I agree that perhaps we need another Abe Lincoln or George Washington in government. They were men who worked hard and turned to prayer. But we need to go a step further.

Good government can legislate action, but only to a degree; they cannot legislate feelings. This is where the Christians and the church need to enter in. To accomplish this and still maintain separation of church and state, the church must teach moral values, ethics and justice. People then, as Christians, Protestants and Catholics together, need to be the Salt and the Light, getting a nickel's worth of justice whenever they can. This also happens but not to a high enough degree.

J.W.C. closed his letter by asking if we have enough Christians in America today. I have wondered about that, too, and what will happen if there aren't.

Three Groups

Lincoln, Neb.

During the course of our history, there have been three rather small societies, whether good or evil, as far as this writer knows, that have changed the course of the government, and not one of the three numbered over 300 souls.

First, the Sons of Liberty during the period of the Revolution planned numerous confrontations with British authority.

Second, the Ku Klux Klan after the Civil War rode roughshod over the newly freed slaves, creating the necessity for the 14th Amendment and the first Civil Rights Act of 1871.

Third, the Weathermen of the Students for a Democratic Society By their activism in terrorist tactics, knowing their number was too small to politically change things, they have swung the government in five years from a liberalism to a strict conservatism which they hope will be intolerable to the governed.

Armistice Day

Lincoln, Neb.

I am one person who certainly agrees with Ethel F. Heidelk about how people seem to ignore November 11, Armistice Day.

My mother was 18 years old in 1918 and told us children all about World War I. She had a brother who enlisted and was fortunate enough to come back alive. She knew all the wonderful songs that were written during those years. Our favorite was "Over There."

I was not born until 1924, but I shall still hang the flag out every November 11, and I hope many others will do the same

Decision Questioned

Lincoln, Neb.

The recent decision on Oct 26 by the State Liquor Commission to permit the transfer of a liquor license owned by Victor Groh of 146 South Ninth Street to Jack Mettlen of Hideaway at 27th and Nebraska Highway is beyond our comprehension.

The decision is especially appalling when the following facts are considered:

(1) Twice the Police Department has recommended denial.

(2) Twice have petitions of over 500 signatures been submitted supporting denial of the permit.

(3) Twice has the City Council unanimously vetoed the request.

We would like to know if the State Liquor Commission, appointed by the governor's' office, feels they are beholden only to themselves. Are they not held responsible to the governor who has been elected to represent all the people?

Why should Ed Robinson of Omaha or Ivan Armstrong of Ogallala or Ray Osborn of Lincoln decide our due process of government is not valid? Do we need to remind them the meaning of democracy—"a government that is run by the people who live under it."

The people of south Lincoln have been denied their citizens' rights. We strongly recommend that Governor Exon review this decision immediately.

Gun-Control Law Has Rough Going

WASHINGTON — Gun Controls—The Nixon administration is working in the wings of Congress to weaken the 1968 gun control law, which was passed following the assassinations of the Kennedy brothers. The backstage operators are White House aide Clark MacGregor and Treasury aide Gordon Liddy. The latter lobbied against the bill before he moved into the Treasury Department. And MacGregor as a Minnesota congressman tried to gut the bill on behalf of a cartridge company that employed many of his constituents. Meanfhile, the gun lobbyists have been granted two private White House meetings.

☆ ☆ ☆

Cambodian Controversy—A controversy has erupted in the backrooms of the Pentagon over military shipments to Cambodia. President Nixon and Congress alike are sensitive over the presence of U.S. military men in Cambodia. But the generals warn that millions worth of military equipment may be wasted or pilfered unless there are Americans on the spot to supervise the distribution and to advise the Cambodians how to use it. The generals wanted a large delivery team sent to Cambodia but offered to settle for a 100-man team. Defense Secretary Mel Laird, however, turned them down and cut the team in half.

☆ ☆ ☆

Aid to Chiang—The U.S. has been trying quietly to cut back military aid to Chiang Kai-shek. U.S. officials have suggested in their secret discussions that old Chiang has enough cash stashed away to pay more of his own military bills. He's holding the money to finance his dream of re-conquering the Chinese mainland. We have examined some of the Pentagon's secret working papers, which contain this fascinating statement: "We do know privately that the GRC (Chiang's government) has considerable sums of money in special funds, mostly marked for contingenvy use in mainland recovery. The possibility that these funds would be used for routine military expenditures is remote, and they would be disbursed only as a last resort."

Ladies' Man? —Despite his high voice and balding pate, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is emerging as the female favorite in the 1972 presidential race. Reason: He's gaining a reputation for being totally without bias against women. At a recent strategy session, for example, McGovern was working out the details of a speech on women's ights. "Why not say, "My first appointment to the Supreme Court will be a woman°" some one suggested. Someone else objected that the first appointment might have to be a Chief Justice. "Why shouldn't the Chief Justice be a woman?" was McGovern's instant response.

Big Clyde—White House aides, with staunch conservative leanings, are positively seething over the idea that John Connally might replace Spiro Agnew as vice president. They forecast an uproar from the right if Agnew should be dropped from the ticket. Connally, as a protege of ex-President Lyndon Johnson, is particularly repugnant to them.

Johnson Memoirs Defend Vietnam Policy; Insists Kennedy Would Have Done Same

LONDON—On March 30, 1967, President Joxhnson had all the Democratic state chairmen to the White House for a reception. As each shook the President's hand, a photograph was taken — to be sent to the chairman as a useful political memento.

At a dinner that night in the Washington Hilton, Johnson spoke with great effect of what he had done for the poor and the disadvantaged of America. Suddenly he said he had come to the point in his speech where Mrs. Johnson had told him to stop, but he was going on. He spoke about Vietnam, calling the war a vital defense of freedom and denouncing the critics as traitors.

When he finished, all but two of the people in the room rose and applauded. Those two never received the picture taken of them with the President.

That characteristic vignette makes a useful corrective to the statesmanlike portrait Lyndon Johnson paints of himself in the Vietnam passages of his memoirs. He was not calm and detached on the war; he was fiercely committed to military victory, and he could be petty or vindictive toward anyone who disagreed.

As excerpted in the newspapers, the memoirs are a sad exercise in Johnsonian self-justification, showing no signs of new insight or regret on Vietnam. Among other things, the former President quotes from such men as Robert McNamara and Sen. J. W Fulbright to show that they once favored his war policy. But of course all that really shows is that they eventually recognized the destructive cost of the war, while it is doubtful that he ever did.

But his principal effort, by way of enlisting retroactive supporters, is to suggest that President Kennedy would have sent American combat forces to Vietnam had he lived. He quotes a second-hand newspaper account of a 1961 Fulbright-Kennedy meeting and says it pointed up what everyone in the administration knew: "That keeping our word might mean spilling our blood."

Then Johnson tries to associate President Kennedy with a 1961 report by Gen. Maxwell Taylor that urged a U.S. ground combat commitment. Kennedy never rejected that proposal, the memoirs say; he just deferred action on it. But when a president does not approve a plan, not even after two years, he has rejected it.

John Kennedy, when he came to consider Vietnam, was profoundly skeptical of military advisers who urged the commitment of American combat forces. As Arthur Schlesinger has persuasively argued in the New York Review of Books, Kennedy had had the same advice in regard to the Bay of Pigs and Laos — and rejected it. And he also knew very well the history of the French war in Indo-China.

No one can prove what President Kennedy would or would not have done in Vietnam. But those who contend that he would have followed the Johnson course of massive American intervention have a good deal of Kennedy history to overcome, and they can hardly make the case with evidence as feeble and self-serving as appears in the newspaper extracts of the Johnson memoirs.

The whole Johnson account of Vietnam can be measured against the mass of historical material already available. For example, Don Oberdorfer's superlative new book on the 1968 Tet offensive, "Tet!" leaves threadbare Johnson's assertion that he knew all about it ahead of time.

☆ ☆ ☆

But it is in a wider sense that the reality of the Vietnam war—and of its reflection in the Johnson White House — is missing from these memoirs.

Reality was a president who took the United States into a major land war without ever telling his people that he was doing so.

Reality was the decision to drop more bombs on small peasant country than fell on Europe in World War II—and then to be surprised and regretful when it turned out that there had been fearful civilian casualties.

Reality was the widespread use of deadly herbicides for the first time in any war, despite scientific warnings that there could be lasting damage to the vegetation and the people of Vietnam.

Reality was the arrogance of Washington's assumption of the right to decide the mode of life—and death—in a wholly different society thousands of miles away.

Reality was a president who long resisted arguments for bombing halts and real peace when he saw public opinion turning against him changed his line and told Clark Clifford: "I've got to get me a peace proposal."

Self-justification is an inevitable human trait, and a man as big and proud as Lyndon Johnson could hardly be expected to suppress it. But by returning to the defense of his Vietnam policies, he only reminds us of the years that so deeply wounded the presidency and the country.

When was the first helicopter used by the military? —Leo Young, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: You may be surprised to learn the first helicopter was used by American forces in World War II. The Sikorski R4 was used in 1943 in Europe by the Air Commandos. Regular training courses began in 1944.

In 1950, use of the Bell OH13 helicopter began and this was the first small chopper bought by the military in large quantities. It was widely used in Korea.

Please explain a letter that appeared in the Star's letters to the editor column. Did Mr. Paul Stewart mean that each envelope should have first class postage and then several envelopes mailed in a box postage free when he wrote the following: Place all Christmas cards in a box or package and mail with first-class postage to . . . (address). It is not necessary to place stamps on the box or package. —Ann Bassett, Ord

ACTION LINE: E. Paul Stewart, projct coordinator for Vietnam Mail Call which is now conducting its seventh Christmas card program for U.S. servicemen in Vietnam, explains that cards and letters sent to Mail Call for distribution may be sent without separate postage for each card. The cards are placed in a box that carries first class postage.

The organization then opens your package, removes the cards you sent and encloses them—again individually postage free—in packages that will be mailed to various parts of Vietnam for distribution there.

Postage is paid on the bulk packages, not on individual cards, explains Stewart. For example, if you sent the organization a package containing 50 Christmas cards, those 50 cards will be sent to 50 different United Service Organizations, hospitals and military units in packages that will also contain letters and cards from other persons.

Since the program was started in 1965, the organization has sent more than a million letters, Christmas and Easter cards to Vietnam servicemen. If you would like to send a gift package, write Vietnam Mail Call, Inc., P.O. Box 3104, Columbus, Ga. 31903. Be sure you send the cards and letters prior to Dec. 1 after you receive an address from the Georgia organization.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Librarian's Hate Of Motorcycles Turns Into Love

By ROBERT PETERSON

As we grow older, most of us come to dislike motorcycles. We associate them with wild, uncontrolled youths and tend to dislike not only the leather-jacketed riders but the vehicle itself with its loud, raucous roar and its arrogant manner of maneuvering in and out of automobile traffic.

Probably many of us have said we actually hate motorcycles. That's exactly what Mrs. Mayra Scarborough, 55, used to say. "I really hated them," said this woman who works as a librarian for a pharmaceutical company in Nutley, N.J. and is the wife of a retired businessman.

But her daughter owned a small Japanese motorcycle and occasionally urged her mother to try it. One day Mrs. Scarborough succumbed—took the cycle on a trial spin and couldn't believe what an exhilarating adventure it was to whiz effortlessly along the highway, with the wind caressing her face and experiencing a sense of speed and adventure. In short, she was hooked.

What happened next is incredible. I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't checked with her family and find the story is entirely true. Mrs. Scarborough went out and bought a motorcycle for herself. Shortly thereafter she was invited to present a paper on library science at a conference in San Francisco. So she packed some camping gear, hopped on her new motorcycle, and proceeded to spend the next few weeks cycling to the Golden Gate city. She avoided hotels and motels, spending her nights snug in a sleeping bag or small tent along the highways, in forests, or at campgrounds.

She not only made it unscathed to San Francisco, but she presented her paper right on schedule at the conference. Then after a few days of rest she hopped on her motorcycle and rode all the way back to New Jersey—logging 11,000 miles on this remarkable roundtrip journey.

This must certainly go down in the annals of geriatrics as the greatest middle-aged adventure on record. Can anyone top this?

As we grow older we may grow paunchy and flabby. Yet we like to kid ourselves into thinking this is only a temporary condition and that our colleagues are in far worse shape.

Author Edward Streeter once summed it up by saying, "There are times when I catch a side view of myself in the bathroom mirror that would be depressing is I didn't know I was going to get myself back in shape shortly. Of course a lot of it is just the way one happens to be standing. By taking a deep breath and sucking in hard, my figure isn't bad . . . A lot of my contemporaries are in much worse shape . . . I used to go to a gym every afternoon, but the sight of others my age depressed me so that I gave it up . . . I must arrange to start in again—if I can ever find the time." How true.

This Week's Health Tip

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska State Medical Association:

Emphysema is a disease of the lungs. Symptoms include shortness of breath or difficult breathing. It is estimated that about one million persons in the United States have emphysema.

The disease makes the lungs lose their elasticity. Some carbon dioxide remains in the lungs after each exhalation taking up space usually occupied by inhaled air. The patient breathes much harder to get a normal amount of oxygen into his lungs.

It is not known exactly what causes emphysema. It is commonly found among person's who either have difficulty with their breathing, as in asthma, or have one of the lung diseases which used to go with dusty occupations like mining, milling or grinding. There is also considerable evidence that emphysema can be caused by tobacco smoking and air pollution, and these can aggravate existing emphysema.

BOOKS

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

With the possible exception of some of the more paranoid adherents of the radical right and left, most Americans will probably greet with amazement, Jean-Francois Revel's pronouncement that revolution is alive and well, and living (only) in the United States. Is it tenable that a country that prides itself on its stability, consensus politics and centrism (and is subsequently accused of mediocrity and counter-revolutionary tendencies) is playing host to the spectre of revolution? Quite so, states Revel, who believes that the time for writing of the "possibility" of revolution is past.

In his highly-publicized book, "Without Marx Or Jesus" (Doubleday), the French journalist and political observer presents the thesis that the reality of revolution — and, in this case, world revolution — is upon us; and the U.S. is the testing ground upon which the movement will succeed or fail. The second world revolution (the first occurred during the latter years of the 18th century in England, France and the U.S.), if effective, will result in the subordination of national interests, and the establishment of a world government. The sought-after goals of social and economic equality will then follow in due time, and a world that is presently headed towards disaster due to imperialism and authoritarianism, will be salvaged.

But what does Revel mean by revolution? His concern is not with violent coup d'etats, political assassination, incendiary rhetoric, nor any of the devices commonly employed by radicals in an effort to change the existing order of things. Revel's revolution hinges on a clear-eyed and cool-headed perception of reality as it exists in the political, social and economic spheres. For Revel, a revolutionary action is any deed (not necessarily violent) which effectively brings about change. This change need not be immediate; and its achievement must be sought through practical means and goals. Thus, since every situation is different, practicality dictates flexibility in revolutionary planning. Revel would eliminate all revolutionary models, all reliance on theoretical abstractions (whether those of Marx, Mao or Marcuse). In effect, each revolution would become an invention, taking its cues from pragmatic leaders who are not afraid to redirect its course.

It appears to Revel that the U.S. is the only country in which such a revolution is plausible. Neither Western Europe (where radicals stick to impossible alternatives and sabotage reform in the name of orthodoxy), nor the Communist nations (where authoritarianism undermines change) nor the countries of the Third World (nations too wedded to the past and nationalistic feelings) can long sustain a truly revolutionary impulse. Only in America where the youth are more concerned with "real" issues than empty theories, and where an atmosphere of dissent has created the required state of tension — can a revolution which implies the rejection of old values in every aspect of culture, occur.

The author is to be applauded for dealing a death-blow to the illusion of an all-encompassing American mediocrity advanced by many Europeans. However, in abolishing one myth, he has created another. America just can't be as good as Revel envisions it to be. Oversimplifications abound — one questions the extent to which American youth are committed to "real issues," and the degree to which the free flow of information exists in this country. And when, a la Marx Revel divides the country into "two antagonistic camps of approximately equal size" with "the odds in favor of the dissenters rather than . . . the conservatives," one wishes to send him back to the archives.

On the whole, however, Revel's book is highly commendable and provocative reading. The author rejuvenates theories of revolution that have frequently gotten lost in the shuffle — theories which are crucial to the comprehension of a most abstruse phenomenon. And, if Revel can frequently be found guilty of merely relating the obvious, he may be forgiven; for at a time when fulminations from every quarter obscure the obvious, its statement may in and of itself, be quite an accomplishment.

Nary A Dull Moment In Suburbia

The hunting season — for pheasants, quail and deer, that is—will soon be upon us, and that means the fields will become battlegrounds, with the fowl and game attempting to outsmart the human beings, and vice versa.

Saturday will mark the first day of another season which always is eagerly anticipated by the sportsmen—and on that day they will be forced to choose between enjoying the opening day of the pheasant season or the last home game this season for the Cornhuskers.

We know many suburban residents are expecting out-of-town and out-of-state guests on both counts, but first let's reflect on some suburban happenings that already have taken place.

The Trendwood home of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Rack has been active with many festivities and comings and goings recently.

It all started last Friday evening when Dr. and Mrs. Rack helped their son, William Grauer, celebrate his birthday. The special event called for an evening out on the town—at the Elks Club, to be exact. Also included at the family dinner were Mrs. Grauer and the birthday celebrant brother, Mike Rack.

Then came Saturday evening, when Dr. and Mrs. Rack invited 10 couples to their home for a Nebraska victory celebration. The evening began with cocktails and a buffet—and then the group gathered 'round the player piano for an old-fashioned sing-in and dance-in.

The guest list included Mr. and Mrs. Van Ashmun, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Worick, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Thornton-Trump, Dr. and Mrs. William Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Jack White of Beatrice, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Cromwell, Mr. and Mrs. Ely Myerson, Dr. and Mrs. M. J. Epp, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Creager, and Mr. and Mrs. James Austin.

The partying did not stop on Saturday evening, by any means. You see, on Sunday evening, Dr. and Mrs. Rack served as host and hostess to their couples' birthday group. The festivity took the form of a fondue party for 14, and the birthday guests of honor were Mrs. Nadine Crownse and Art Jones.

Earlier this week the Dr. and Mrs. Rack entertained a very special guest—Dr. Joe Merrigan of Rochester, N.Y. Dr. Merrigan was Dr. Rack's first PhD student at the University of Nebraska and was in the area to conduct interviews on the NU campus for Eastman-Kodak.

Travel abroad is always exciting, especially when it is for a special reason. Mrs. Hadsell R. Stoner left her Maple Village home about a month ago for a month-long stay in Bitburge, Germany.

The piece de resistance of the trip was a visit with Mrs. Stoner's son-in-law and daughter, Staff Sgt. and Mrs. Nelson Sabin, as well as her four grandchildren. S-Sgt. Sabin is a career man with the U.S. Air Force and he and his family have been stationed in Bitburge for the past two years and five months. The Sabins will continue to reside in Germany for another year or so.

Mrs. Stoner who had not seen her family since they moved to Germany, discovered that her grandchildren, including Tim who is 10, Mandy Lynn who is 6, Mike who is 5 and Billy who is just three, had grown considerably. Mrs. Stoner returned on Monday.

November Bride-Elect Is Honored

We doubt if Miss Vicki Hulbert, whose marriage to Lewis Holmea is planned for Nov. 20, plans to spend all of her spare moments in the kitchen, but a kitchen shower delights every bride-elect who may or may not know all about appliances, utensils, cookbooks, and such and things.

Miss Hulbert now has quite a supply of kitchen accessories. She received them at a party and a kitchen shower given in her honor when Mrs. John Bills entertained at her home on Tuesday evening.

Study Group Is Formed

A new study group has been formed by the members of the American Association of University Women. The group, called A Dollar's Worth, will have its first meeting on Thursday evening, Nov. 4, when Mrs. Arthur Welty will serve as hostess for the 7:30 o'clock session.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am married to the kind of man who can never be faithful to just one woman. I have left him several times because of this, but I always took him back because of the children. Tell me, Abby, is a woman a fool to stay married to a man for the sake of her children?

MEADOWDALE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: A man's faithfulness (or the absence of it) is only a part of his total behavior. What kind of man is he otherwise? What kind of husband is he? What kind of father has he been? Has he been discreet? Do the children love and respect him? How much have his extra curricular affairs affected your family life? Many a woman has stayed married to a man for the sake of her children when she should have left him for the same reason.

DEAR ABBY: I love to cook, and my specialty is Hawaiian chicken. Last night we had company for dinner and everyone raved about my chicken, whereupon my husband launched into an assault on my mother's cooking. He stressed the point that, altho my mother was a "farm girl," she never learned how to cook a chicken. Then he described with much exaggeration and ridicule the way my mother's chicken came out.

I was terribly hurt and embarrassed. I'll admit my mother was not a very good cook, but she tried. Besides, HIS mother was no better, but I wouldn't dream of ridiculing her cooking.

Later I let my husband know how I felt, and he said he thought it was "funny." Is there something wrong with my sense of humor? I don't like people laughing at my mother. I'd like your opinion.

PUZZLED IN VERMONT

DEAR PUZZLED: Some people don't care whom they ridicule as long as they get a laugh. Your husband sounds like that kind of person. You let him know you didn't like it. Good for you! In the future I think he'll be more careful.

DEAR ABBY: How are you? Nobody ever asks you how YOU are, they just start right in by telling you their troubles.

I was taught that when one writes a letter of a personal nature, it is only common courtesy to inquire about the health of the person to whom he is writing, and to omit this small formality, is extremely rude.

So I would like to make up for all who have failed you in this regard and ask, how are you Abby?

RESPECTFUL IN MENDOCINO

DEAR RESPECTFUL: I'm just great. And grateful, thank you.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Home Extension Day Activities Begin

Friday, Nov. 5, will be Home Extension Day for club members in Lincoln and the surronding areas. The activities will be held in Gateway Auditorium.

The afternoon's agenda will include the presentation of special certificates to approximately 50 women who have been Home Extenison Club members for 25 years or more.

County Home Extension Council officers will be installed by Mrs. Vincent Arthaud, immediate past president. The new officers are Mrs. Mancel McGill of Waverly chairman; Mrs. Elmer Barnhill, vice chairman; Mrs. Roland Wendelin of Martell, secretary; Mrs. Lester Schmutte of Hickman, treasure; Mrs. Ray Neujahr of Waverly, historian; and Mrs. Alvan May, health leader.

The program on "Antiques — Trash or Treasure?" will be presented at 1:15 o'clock by Miss Magdalene Pfister, an extension specialist in home furnishings.

The musical portion of the program will be presented by the Lancaster County Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Robert Lemke of Walton, and the accompanist will be Mrs. Irvin Deeds.

Members' displays of lesson topics, handcrafted arts, and Christmas decorations will be on exhibit from 12 o'clock to 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Lester Haverson is chairman of the program committee.

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

The cautious declarer is unceasingly busy trying to protect himself against any distribution of the adverse cards that might undo him.

Here is a typical case. A club is led and declarer sees that there are no possible losers except in trumps. He can lose a trump trick and make the slam, but he cannot afford to lose two trump tricks.

So South gives thought to the trump combinations the opponents may have that might defeat him. Obviously, if the trumps are divided 2-2 or 3-1, there is no chance of losing the slam.

The only distribution that can endanger the hand is a 4-0 division. This can occur in only two ways — either opponent may have all four trumps.

If West has them, there is no problem. Whenever South plays the ace East shows out and sooner or later declarer leads a low heart to the jack to restrict himself to one trump loser.

But if East has the four trumps and the ace is led. South is in trouble. East's Q-10-9 sitting over the J-7-6 are good for two tricks and South must go down.

Since the 4-0 distribution is the only one that can put the slam in jeopardy, declarer tries to find a method of play — a safety play — to guard against this possibility.

He wins the club lead in dummy and plays the five of hearts. If East produces the nine, ten, or queen, South wins with the ace and cannot lose more than one trump trick if he plays properly.

If East, on the five, plays the deuce, South plays the three as a safety measure. If West wins the trick, that closes the door to further trump losers, while if West shows out, South again cannot lose more than one trick.

State Claims No Liability In Dispute Over North Platte Wild West Show

By United Press International

The State Justice Department decided Wednesday Nebraska is not authorized to pay out any money on a $15,000 claim filed by the producer of the wild west show at North Platte.

Montie Montana, the show's producer, has contended the state owes him the money as its share of legal fees resulting from a suit filed against him by the Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus.

Assistant Attorney General Mel Kammerlohr said the decision the state could not honor such a claim came after a meeting with State Game Commission Director Willard Barbee, and representatives from North Platte and the State Department of Economic Development.

"We take a position we aren't authorized to pay legal fees for any suit brought outside the state of Nebraska," Kammerlohr said.

The next step in the matter, he added, would hopefully be a meeting with Montana to discuss the situation and see if something could be worked out.

Montana claims the state should have come to his aid in the suit. The circus had contended it has exclusive rights to use the name "Buffalo Bill Wild West Show and Congress of Rough Riders."

Montana was given permission to use the name for his show under the terms of a contract between him and the state of Nebraska to produce the North Platte event.

Game Commission Director Willard Barbee said the rights to the name were investigated through the copyright office prior to its inclusion in the contract. No prior claims to the title were turned up in investigations, he said.

Still left in question after the Wednesday meeting was the status of a $5,000 check written by Montana to the state, which was returned for insufficient funds.

The check was sent through on two different occasions, but was returned each time.

Kammerlohr said the matter of the check would probably come up if Montana agrees to meet with him and other state officials.

POSTCARD by Stan Lapalene

In the warm afternoon, tea and sherry are served in the great, ornate rotunda of the Palace Hotel in Madrid.

A stringed orchestra plays, slow and dippy—one of those gloomy groups you find in grand hotels of Europe. The violin player saws, tossing his hair out of his eyes; the piano player looks as though he'd lost everything at the races.

It fills the room with melancholy. It's enough to drive you to drink. (Maybe that's the idea.)

I was listening to them murder Agustin Lara's "Madrid" when who should come over but Bill Harrah of Reno.

☆ ☆ ☆

Bill Harrah is the biggest casino operator in Nevada. (His press agents are ordered to see that he is never referred to as the biggest gambler in the State. A job like trying to keep the papers from calling Nixon the President.)

He collects antique cars. Dozens of them. Rare items like 30-year-old Rolls Royces. The company made only 10. He has two of them.

I said: "Bill, this town used to have the oldest taxi fleet in the whole world. Maybe you could find out what happened to them."

☆ ☆ ☆

When all the rest of Europe was recovering, Spain had not got over the civil war.

The Madrid taxi fleet had been patched and repatched. The average model dated about 1923. There were English cars I never heard of. They puffed and panted. Replacement parts were hand-machined.

What happened to them when the new Spanish SEATS (a Fiat) took their place?

There were few consumer goods. Cigarettes were sold one at a time from an open package. Stores sold one needle and one length of thread.

Everything was rationed, including electricity.

A joke of the day was of an American prison director visiting a Spanish prison.

The Spanish director said: "We are very modern. We have even installed an electric chair for executions."

At this point, they heard a man yelling, "Ouch!"

The Spanish director said "Our only problem is we sometimes run out of our electricity quota. And we have to finish them off with candles."

☆ ☆ ☆

It's warm November now in Madrid. Green Mediterranean melons are in season from here to Athens. Angulas, the baby eels that look like short strands of spaghetti, are in season. They come in brown clay pots, so hot the olive oil is bubbling.

There are little clams now. Done in olive oil, wired with garlic enough to blow a bank safe.

I said: "Bill, why don't we go in the dining room and have a coffee and brandy?"

But the maitre d'hotel looked shocked. Even after meals you don't take coffee in the dining room. You have it served in the rotunda.

☆ ☆ ☆

A couple of strikes are going on. There are unions in Spain — run by the government. Strikes are illegal.

A Madrid friend said: "But they let them go on. If they don't get out of hand. Because nothing ever happens in a strike anyway."

What will happen when Franco goes? That's what worries the Spanish businessman. "No matter what your politics are or were, Spain is a better place to live. Compared to those old days, it is like being lifted from poverty to riches Can somebody else keep this prosperity going? We don't know."

Inmates Offered Psychiatric Service

Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Regional Center is moving to expand its psychiatric services to the State Penal Complex by providing direct services within the penal institutions, the director of medical services for the State Public Institutions Department said Wednesday.

"We have the expertise," said Dr. Robert G. Osborne. "I think we can greatly assist their programming."

Although Osborne said the Regional Center does not intend to "force" its services onto the penal institutions, he told newsmen that "if asked, we will come running."

Will Have 'Impact'

Osborne also said he believes the help that Regional Center personnel can provide "will have an impact" on conditions that could lead to prison uprisings.

Osborne's comments came during a question-and-answer session following a tour of the regional center (formerly called the Lincoln State Hospital) by area newsmen.

Answering questions about new programs established with the cooperation of both the mental treatment and penal institutions, Osborne also said he hopes prison officials "will ask us to provide training for guards."

'Appropriate Intervention'

Osborne noted that professionals in psychiatric fields have developed "rather sophisticated methodology in better perceiving the lot of the patient or inmate" and then acting with "appropriate intervention."

Stressing that medical officials do not intend to force services at the penal institutions, Osborne said, "We want an opportunity to demonstrate our competence."

A recent example of that, he believes, was help provided to the dairy at the prison when high bacteria counts began showing up in milk.

Problem Solved

Finding that the problem related to cleaning schedules, he said, Regional Center personnel used behavior modif cation techniques to solve it.

Osborne noted that "for many years" penal and mental health officials operated on a "demand basis" involving negotiations about treatment of individuals when prison officials believed they detected inmates with pschiatric problems.

The inmates were then transferred to the Regional Center's security center for treatment, he said.

Beginning this fall, however, the Regional Center has assigned psychiatrists to work full-time at both the penitentiary and the reformatory.

Along with other medical p rofessionals, psychologists and social workers, they are seeking to "establish programs that evaluate inmates," he said.

Osborne outlined four aims of the new approach:

—to provide better evaluation of inmates as they come into the institutions and "siphon off" those who need psychiatric care.

—to provide services to inmates in the institutions.

—to "work more intensively with the personnel in corrections to transmit more programmatic support . . . hopefully evolving some real significant change."

—to plan now for possible use of the new medical service unit, when it is completed, for medical and surgical treatment of inmates who are currently treated in Lincoln area hospitals under heavy guard.

On another matter, Osborne said he has "reason to believe" his department's legislative appropriations will about equal those for the present fiscal year.

He also said turnover among nonprofessionals at the Regional Center is about half what it was last year at this time, and he attributed the change partly to economic conditions and partly to more emphasis on "social reward" among workers.

But he said Regional Center technicians are still "grossly undercompensated" and he predicted the state institution will "get clobbered" when budgets begin to increase in states that suffered from limited funding earlier than did Nebraska.

As economic conditions improve, he said, employes will begin to leave to accept similar jobs at higher pay in other states.

Osborne also said the patient population at the center, which has decreased dramatically as the officials began more community-based programs, will level off at about 250 within a year.

It now stands at about 360.

Dynamite Fuse At Elkhorn Had Been Lighted

Elkhorn (AP)—Omaha Police Lt. James Perry, head of the police bomb squad, Wednesday dissected a homemade dynamite bomb found in a cornfield near Elkhorn High School Tuesday night.

"It wasn't a phony," Perry said. "Someone lit the fuse and it burnt all the way down until it got to putty and fizzed out."

Perry said the seven sticks of dynamite were wrapped with adhesive tape and would have blown a three-foot hole in the ground had they gone off.

Elkhorn Police Chief Millay Hollister said Robbie Pojar, an eighth-grade student at Elkhorn Junior High, found the dynamite and gave it to Elkhorn coach Gene Krueger during halftime of the Elkhorn-Gretna football game.

Hollister hid the dynamite until Perry arrived Wednesday.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN FILE

Members of the Lancaster County Democratic Women's Club participated in a mass filing for delegate to the County Democratic convention at the election commission office Wednesday evening. Purpose of the mass filing, according to June Kromberg, club president, was to encourage more people to file and to support the candidacy of fellow member, Yvonne Hardesty for the county chairmanship. More than 40 women were assisted in filing by Mrs David Rosenburg, right, and Election Commissioner Bill Davidson. (Star Photo.)

Wesleyan Begins Participation in State Voter Drive

Nebraska Wesleyan University joined in a statewide campaign to register eligible voters on 13 college and university campuses in the state Wednesday.

Amy Bertelson, organizer of the drive on the Wesleyan campus, reported 86 persons registered to vote in Lancaster County, while 45 persons received absentee voter forms. A breakdown of partly affiliation was not available Wednesday night.

During the first two days of the five-day drive, 473 persons registered in Lancaster County on the University of Nebraska and Union College campuses. In addition, 558 absentee forms have been distributed.

Bruce Beecher, spokesman for the League of Young Voters, said "if things keep up the way they are, we can break 5,000" before the week is out.

Weekly Bus Line Receipts More Than Double

The Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) deposited nearly $14,000 in the bank Wednesday morning, compared to weekly deposits of about $6,000 after Lincoln City Lines was taken over in July, Jerald Rae said Wednesday.

The LTS general manager told a semi-monthly meeting of the Lincoln Board of Realtors that average weekly receipts from the Mini-Line also have increased, from $369 to $500.

The reason for the rise is a passenger increase of about 80,000 a month, Rae said. LTS is taking in about 55 cents a mile — about 10 cents a mile less than is needed to break even, Rae said.

Rae said he has set up a Sunday charter service for elderly patients of nursing homes in Lincoln. The service, set up after he received complaints that the elderly persons had nothing to do on Sundays, will provide tours of the city and transportation to activities.

Everyone in Lincoln will be less than 3½ blocks from a bus stop and will be able to get anywhere in the city in less than 40 minutes when the system is in full operation next spring, he said. LTS is also considering service to Lincoln Air Park and to rapid growth areas such as on West A Street, he said.

Improvements "in the character and class of people working with us" will include requiring each driver to have a physical examination, a police check, a year's driver education and courtesy training, good credit, and several tests of driving skill.

The safety programs are designed to cut insurance costs as well as prevent accidents, he said, because $10 of every $100 of income now goes for insurance.

Each bus will have its own file, the same as a personnel file, Rae said, so a particular vehicle's history may be checked if the need arises. Explaining the numbers recently added to the buses, he said the first three numbers refer to the month and year the bus was acquired and the last number is the serial number. (Example: Bus 7712 is the second bus acquired in July, 1971.

By next spring, he said, Lincoln will have the "finest bus routes possible" after completion of a study of routes and patterns by the NU Engineering College. Rae said rates will not change until further studies are completed.

Rae said he expects many complaints this winter as the inevitable breakdowns occur, but said he will answer every complaint.

Tax Rate Delay Called 'Politically Motivated'

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon Wednesday called the three Republican members of the State Board of Equalization "highly politically motivated" in their decision to postpone setting Nebraska's tax rates until the Nov. 15 statutory deadline.

Earlier Wednesday, State Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson, Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann and Treasurer Wayne Swanson for the second time denied Tax Commissioner Bill Peters and Exon's motion to set the income tax rate at 13% and the sales tax at 2½%.

The debate over when to set the tax rates dates back to the board's Oct. 8 meeitng when the Republican majority voted to delay the tax question because of the pending federal income tax cut. If Nebraska's tax rates were to remain at the present 13-2½ level in the wake of a federal income tax cut, state revenue would decline correspondingly.

Better Picture Sought

The Republicans feel the tax rate decision should be put off until there is a better picture of what the federal legislation's effect will be.

The Democrats maintain that picture will not be clear enough by Nov 15 to determine how to counterbalance the tax break

The constitution provides that the board may reconvene to adjust rates after they are set if the federal situation changes. However, if federal legislation comes before the state's rates are set then the board cannot adjust the rates later.

Beermann said the federal tax cut could "come up for final passage next week. Then rates could be set at the Nov. 15 meeting"

bylvsvwheelock

However, Exon said, "Nothing proves my point more If the bill were passed next week, there would not be enough time to get accurate estimates on the effect."

Result Unknown

This would result, Exon said, in a rate which could either return a surplus in revenue or cause a deficit.

"For the life of me, gentlemen," Exon said, "I can see no reason why the Republican majority refuses to set the rates."

The governor urged the stubborn bloc to be "rational and reasonable" and not to "rush" into a decision.

Exon, who during his gubernatorial campaign promised to hold the tax rate at its current level, said later the Republicans acted "for sheer partisan reasons."

"At first," he said, "I was not sure, but now there is no question in my mind that their reason is political.

Forcing Us To The Wall

"Whether I keep my campaign promise is not important, the important thing is they're forcing us to the wall. Because of their action today, the Board may have to set the rates higher than necessary," the chief executive said.

Regarding earlier remarks made by Swanson stating the governor is asking too early, Exon supplied the dates on which the tax rates were set in previous years.

"The Treasurer must have forgotten when the rates were set during previous years. In 1967, it was Oct. 11; 1968, the date was Nov. 13; 1969, Oct. 1; and 1970, Sept. 20."

Under the bill before Congress, personal exemptions would be raised from $650 to $675. Beermann said this would mean at least $1 million difference to the state This would make the difference between a 13% and 14% rate for income tax, he said.

Procedures Used In Disturbance Hit

... Report On 1970 Incident Released

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

A committee making an investigation of a disturbance and arrests at 19th and O in August, 1970, concluded that improper procedures took place that created injustice under emergency conditions.

According to a four-page report which was submitted to Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf June 30 and released Wednesday, the committee felt that many persons contributed to the disorder that took place and that outside informers made false reports to the police department of the trouble at 22nd and Vine and that "this has been done several times before and since."

The 12-member committee concluded that a lack of communication exists between the police and the people.

Main Conclusions

The committee listed the following four main conclusions of their investigation

—Improper procedure of arrest at 19th and O.

—Lack of human relations training for officers.

—Police procedure declaring "unlawful assembly" because of the violence preceding the declaration was in order.

—Sensitivity testing is needed.

According to the findings in the report, the disturbance began shortly after midnight on Aug. 8 when a carload of young black men were driving through Kings Drive Inn at 19th and O when their car stalled and a car with young white men parked in the drive-in "began making obscene remarks."

Scuffle

According to the report, the young black men "hearing the obscene remarks began to express themselves toward the young white men in the parked car" and one of the black men and one of the white men became engaged in a heated argument and scuffle"

This led to the gathering of many people and more groups of white people at the drive-in became involved in the argument, according to the report, and two "concerned white men" reported the incident to the part-time officer.

As the officer approached the scene, the report states, he walked by the car of the white men involved in the argument and approached the car of the black men and asked the driver to stop when he attempted to leave

Took The Keys

The officer then reached inside the car and took the keys from the ignition and the driver and his companions proceeded to get out of the car and attempt to regain the keys, the report continues

"The officer claims he was assaulted by the young black men as they attempted to regain the car keys," the report states and then a large crowd of people were watching as name calling took place.

When other officers arrived, the police captain "realized the nature of the trouble and ordered the off-duty officer to return the keys to the driver so they could leave the area because of the tension built up between the black and white in the area, the report states.

Went To Party

According to the report, the young black men then left the area of 19th and O to go to a party that was being held at 25th and Potter.

They told the others at the party what had happened at Kings, the reports states, relating that the white men involved were not questioned since the officers only approached them.

At this time, according to the report, a number of older blacks stated they were going to Kings to find out what had happened and when they arrived four officers were standing on the sidewalk so they began questioning them about how the trouble started.

Under Arrest

"At this time, the car of young white men that was involved in the incident drove around the corner. A young black man took after it in order to stop the car so the officers could talk with them, but the car kept going. The officers then stopped the young black man and placed him under arrest," the report states.

Later, according to the report, after everyone left the 19th and O area, a small group of black people gathered at 22nd and Vine and name-calling and rock and bottle throwing erupted between blacks and whites and some "innocent people" driving through the area were "rocked and bottled" by the young men.

After police officers moved in and began rerouting traffic, the group "became more tense and began throwing rocks and bottles at police cars striking one of the officers," according to the report.

'Unlawful Assembly'

At this time, the report states, the officers declared an "unlawful assembly" and began to clear the area and some left while others stayed

"By this time the officers were moving in making arrests on everyone even those who had begun to clear out," and the report adds that many black persons stated that they were stopped even though they had no knowledge that there had been trouble.

According to the report, the disturbances continued into the early morning calming down after several arrests and tension grew as parents heard of the trouble, and that many blacks "viewed the arrests as police harassment . . ."

Stop 'Pipeline'

"Community blacks believe that if the chief of police would start working with the community and stop relying on his 'pipeline' as a source of information more could be accomplished.

"Many times the 'pipeline' represents only a hand-out causing trouble with a few paid out dollars to one or two individuals," the report states.

Congress Given Grain Alcohol Bills

A pair of bills designed to end lead pollution of the atmosphere and improve farm income have been introduced into the Congress by Sen. Carl Curtis of Nebraska and Rep. Keith Sebelius of Kansas.

Both bills provide tax incentives to petroleum companies designed to encourage the use of alcohol made from farm-grown grains as a replacement for lead used in motor fuels.

Sen. Curtis's bill S2698 would amend the internal revenue law of 1954 to provide for a reduced rate of tax for gasoline containing alcohol made from farm-grown grains to provide for a 3c difference in the tax between the leaded gas and the gas with grain alcohol.

The Sebelius bill would provide a 2c difference between gas with grain alcohol and the leaded product Sebelius indicated in his speech introducing the bill that the grain he had in mind was wheat. However, the bill refers to alcohol made from cereal grains. Presumably this would include grains other than wheat.

The house bill includes a provision that requires that the lower tax be passed along to the ultimate consumer of the fuel, a provision that Sen. Curtis has indicated he will attempt to have included in his bill as an amendment.

Sebelius estimated that "if all the gasoline used in the nation was to use grain alcohol in place of lead. there would be a market for 3 2 billion bushel of grain" In his presentation to the House he said. "This bill, if passed, could provide three basic social needs for the nation, it would mean a cleaner lead free environment with a lead free gasoline. it would provide a greatly improved farm income and the protein by-products that would stem from the grain alcohol prrduction would give us additional products to fight malnutrition and hunger around the world."

Senate sources indicate that ecology minded senators may attempt to amend the bill to include a provision requiring the petroleum companies to furnish the grain alcohol additive in all gasolines sold during periods when a specific air pollution factor from lead had been reached.

Such a provision would be applied in high population density areas of major cities.

The Senate bill has been referred to the Senate Finance Committee and the House bill is in the House Ways and Means Committee. Both are the tax writing committees of their respective legislative bodies.

Highway Safety Committee Is Announced By Governor

By United Press International

The formation of the governor's highway safety coordinating committee was announced by the state's chief executive Wednesday.

Gov. J. J. Exon said the formation resulted from the efforts and results of the committee established to carry out a highway safety campaign over the Labor Day weekend this year.

The committee's purpose, the governor said, will be to "focus government action on specific problem areas pinpointed by the Accident Records Bureau."

The shortcoming of many previous efforts, he said, appars to have been the lack of coordination among them. The newly formed committee would serve as the focal point for future efforts, he said.

He also said it is hoped the program would improve Nebraska's year-round highway safety record.

Organizations already designating representatives are: the Nebraska Women for Highway Safety; Nebraska League of Municipalities; Association of County Government Officials; Nebraska New Car Dealers; Nebraska Safety Council Inc.; Omaha Safety Council; Nebraska Petroleum Council; Nebraska Petroleum Marketers Assn., and the Nebraska Motor Carriers Assn.

State senators who have agreed to work with the committee so far include Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox, Wallace Barnett of Lincoln, John De Camp of Neligh and William Skarda of Omaha.

Representatives of local government so far announced are Ralph Nelson, legal counsel for the city of Lincoln and John Carpenter, Grand Island city manager.

UMTA Reiterates Position Favoring Flxible's Bus Bid

The Urban Mass Transit Administration (UMTA) has informed the city that it has not changed its opinion and feels that the Flxible Manufacturing bid was responsive to the specifications and was the low bidder for Lincoln's 36 new 45-passenger coaches.

According to City Attorney Richard Wood, the matter has been referred to the Transportation Board which is scheduled to meet Thursday.

Wood said his opinion had not changed and he still feels that General Motors Corp. (GMC) is the low bidder due to the type of tires it includes on its coaches and that awarding the contract to Flxible could result in an illegal contract.

He said that after word is received from the Transportation Board, and if the Flxible bid is still upheld, there are three possible routes the city could take:

—Go with the Flxible bid.

—Appeal to the Department of Transportation.

—Request approval of rejection of all bids and readvertise for bids on the buses

Three Appointed As State Labor NegotiatingTea

State Personnel Director George Heiden and three longtime Democratic associates of Gov. J. J. Exon have been named by the governor to be his state labor negotiating team.

On the unit with Heiden will be Norman Krivosha, the governor's unpaid legal counsel; Lincoln-Lancaster Election Commissioner W. H. Davidson, and Richard H. Shugrue, Creighton University faculty member. Shugrue was an administrator in the State Agriculture Dept. during the Morrison administration.

Exon said his intention in creating the team is to have men with "experience and knowledge in the matter of labor negotiations to represent all of the executive agencies of state government."

Krivosha recently won a major case before the Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations, representing the Lincoln Electric System.

Stripe In Road Changed To Yellow

The familiar white center stripe on two lane roads is becoming a thing of the past, according to the Department of Roads.

In compliance with new Federal Highway Administration regulations, the department has begun replacing the dashed white center stripe with a dashed yellow center stripe on two lane roads.

The yellow stripe is intended to help motorists make the transition from one-way roads to two-way traffic roads. Dashed white lines will still be used to distinguish traffic flow lanes for traffic traveling in the same direction, such as on the Interstate.

Motorists should not confuse the dashed yellow center stripe with the solid yellow "no passing" stripe. The solid yellow stripe still means it is illegal to pass the vehicle in front of you.

The decision to change resulted from studies that found many accidents occur when drivers become confused after entering a two-way road from a one-way road and wind up in the wrong lane.

The Department of Roads says the new markings will not mean increased operating costs, since the total amount of paint used will remain the same. No new equipment is needed to facilitate the change. However, a new striper is being purchased as a replacement.

Three Charges Against Gaylord Dismissed

Omaha (AP) — Three of four charges against former Omaha used car dealer Robert Gaylord were dismissed in court Tuesday, police records show.

Municipal Court Judge Francis McClain, on a motion by Deputy County Atty. Thomas Brown, dismissed two charges of obtaining money by false pretenses and one charge of issuing an insufficient fund check, police records show.

Gaylor, former owner of Town and Country Motors in Omaha, was arrested recently in Council Bluffs, Iowa, and returned to Omaha on complaints that he sold automobiles when the titles were actually held by other car dealers, police said.

Gaylor still faces a fourth charge of obtaining money by false pretenses, police records show.

Recreation Projects Approved

The State Game Commission announced Wednesday federal grants have been approved for outdoor recreation projects at Norfolk, Central City and Waverly.

The projects have been approved for 50% funding from the Federal Land and Water Conservation Fund and 25% state funding. The municipality pays the remainder plus any overage from original estimates.

The Norfolk project, estimated at $170,000 includes construction of a swimming pool, wading pool and bathhouse to be located adjacent to Memorial Park.

Central City's project, estimated at $5,750, includes the purchase of five acres for an addition to the existing City Park.

At Waverly, 30 acres of land are to be purchased at an estimated cost of $42,000. The commission said eventually a swimming pool and ball field would be located on the land.

A GREAT NEW HEARING AID

It is the most unusual hearing aid the writer has ever seen in the many years in this hearing aid field. It's remarkable! This aid is truly a revolutionary advancement for the average hard-of-hearing person — an Audiologist in Norway has written "The most significant advancement in Hearing Aid design since the transistor . . ." I truly believe that the new MAICO MARK 100 will offer most hard-of-hearing persons the most dramatic hearing improvement they have ever known.

I would be glad to compare it with any other hearing aid now in use that is in a similar power range, or even those that may have a greater gain — HEARING IS BELIEVING!

Call or write me for an appointment in our office or in your home for a MAICO MARK 100 demonstration. 415 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln, Nebr. — Phone 432-8507.

Looking At Future

Omaha — Larry Popein isn't worried about the past — it's the future that concerns him.

"We've got good material this year, but we've got to get the rough edges off and execute better," the Omaha Knight coach says of his crew which is trying to keep the regular season and playoff crowns for the third straight season.

The Knights, with eight performers who spent time with Omaha last season, are loaded with untested rookies which partly accounts for the shaky start. The team going into Wednesday' night's clash with league-leading Tulsa was in the Central Hockey League's cellar.

"We know we'll improve with time," he points out, "The boys have the desire and the determination — all it leaves is for the coach to do the coaching."

Popeln knows right winger Mike Murphy and blueliner Bob Ash are veterans who are being counted on this year. Both played major roles in the Knights' success last season.

"I think working with players like Murphy (last year's CHL rookie-of-the-year with 24 goals and 47 assists) with his experience should help the offense," Popein says. "I'm counting on him, Vickers (Steve, who hit 43 goals for the Toronto Marlboros) and West (Terry, who scored 22 goals in junior hockey) to get 85 goals this year."

'Stabilize Defense'

"Ash is the defenseman who we hope can stabilize that aspect of our game — we have a lot of rookies back there and we've done pretty well so far," he explains.

While the offense may not produce as many goals (312) as last year's squad, Andre Dupont's Omaha high of 314 penalty minutes may be snapped. Steve Durbano, who was tagged with 324 minutes with the Marlboros last season, is already the CHL's 'bad-boy' with 45 minutes.

"Sure, he (Durbano) gets a lot of penalties — but we're hoping he gets them for being aggressive and not for stupid mistakes," Popein says.

Durbano made an auspicious debut at Ak-Sar-Ben Friday night — receiving a game misconduct for his part in a second-period fight.

Taking a cue from Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney with his two quarterbacks, Popein said both goalies Wayne Bell (who played sparingly with starter Peter McDuffe last season at Omaha) and Wayne Wood will see action.

"I don't know if we'll rotate them or not — Bell only played 15 games last year while Wood played in 48 (with Montreal's junior team)," Popein says, "If one is hot we'll let him play — it's too early now to say this one is the best or that one is."

Although he terms Dallas and Tulsa as the teams to catch this season, Popein feels the Knights will be definite contenders.

"Not very many people are counting on us to win again this season, but we're ready to fool them," he predicts. "Sure Dallas with all their returnees (from a team that took the Omahans to six games before bowing in the CHL finals last season) and Tulsa with their size and older players are going to be tough, but we'll give them a battle."

After coaching Omaha when its CHL domination started two years ago, Popein moved to Seattle of the Western Hockey League last season and the Totems finished a disappointing fifth.

"I've had both a winner and loser and let me tell you — I'll take the winner anytime," he grins.

...2nd Against Rushing, 3rd In Scoring

New York — Nebraska's Black Shirts have taken over the national lead in total defense, replacing Michigan at the top of that department.

The Huskers, who were second a week ago to the Wolverines, are yielding only 172 yards per game compared to 178.8 being allowed by Michigan.

Nebraska is second to Michigan in rushing defense with the Wolverines giving up 60.6 per game on the ground and the Huskers allowing 72.9 yards per contest. Neither is among the leaders in pass defense.

Nebraska dropped from second to third in defense against scoring, being replaced by Georgia after giving up seven points to Colorado.

Michigan is the leader in defense against scoring, allowing only 4.9 points per game, followed by Georgia at 5.8 and Nebraska at 5.9.

The Huskers' offensive balance between rushing and passing is plainly evident in the national offensive statistics where NU is not in the top 10 in either rushing or passing, but ranks sixth in total offense with 439.9 yards per game.

The best the Huskers can do in either rushing or passing alone is a 14th place in passing with 182.1 yards per game through the air.

Oklahoma, the leader in rushing offense with 489.1 yards per game, also leads the nation in total offense with a per game average of 578.9 yards.

The Sooners and Huskers rank 1-4, respectively, in scoring with OU averaging 47 points per game and NU 38.5, only one point behind Michigan and 2.9 behind Penn State.

SI Writer Impressed By NU Gridders

Sports Illustrated's No. 1 college football writer Dan Jenkins was impressed with the nation's No. 1-ranked football team—even if his own magazine continues to rank Oklahoma No. 1 in the Midwest—after watching Nebraska defeat Colorado, 31-7, last week.

Referring to a remark from NU coach Bob Devaney two days before the Colorado game that he didn't know how good his Huskers really were, Jenkins writes in this week's issue, "If he really didn't know it already, Devaney found out two days later that his 1971 team was probably the best he has had among a lot of good ones.

"Nebraska simply manhandled Colorado in its usual physical way with perhaps a little more spirit and enthusiasm than the big sod busters normally display."

After several paragraphs of quotes from Husker players, Jenkins adds, "The Colorado game was never actually close because Nebraska did what it does best—make the enemy look bad."

Of the Thanksgiving Day battle between Nebraska and Oklahoma, Jenkins writes, "... Nebraska and Oklahoma on Nov. 25 may collide in that most classic of football duels, speed versus power, big plays versus ball control.

"Football brains say speed usually wins. But they say defense usually wins as well. Oh, well. Ho hum. Another game of the decade, folks."

Of the Nebraska defense, Jenkins quotes Colorado sports information director Fred Casotti as remarking, "... I hope the Nebraska defense doesn't line up on the runway at the airport in front of our DC-9. We'll never get home."

BIG DADDY . . . Cyclone Tackle.

Wesleyan To Host Midget Champions

The co-champions of the Lincoln Midget Varsity Football League will be guests of Nebraska Wesleyan at the Hastings game.

There will be 35 players and six coaches from the Executive Club team with head coach Pat Mulligan and 32 players and six coaches from the Security Mutual team including head coach Willis Weisbrook.

These two teams will meet two Omaha teams on Sunday in championship competition.

—TAILBACK AMUNDSON EXTRA AERIAL THREAT—

Huskers Will Face Tough Iowa State Pass Defense

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

With 20 interceptions in the first eight games, Nebraska's pass defense has been responsible for setting up a number of Husker touchdowns this season.

In Iowa State they'll be facing a team that ranks second only to Nebraska in passing offense and the Cyclones have an extra passing threat in tailback George Amundson, a former quarterback.

"They might not even try it against us, but they have used a throwback pass to the quarterback," Husker head coach Bob Devaney pointed out Wednesday, "And we've been working against that."

That particular play puts pressure on the off-side end or linebacker.

"We got fooled on a broken pass play last week against Colorado," Devaney explained, "But the experience we've got on defense should help us in stopping that play—that and the fact that we've worked against it so our players know what it is."

The Husker coach, suffering from a bad cold, pointed out that the Cyclones "throw a lot of passes similar to ours. They use delays and action passes like we do."

He called split end Ike Harris, who has caught 24 passes for 370 yards and three touchdowns, their most dangerous receiver.

"He's a little like Otto Stowe was for them," he offered. "He's big and he takes the ball away from people. Once he catches it, he's a good runner."

Devaney also figures the Cyclones have better pass protection than they've had in recent years.

"I think their lines, both on offense and defense, are better than what they've had in the past," he says. "I think last year, they thought their line wasn't real good."

Devaney credits the Husker zone defense on pass coverage as a factor in the high number of interceptions.

"By using the zone defense, it frees a player to go after the ball more if he doesn't have to worry about man-on-man coverage on a receiver."

Back With Huskers

After getting off the Nebraska bandwagon last week, The Associated Press' Will Grimsley agrees with fellow college football forecasters Herschell Nissenson of AP and Charlie Smith of United Press International in picking the Huskers this week.

Seeing a 48-13 NU win over Iowa State, Grimsley says, "Red is the Cornhuskers' color—and now it's the color of the prognosticator who picked Colorado."

Tabbing the Huskers to win by 34-0, Smith adds, "No one can find a weak spot in the Cornhuskers' defense."

And picking Nebraska, Nissenson comments, Bob "Broken Record" Devaney says this could be the toughest game so far for the Cornhuskers. 'I know I said that last week,' he admitted, 'and Colorado was the toughest. But this team is every bit as good as Colorado was last weekend.'

"Answers Iowa State's Johnny Majors: 'Nebraska has a complete football team. I don't see any weaknesses out there. I don't see any cracks in their defense. Nebraska chews you up and spits you out.' Iowa State over Nebraska? Ptui!"

Huskers To Help Fund

Members of the Cornhusker football team and coaches have been invited to a special public pancake feed Sunday evening to raise funds for Love Library at the University of Nebraska.

Members of Farmhouse fraternity and Kappa Alpha Theta sorority are planning the event from 4:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday in the Centennial Room at the Union.

NU, OU Both By 32

Nebraska and Oklahoma have both been made 32-point favorites by the nation's oddsmakers for their Saturday games against Iowa State and Missouri, respectively.

In other Big Eight games, Colorado is rated 13 points better than Kansas and Oklahoma State is liked by six over Kansas State.

Cagers To Scrimmage

Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano will give fans a chance for an early look at his cagers Saturday morning with a 10 a.m. intrasquad scrimmage on tap.

Standard Takes Bowl

Big Daddy Doesn't 'Look Like A Lawrence'

. . . 6-2, 236-POUND SOPH TACKLE GAINED TAG IN GRADE SCHOOL

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Lawrence Hunt won't be the biggest Cyclone on the Memorial Stadium AstroTurf Saturday when Iowa State takes on the nation's No. 1-ranked Cornhuskers, but he will be the one answering to the name "Big Daddy."

Call him "Lawrence" and the 6-2, 236-pound sophomore defensive tackle from Delray Beach, Fla., may not answer.

He's been answering to the name Big Daddy ever since the seventh grade "when I was the biggest cat in the P.E. class.

"The coaches picked it up and it's traveled with me wherever I've gone. I think most guys figure Lawrence is to hard to remember and besides I don't look like a Lawrence."

Hunt's image of a Lawrence is "a small guy, wearing glasses and carrying a briefcase. A Lawrence doesn't look like the all-American type."

He says the only people who have called him Larry since he acquired the Big Daddy label were some sports writers "back home."

Hunt was 5-11 by 180 when he got the nickname, went 6-2 by 220 when he finished high school and has added only about 15 pounds since then.

Big Daddy is among the Cyclone leaders in the defensive statistics with a total of 77 tackles, 40 of them unassisted and four coming behind the line of scrimmage for losses of 22 yards.

And Big Daddy has a brother, Donald, who weighs only 190 pounds. "They call him Little Daddy. He's going to Morris Brown College."

In fact, Big Daddy has five brothers and sisters. "With six kids in the family, I learned to get along with kids," he explains.

"When I'm through with college and football, I want to work with kids in some type of program where I can help the underprivileged ones."

Big Daddy played side-by-side in high school with Little Daddy—for awhile.

"We used to argue with each other all the time," he recalls, "so, the coach switched him to the other side of the line to keep us from fighting."

But despite the name Big Daddy, former professional great Big Daddy Lipscomb was not his boyhood idol.

"I thought he was a great football player," Hunt says. "But my idol was Bubba Smith of Michigan State (now with the Baltimore Colts)."

High school football action at Seacrest Field winds up with a flurry of activity this weekend.

Lincoln rivals East and Pius X kick off a tripleheader Thursday night. One of the state's oldest prep rivalries, Lincoln High and Grand Island, resumes Friday evening, while a Southeast-Beatrice clash Saturday night will be the final game of the season for the Capital City facility.

Coach Bob Els takes Lincoln's other prep eleven on the road this weekend. His Northeast Rockets travel to North Platte, winner of the West Big Ten Conference title, for a Trans-Nebraska league game.

It's a case of out of the frying pan and into the fire for Pius coach Vince Aldrich. Last week his Thunderbolts faced Southeast, the No. 1 rated Class A club in the state. Prior to the Knights taking over the top spot, East had been No. 1 since the beginning of the season.

"We have a little different problem this time," Aldrich reasons. "East passes a lot more. If we hope to succeed we'll have to be able to stop that phase of their game."

Aldrich is afraid that may be easier said than done. "While we face the need to play excellent pass defense," he explains, "that has probably been our biggest weakness all year. We've given up the long bomb to our opponents far too often this season."

East High coach Lee Zentic, who saw his Spartans bounce back from the loss to Southeast in resounding fashion with a 41-0 win over McCook, isn't taking the 'Bolts lightly.

"Their win-loss record may not be as good as it's been in recent years," he admits, "but Pius always fields a very sound ball club. We always have a lot of trouble with them, because they don't make mistakes and are well drilled in the fundamentals."

Hernandez Set

Des Moines (UPI) — Boxing promoter Harvey Feilen said Wednesday that No. 3 ranked heavyweight Jerry Quarry will be featured in Iowa's first professional boxing match here Dec. 2.

Feilen said Quarry will be the main attraction on a card that will also feature middleweight Art Hernandez of Omaha.

—CROSS COUNTRY IN LINCOLN—

Husker Runner Unger Knows The Territory

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

If familiarity breeds success, then Bob Unger may become Nebraska's second straight Big Eight cross country champion.

"I'm getting pretty familiar with the course and that may give me a little edge," says the NU sophomore from Lincoln Southeast who leads coach Frank Sevigne's Huskers into the Big Eight cross country championships beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday at Pioneers Park.

Running an average of 100 miles per week at the Lincoln Park, Unger hopes to duplicate Greg Carlberg's 1970 first-place effort. But he knows his biggest obstacle is Kansas State's Jerome Howe who nipped him by nine seconds in NU's opening 21-38 loss to the Wildcats.

"He (Howe) won it when he was a sophomore so he'll probably be the one to beat—him and Hitchcock (KSU's Rich) they both will be tough," Unger adds, "We have an outside chance to win it, but if Kansas State wins, we'll probably be battling Kansas for second."

Although Unger's 19:35 clocking at Kansas State ranks as his top time this season over the grinding four-mile course, he turned in a 19:47 reading at Pioneers last season. He ran just two seconds slower to capture 24th at last year's Big Eight meet at Oklahoma State.

He predicted that a winning performance Saturday would be under 19:50, but added that variables such as the weather and mental attitude would be instrumental factors.

"If the course is dry and the wind is down, the times will be faster," he adds, "But I think mental toughness will be as important as anything — a lot of us have gotten the same amount of training so how much we want to suffer to win will determine the winner."

"That's true with me—I've been thinking about this meet for a long time—I want to do well in it," he points out.

He termed the hills on Pioneers as the looming obstacle.

"You've really got to work to beat the hills—they can make or break your race. Some courses are fairly flat, but when you have hills that makes a big difference."

After placing second to Howe at Manhattan on Oct. 2, Unger has ripped off four straight victories as NU has defeated in succession—Missouri, Iowa State, Drake and Colorado for a 4-1 dual meet slate.

But Unger almost decided to attempt a collegiate football career at Nebraska Wesleyan University. A split end for three years on Southeast's football team who never ran cross country until last season, he briefly flirted with the football notions.

"I don't miss it (football) now," he relates, "I kind of wanted to try football, but I thought that I should concentrate to excel in one sport and I enjoy running."

"You can bet that running is all I'll be thinking of Saturday morning," he adds.

Most Prep Gridders End Regular Season

. . . SOME GAMES SET FOR NEXT WEEK

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

It's the final week of the regular high school football season.

Several games, postponed by last weekend's heavy rains, will be played a week hence along with a number of league and conference championship playoff clashes.

But it's the last chance for most teams, on the verge of cracking the statewide top ten ratings to make an impressive splash.

One Class A game which could affect the final ratings is between Omaha Burke and crosstown rival South.

In Class B the Minden-Holdrege meeting and Albion's game with Aurora are both crucial.

Palmyra and Wilcox, a pair of teams which are threatening the Class C top ten, each meet clubs from the Class D list. The Palmyra-Falls City Sacred Heart and Wilcox-Sumner games are important to all four clubs.

And the Grant-Medicine Valley matchup is also a big one in Class C.

How about games this weekend involving Capital City teams?

Pius X vs. East, Seacrest Field, Thursday—The Spartans have too much offense for a sticky, but under-manned 'Bolt defense.

Grand Island at Lincoln High, Seacrest Field, Friday—The Links can cap a good season with victories in their last two starts . . . this one and the postponed Omaha Westside game now set for Nov. 9 in the Metro City. This will be Lincoln High's 33rd win in 53 games with Grand Island.

Northeast at North Platte, Friday—North Platte may have won the western half of the Big Ten Conference, but they haven't won a single Trans-Nebraska contest. Northeast can keep the Bulldogs in the cellar of one league while winning the other.

Beatrice at Southeast, Seacrest Field, Saturday — Another top ten rated team—the fourth the Knights have met this season. But it's the only block in the path of a state title for Southeast, which should be plenty of incentive.

Florom Nabs First Place

After chasing Jim Dill for four weeks, Rodger Florom finally found himself in sole possession of first place in the Hamm's Classic League. Ever since Oct. 7, Florom has played second best to Dill but a series of 639 helped change all that.

Dill drops to second place after a three game total of 593 in which he won two of three contests from Max Jensen, subbing for Ron Melichar. Florom won all three of his games besting Larry Tuckerman.

Rodgers Makes Excellent NU Club Even Better

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — Without Johnny Rodgers, Nebraska would be an excellent football team. But with him, the Cornhuskers are in another category.

Rodgers is the man who keeps defensive coaches up nights. A sound defensive plan can be made against Nebraska—if only that guy wasn't playing slotback.

As any defensive coach will tell you, there's no defense for speed.

But Johnny Rodgers is more than a speed merchant. He's a superior football player who would be an exceptional defensive back if he weren't scoring touchdowns.

Virtually every team feels disposed to double-team Rodgers. And that leaves foes vulnerable elsewhere. Nebraska's performers at the other skilled positions — quarterback Jerry Tagge, tailback Jeff Kinney, fullback Bill Olds, split receiver Woody Cox and tight end Jerry List—know how to take advantage.

Rodgers' value shows up in the Big Eight Conference statistics. He leads the league in pass receiving, punt returns and kickoff returns. He's the extra dimension that has made coach Bob Devaney's team the No. 1-ranked club in the land.

Rodgers has caught 31 passes for 567 yards and eight touchdowns. He's returned 24 punts for a 16.1-yard average and seven kickoffs for 32.6 yards.

Last week Rodgers became the top pass receiver in Nebraska history. Only a junior, Rodgers has 1,277 yards in pass catches, breaking the record of 1,234 set by Guy Ingles a year ago.

He's also well within range of Nebraska records for career pass receptions and touchdown catches and one-season touchdown catches. He set the single-season record for yards gained receiving a year ago when he had 710.

Tagge continues to lead the Big Eight in passing and total offense with 165.5 and 187.9 yards per game, respectively.

—NWU APPROACHES GRIDIRON MILESTONES—

Wesleyan Records May Fall Friday

The Nebraska Wesleyan University football team of 1971 can engrave its name in the school's record books in several departments this final week.

Despite a 16-3 setback at Doane last Saturday, the current edition of the Plainsmen can still re-write the history book in many ways.

A win over Hastings in the homecoming battle Friday night would give the 1971 club the third best record in the school's history at 8-1. The win No. 8 would also be a record.

Wesleyan's only undefeated teams in history were 1911 at 7-0 and 1946 at 7-0-3. With 175 points scored thus far it takes only four more tallies to get in the top ten teams in the point parade department.

Senior end candidate John McLaughlin already owns all the NWU pass receiving records. He will also finish high in the points scored department.

Also at stake against Hastings will be some long standing supremacy marks between the two ancient rivals.

The two first met on the gridiron in 1908. Since that early start Wesleyan has claimed 25 wins to 24 for the Broncos and seven ended in ties.

The last six games in the series have been won by the home team. The Broncos thus triumphed, 32-14 on a cold and windy night in Hastings last fall.

Friday's 7:30 p.m. game will be highlighted at halftime with the crowning of this year's Homecoming Queen. Candidates include Barbara Ann Boling, Lincoln junior; Cynthia Ann Wilson, Hastings senior and Starr Womack, Aurora, Ill., junior.

Trap Area Closed By Interior Order

The United States Department of the Interior, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife has announced that one of the Federal Waterfowl Production Areas in south central Nebraska will be closed to trapping this year.

Massie Lagoon, a 670-acre tract of land three miles south of Clay Center along Highway 14 will be off limits to all trappers due to the suspected presence of a beaver population.

Blue Chips Soar In Stock Market

New York (AP) — The stock market shot ahead Wednesday, with blue chips posting their largest gain in over two months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials jumped 14.60 points to 842.58 This was the sharpest single-day rise since Aug. 16, when the Dow soared a record-breaking 32.93 points in response to President Nixon's initial wage-price announcement.

Analysts said Wednesday's upturn was largely the result of technical factors. The market had been heavily oversold in recent sessions, they explained, and many issues had been pushed down to bargain levels.

Also, many seemed to feel that the market might have been overreacting to uncertainties surrounding Phase 2 of the Nixon economic package.

In the news background was a Federal Reserve Board report that consumer installment credit in September showed its largest monthly increase in history

But brokers added it was too early to tell whether Wednesday's upswing marked the beginning of a major bull market rally or merely a short-term technical rebound.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 14.59 million shares, compared with 13.33 million shares Tuesday. The Big Board tape was running one minute late at the closing bell.

Of the 1,703 stocks traded on the Big Board 1,119 advanced and 343 declined. There were 3 new highs and 55 new lows for the year.

The Big Board index of some 1,300 common stocks rose 0.89 to 52.35.

The Associated Press 60-stock average gained 5.2 to 309.8, with industrials up 7.6, rails up 3.7, and utilities up 1.3.

Stocks were higher in virtually all categories, except mail order-retail, which were mixed.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock andex closed at 94.91, up 1.73

There were 115 blocks of 10,000 shares or over traded on the Big Board, compared with a revised total of 80 Tuesday.

International Nickel was most active on the Big Board, gaining ⅞ to 26⅞. A block of 100,000 shares traded at 26½, up ½.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index gained 0.20 to 24.60. Of the 1,147 stocks traded, 625 advanced, and 237 declined. Volume totaled 3.67 million shares, compared with 3.9 million shares Tuesday.

Corporate bonds were mixed and governments were higher.

Three Inmates Found Guilty In Assault Case

Three Nebraska Penal Complex inmates were found guilty Wednesday by a Lancaster District Court jury on charges of assaulting a prison correctional officer last Dec. 25.

Maurice Anderson, Theopholis Lewis and Willie Clark were charged in an incidence involving Lt. Gerald D. Hedges, a correctional officer.

A verdict of guilty was returned by the jury in about 3½ hours in the two-day trial before District Judge Bartlett Boyles.

The three inmates were tried last month on the same charges, but a mistrial was declared when the jury failed to reach an unanimous verdict.

Exon's Wife Is Out Of Hospital

Officials at Bryan Memorial Hospital late Wednsday announced that Mrs. J. James Exon, the wife of Nebraska governor, has been released.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
